Cotton tickets not choice pick

By ALAN ROBINSON AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — The University of Pittsburgh, fearful of being left with thousands of unsold tickets to the Cotton Bowl, has twice mailed letters to season ticket holders asking them to buy tickets for the Jan. 1 game against Southern Methodist

16-The Daily Collegian Wednesday, Dec. 15, 1982

But travel agents have handled little business with Pitt fans traveling to Dallas, although they are having no trouble selling packages for Penn State's game against Georgia in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans. "And that's sad, because this is a Pitt town - it's not a

Penn State town," said Wayne C. Lacock, president of Wavne Travel in Pittsburgh. Lacock is sold out of tickets on one charter to the Sugar Bowl and is arranging another tour through Chicago, But even though he holds over 100 tickets on the 50-yard line for the Pitt-SMU game, he said Tuesday he will have trouble selling even a third of them. "It's disastrous." he said. "It's sad. As soon as Penn State beat Pitt (on Nov. 26), all of the interest in Pitt going to a bowl game died out. But we've been swamped for weeks with people wanting to go to the Sugar Bowl.'

Pitt's two closest football rivals. West Virginia and Penn State, are both going to bowls, since West Virginia is playing in the Gator Bowl. West Virginia sold out of its 18,000-ticket allotment in one day and Penn State's ticket office has sold thousands of tickets, but Pitt ticket officials are reluctant to say how many tickets they've sold. "I'm not at liberty to give out that information," ticket manager Mel Cratsley said Tuesday. "Well, I am at liberty, but I don't want to say anything." He then directed queries to John Blanton, the school's athletic business manager and assistant athletic director. Blanton said he "hasn't got a fix" on how many tickets the Panthers have sold. However, he would not classify the ticket sales as "poor," although he wouldn't give out any numbers.

Pitt officials have returned one batch of tickets to Dallas. The Panthers reportedly were offered 12,000, and are now trying to dispose of 9,000 tickets. Lacock, a Panther season ticket holder, said the second letter he received from Pitt inferred that season ticket holders should buy a ticket, even if they weren't planning on going to Dallas.

"You could read between the lines," he said.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitt Coach Foge Fazio says the controversy over critical remarks made by cornerback Tim Lewis is "a dead issue" and that the sixth-ranked Panthers are now concentrating on their Cotton Bowl football date with

Southern Methodist Lewis and guard Ron "Moose" Sams made widely publicized remarks concerning some of their teammates last week in interviews published in Dallas and Pittsburgh newspapers. Lewis also criticized Pitt's preparation for some important games and questioned the team's discipline. Fazio and other athletic department officials, including associate athletic director Dean Billick, were incensed over the remarks, which were rekindled during a school- to Fort Worth tomorrow to begin coaches over the next two weeks concerns fourth-ranked SMU and the unbeaten Mustangs' two star running backs, Eric Dickerson and Craig James. The Mustangs have a 10-0-1 record, with the only blemish a 17-17 tie against Arkansas The Panthers will spend two weeks in Texas preparing for their first appearance in the Cotton Bowl. After a Pittsburgh press luncheon today, the Panthers will fly the issue.
