Another 'Rocky' sequel expected, 'E.T.' star says 'Stop at one'

From the Associated Press LOS ANGELES -- Christopher Cross says there are two reasons why it took him three years to release the followup album to his phenomenally successful debut record: "Arthur' and my divorce." Cross sang the theme to the 1981 Dudley Moore-Liza

Minnelli film, "Arthur," and it earned an Academy Award for best song for its four co-writers: Cross, Carole Bayer

Christopher Cross

Though the song only took one night to compose, Cross says it ended up occupying much of his time for the next year, mainly in foreign appearances. He says it was the film song and not his 1980 "Christopher Cross" LP —which earned three Grammy Awards and sold more than 4 million copies — that made him an international pop star. Meanwhile, his seven-year marriage ended in divorce in "It was time-consuming and emotionally consuming," the 32-year-old singer-songwriter says. LOS ANGELES - You won't hear guitarist-singer George Benson crooning lyrics that are sexy or even suggestive because it goes against his religious beliefs.

Benson, a Jehovah's Witness, says his refusal to sing songs with racy lyrics has caused problems with his record producers during the song selection process. He recalls tangling with Grammy Award-winning prolucer Quincy Jones during sessions for his hit 1980 album,

"He didn't see anything wrong with songs that suggested bedroom-type stuff," Benson said. "But I did. So hings became a bit strained. "I'm not blaming Quincy," Benson adds. "He was just Jones and Benson haven't worked together since. Arif weight boxer Rocky Balboa, says Al Newman, a spokesman for MGM-UA. Stallone will also star and direct, with a production start date tentatively set for November 1984. Published reports say Stallone is asking $15 million to put on his gloves again, but Newman said he had no

Meanwhile, Stallone has two other acting commitments before a final decision is made on "Rocky IV."

LOS ANGELES — How about a round of applause for Harry, the mutt in the Saint Bernard suit. He's the real doggie star of the horror movie based on Stephen King's Bernards are too busy carrying little kegs of brandy in the snow to act rabid. Actually, they're very lousy at it. Producers Daniel Blatt and Robert Singer had to turn to bogus Bernards. Cujo is played by four real Saint Bernards, various mechanical Saint Bernards and Harry the dog in the Saint Bernard costume.

Harry's ability to snarl on command has earned him mad dog roles in "Amityville Horror" and a number of television productions. Harry spent 13 weeks bulging his eveballs and foaming at the mouth inside a specially made Saint Bernard suit that covered his entire body. Offscreen, Harry is a "cuddly little mutt," according to his owner, Karl Miller, a veteran Hollywood trainer. Miller said he rescued Harry, a mixed Black Labrador and Great Dane, from an animal center five years ago for

Even though the Steven Spielberg film was the biggest moneymaker in movie history, the actress says: "I'd like to see 'E.T.' remain a classic. There's no reason why every hit film must have a sequel. After all, there was no 'Wizard of Oz II.'"

Nor did Hollywood make sequels to other classics, such as "Gone With the Wind," "Casablanca," "It Happened One Night," "The African Queen," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Shane," "From Here to Eternity" or "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

And we bet you didn't know Penn State offered over 325 activities...

Don't over look a tremendous resource you have at University Park; the opportunity to participate in any of more than 325 student organizations. The effort you make has a good chance of rewarding both your academic life and your sense of personal

Student organizations provide a good means of enriching your time. Be it a fund drive, field trip, or sports marathon, the activity you are involved in will supplement the time you spend immersed in a textbook, library carrel, or language lab.

You may want to stay within your major by picking a professional student organization in your field. Then again, you might take the opportunity to explore something entirely different: another culture, a new game, or the out-of-doors.

Involvement in a student organization is the time spent on yourself, reflecting your personal interests Also, planning and conducting projects with your peers provides a valuable experience for "real world" activities. And don't think that as a newcomer you aren't invited! Each of the organizations listed below extends an enthusiastic welcome to all students. They need your support. Student Activities Office, 202 HUB, 865-2563

Literally hundreds of student activites are available at Penn State. They are coordinated by the Office of Student Activities through four administrative divisions: Hetzel Union Building Operations, Associated Student Activities (the financial management service for student organizations), Student Activities, and Greek Life.

The Student Activities staff is prepared to provide information which supplements that which appears in this summary. If yo want to join one of the organizations or even form a new group, visit the Student Activities office. Available to enhance the organizations' performance is a number of brochures, including a Publicity Manual for Student Organizations, Leadership Manual, and Associated Student Activities Treasurer's Guide and the Student Organization Directory.

At the request of student groups, staff members provide leadership training in communication skills, decision-making, program planning, goal setting, and financial management.

GREEK ORGANIZATIONS

Penn State has 50 active fraternities, most of which have houses in State College or on campus. The University's nineteen sororities have floors and suites in the residence halls on campus. Each chapter is distinct from the others, though a certain philosophy is shared by all: a philosophy involving goals of friendship, academic achievement, social enjoyment, athletic endeavor, and an interest in the welfare of others.

Penn State's fraternities and sororities are known for their charitable and philanthropic projects. These range from fund-raising drives for various individual chapter activities, the Greeks as a whole sponsor special events which benefit the entire community. Two of these are Homecoming (the Greeks brought back the Homecoming parade, a tradition which had been discontinued) and the Dance Marathon (the proceeds go to charity). When groups select members, each uses its own criteria. Some look for students majoring in specific fields, having certain career interests, or engaging in particular extracurricular activities. Other groups seek diversity in members' backgrounds and goals. But members of all groups experience the sense of brotherhood and sisterhood through sharing common concerns ove grades, studies, and social interests. Through their membership in fraternities and sororities, most Greeks develop lifelong
