

Bell workers' return sparks big celebration

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — An atmosphere of celebration prevailed yesterday at Bell of Pennsylvania offices as weary supervisors greeted union members with open arms after a 21-day strike.

"Everyone was falling on each other," Bell spokesman Tom Dudley said. "I've never heard 'welcome back' said so many times."

Managers treated operators to free coffee and greeted them with welcome signs at Bell's state administrative headquarters in Philadelphia.

The workers were just as glad to be back.

"I loved coming back. I missed it," said Winnie Buck, a senior supervisor.

She said she had received calls from customers who dialed "0" just to wish the operators well.

Managers, many unfamiliar with union members' jobs, filled in as repairmen, installers and operators during the walkout by 19,300 union members in Pennsylvania.

The strike ended early Sunday morning when officials from Bell and the Federation of Telephone Workers signed a tentative agreement.

Three national unions reached agreements with American Telephone & Telegraph Aug. 21, and two of three Pennsylvania unions reached local agreements Aug. 23.

Group to pick new vice president

University President Bryce Jordan has appointed a search and screen committee to nominate candidates for the new University position of executive vice president.

Although created by the trustees in 1971, the executive vice presidency had not been filled until Jordan appointed James B. Bartoo, dean of the University's Graduate School, to the position on an acting basis. Jordan made the appointment on July 1, the first day of his term.

At that time, Bartoo said he would not retain the position because he plans to retire in December.

Jordan sought nominations for the search committee in early August from various University groups, including the Undergraduate Student Government, the Graduate Student Association and the Council of Branch Campus Student Governments.

The procedure to find nominees for the position cannot be discussed until the committee meets with Jordan on Sept. 9, said Merrill Noble, University professor of psychology and chairman of the committee.

Noble said he has neither spoken with Jordan about the committee nor talked to the president before being named as chairman.

Jordan announced the committee members last week.

Sharon E. Schucker, (senior-rehabilitation education), will serve as undergraduate student representative. Also serving are Susan Twombly, doctoral student in higher education, and Donald Dortzo (junior-aerospace engineering), who previously attended the University's New Kensington campus.

Committee members also include: Stephen Benkovic, Evan Pugh professor of chemistry; Herbert Cole Jr., professor of plant pathology; Bruce Murphy, associate professor of political science; Helen A. Guthrie, professor of nutrition; Alphonse LeureduFree, associate professor of anatomy at the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center.

Also, Lita L. Schwartz, professor of educational philosophy at Ogontz Campus, and August H. Simonsen, assistant professor of environmental science at McKeesport Campus.

In addition, John M. Lilley, dean of Behrend College; Eugene J. Kelley, dean of the College of Business Administration; Robert D. Arbuckle, executive director of New Kensington Campus, and George Lovette, associate senior vice president for finance and operations.

Because the person who serves as executive vice president will work closely with the president, Jordan said he wants to be able to ultimately choose, with the approval of the University Board of Trustees, that man or woman.

An advertisement that appeared first in the New York Times on Aug. 14 said: "the executive vice president relates directly to the president, acts for the president in his absence and also is the chief academic officer of the University."

Setting an Oct. 15 deadline for receiving nominations or applications, the advertisement said the nominees for the position should have "strong academic credentials and broad successful experience as an academic administrator. Nominees should also have familiarity with the diverse missions of a comprehensive research university."
