

Steelers looking ahead

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Steelers, a team some say has tried to live in the past for too long, are now looking to the future after a last-minute playoff loss to the San Diego Chargers.

And quarterback Terry Bradshaw likes what he sees.

"I still feel so excited about playing," Bradshaw said after the Chargers beat the Steelers 31-28 Sunday in a first round National Football League playoff game.

"I'm just sorry this season is over. We didn't do it today, but I like the team. We're not there yet, but we're on the right page. I can't wait for next year."

The 34-year-old Bradshaw contemplated retirement after the four-time Super Bowl champion Steelers missed the playoffs for the last two seasons. Many of the stars from those championship teams — Joe Greene, L. C. Green, Mike Wagner — had retired, and critics said the Steelers had become old and tired.

But 15 new players made the roster in pre-season camp and Coach Chuck Howley put them through the offense and the defense. The rejuvenated Steelers won all four of their preseason games and then defeated Dallas and Cincinnati in the first two weeks of the regular season.

Then came the 57-day players strike, and the Steelers weren't the same again after the season recovered. Their offense took a two-week holiday in losses to Buffalo (13-0) and Cleveland (19-0) before recovering for season-ending victories over New England and Cleveland.

"Our offense would have been 10 times better if it hadn't been for the strike," Bradshaw said.

The early weeks of the season convinced Bradshaw the Steelers can again be among the NFL's dominant teams.

"We were playing good football," he said. "The big word is attitude. We'll have such a good attitude next year."

Not dissuaded by the loss was a disappointment because last season promised so much for the Steelers.

"We had greater expectations," he said.

Running back Franco Harris, who had three 100-yard games but ran just 10 times for 33 yards and no touchdowns, agreed with Bradshaw, who said the Steelers should have been playing better football, he said.

"I saw two videotapes of that game and I've never looked at them. Someday when I'm retired from football, I'll watch the tapes and brag to my kids. That's going to follow me the rest of my life."

"The only way to take that off my shoulders is to top that game — to play in a Super Bowl and have a big game."

San Diego has been beaten in the AFC title game the past two seasons, and Bradshaw said the Chargers will have to reach the Super Bowl for their offensive excellence to be fully appreciated.

Although San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts has amassed impressive numbers for years, the Chargers have never been in the Super Bowl. Fouts completed 27 of 42 passes for 283 yards and three touchdowns against the Steelers.

"He has to win a Super Bowl. If he doesn't, then it's like Fran Tarkenton," Bradshaw said. "He's got all the stats, but he needs a Super Bowl. He has to win it."

Bowl invites may come later, advanced to early December

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO — The Sugar, Orange, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls agreed in principle yesterday to push back the late November date for issuing invitations to postseason games, perhaps as late as the first weekend of December.

The Rose Bowl, the fifth Jan. 1 game, was not invited to yesterday's session because it is a "closed" bowl — i.e., its teams are determined by the outcome of the Pacific-10 and Big Ten races. The Sugar, Orange and Cotton bowls all have one open berth annually, while the Fiesta Bowl has two.

The proposal will be presented to representatives of all 16 bowls today when they meet in conjunction with the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 77th annual convention. If adopted, it would assure the best possible matchups since invitations would not be issued until the end of a team's regular season.

Two years ago, for example, the Sugar Bowl invited No. 1-ranked Pitt, only to have the Panthers lose to Penn State after the selection date, currently the Saturday after the third Tuesday in November.

"If we announce that we're not going to select the teams until the end of the season, or the first weekend in December, and stick to it just once, everyone will fall in line," said Ben Benjamin, a member of the Orange Bowl Committee.

"We have to convince the schools we mean business," said Rox Stewart, president of the Fiesta Bowl.

Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, said yesterday's meeting was "the first time the four of us have talked eyeball-to-eyeball on this."

The four bowls agreed to come up with a formal proposal to submit to a meeting of the NCAA Postseason Football Committee in April.

Current NCAA rules permit the bowls to discuss possible participation with the schools on Nov. 1, although formal invitations may not be issued until the November date.

However, agreements are made and most bowl pairings usually are known well in advance of that date.

"This agreement will establish some credibility in the way we operate," Benjamin said. He noted that the 1983 selection date is Nov. 19 — the earliest it can be — and pointed out that some teams may have two or three games remaining after that.

"You'll end up with a product where you know it's better because you'll know what the team's (final) records are," said Stephen A. Lynch, president-elect of the Orange Bowl.

The four bowls also expressed their opposition to proposed legislation authored by the policy-making NCAA Council to do away with the Nov. 1 contact date.

"Maybe we'll establish a contact date as part of it (our) league agreement," Holmes said. "Everything we've done about it more stringent than what exists in the NCAA right now. The Nov. 1 date is the most workable rule that's ever existed."

In an eight-page ruling granting the city's request for a preliminary injunction, Lane also asserted that playing the three games in Denver would shake the morale of Yankees fans as well as New York City's "standing at the top."

"The Yankees stripstips belong to New York City," Lane said. "The Yankees belong to New York City, a state Supreme Court judge yesterday barred the New York Yankees from moving their first three home games in 1983 to Denver."

Acting Justice Richard S. Lane said he agreed with New York City officials that the baseball team would be violating its Yankee Stadium lease by playing the Detroit Tigers in Denver on April 11, 12 and 13 — when the Yankees are scheduled to play at home.

"Team owner George Steinbrenner had argued that he arranged the move because he was concerned of loyalty between the people of the city and their team. Dare one whisper the dreaded words: 'The Denver Yankees,'" he wrote.

Woodruff voted Pittsburgh MVP

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers have voted cornerback Dwayne Woodruff as the most valuable among them, the team announced yesterday.

Woodruff, 25, of Louisville, Ky., a four-year veteran, was named the Steelers' most valuable player for the strike-shortened 1982 season.

Woodruff, Steeler Ronnie Shelton, Ken Riley of the Cincinnati Bengals and Bobby Jackson of the New York Jets share the lead in interceptions in the American Football Conference. Each has five.

Woodruff was the first Steeler to lead the conference in interceptions since 1975 when Mel Brount did it.

Woodruff, a graduate of the University of Louisville with a major in business, came to the Steelers in 1979 as a sixth-round draft choice in a trade with the New England Patriots. Dave Pumphrey of the Atlanta Falcons had been a starter at left cornerback in 1981.

Steelers officials describe Woodruff as one of the fastest men on the team.

In the 14 years the Steelers have recognized a most valuable player, Woodruff is the fourth defensive back to win. He succeeds linebacker Jack Lambert as the Steelers' most valuable player.

Judge says Yankees go home

Lady fencers post successful opener

Easy, that's the best way to describe the women's fencing team's weekend match with Fairleigh Dickinson and St. Peter's University.

The Lady Lions fencers defeated Fairleigh Dickinson 11-5 and St. Peter's University 16-0. Since St. Peter's fencing program is in its first year, a 16-0 loss at the hands of the No. 1 women's fencing team in the country was by no means a surprise.

"It's a nice way to start the season," said Jana Angiolini, Penn State's No. 1 fencer and the top women fencer in the U.S., describing Penn State's season debut. "It gives us a chance to work on certain aspects of our fencing. It was a good meet for us."

Freshman Wendy Miller and Sue Page gave impressive performances in their first varsity fencing match, both winning all of their bouts.

The Lady Lions' next match will be at North Carolina this Saturday and the team will face not only North Carolina but also fencing opponents Penn and Notre Dame.

King for a day, McNeil loses record

NEW YORK (AP) — Freeman McNeil of the New York Jets was deprived of the NFL playoff rushing record yesterday when the Jets' running back was overtaken by another Jets player, Ed McCaffrey, in a 34-17 victory over the Oakland Raiders.

McNeil's 227 yards last week were a record for a running back in a single game. McCaffrey rushed for 261 yards.

"It's no big deal," said McNeil, who originally was credited with 211 yards, five better than the old record of 206 set by Steve Watson of the Oakland Raiders Sunday. It was adjusted downward to 202 when the National Football League discovered that the Oakland Raiders had inflated McCaffrey's yardage on a run in the second quarter, while McCaffrey was on the bench.

"I didn't think anything about it when they told me I had it," McCaffrey said. "I didn't think anything about it when they told me I lost it. All I do is go out and play like a professional. I don't worry about anything that I don't have any control over."

The change, which the Jets confirmed after the game, gave the record back to Keith Lincoln, who gained 206 yards for the San Diego Chargers in a 1983 American Football League game against the Boston Patriots.

McCaffrey's adjusted 227 yards left him in a tie for the second best playoff game for physical fitness and competitiveness at Outcheon of the 1975 Los Angeles Rams.

Like McNeil, Jet Coach Walt Michaels said Monday that the record didn't concern him. "Late in the game," Michaels said, "I said 'I want McNeil to run four more times and make me go to get him out of there.'"

Michaels said he would have taken him out even if he knew McNeil was near the record.

Cagers find an ace in Agudio

By PAUL ALEXANDER
Collegian Sports Writer

Freshman athletes, as a rule, aren't known for turning the world upside down at Penn State. Although freshman guard Alex Agudio hasn't yet caused any earthshaking tremors in Rec Hall for the men's basketball team, his fitting in well with the running Lions.

"When I was in high school, that's all I did is run," Agudio said. "I like to run. I don't like the slowdowntype ball, I go crazy."

Agudio, out of Whitman High School in Huntington Station, N.Y., averaged 28 points a game as his senior year and Penn State Head Coach Dick Harter said that Agudio was the player with the most offensive potential he has recruited in the last four years.

Although the Lions have about nine or 10 players that could possibly be considered starters, Agudio played very well in Penn State's long road trip over the holidays and he started in the Lion's first home game in more than a month against Atlantic Fe, St. Bonaventure last Saturday.

Agudio paced the Lions with 15 points in their 71-67 win over St. Bonaventure's Penn State conference record to 3-0. He also seemed to score the more crucial buckets down the stretch to forestall persistent Bonnies' comeback attempt.

He scored Penn State's last two field goals and it was obvious that when the pressure was on, Agudio wanted the ball. He was also given the assignment of guarding St. Bonaventure's All-American candidate, Mark Jones.

"Mentally, I think I wasn't prepared to play Jones," Agudio said.

"Because they tried building him in practice and things were going through my mind, I was all mixed up. I didn't know if I should be smart physical with him or just be smart against him."

"That's where the technique was that Agudio employed, it was very effective. Jones finished the game with 15 points and it never seemed to hurt him. He was very active. Agudio wasn't sure how he should defend the smooth 6-1 guard, he was glad that it was his assignment. I was in the same challenges," Agudio said.

Penn State's Alex Agudio (left) tries to grab the ball from a St. Bonaventure player in action Saturday afternoon at Rec Hall. The 6-0 freshman has found a new and comfortable home on the court for the men's basketball team, and has made the usually difficult transition from high school to college competition without trouble.

"I don't ask any questions, if I'm supposed to play a guy, I just go out and do it. I don't know where the guy is. I don't care if he's a senior. I don't care if he's 35 and still in college. Hey, it's my job. I just go out and play."

Against the Bonnies, he sure did play. Agudio played for all but three minutes of the contest and coupled with watching Jones and bringing the ball up the court against the very aggressive Bonnie zone press, Agudio had a pretty bad chest cold and he was tired.

"I got a cold, but I was OK," Agudio said. "I was sort of barfed out there, but definitely I could go 40 minutes. I was just a little tired, but I didn't let the coach because I find it, I think I'll be hitting 20 every game. My jump shot ran away from me. I don't know where it's at. Did I leave it at home or in my dorm room, I just got to find it."

Even without his jumper, Agudio is still confident offensively. He goes to the hoop well and he said if he keeps taking his jumper, it'll be back. He also had a bit of a warning for future Lion opponents. He said that if he does get it back... "He didn't even finish the sentence, but his evil grin certainly suggested that he was pretty sure that he'd be sticking the ball in the hoop with a great deal of regularity. The Lions could be in for quite a treat. If Agudio has some luck at the post and have to find my jump shot. Once I
