

Primary countdown: campaign covers state

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale promised yesterday that the Three Mile Island nuclear plant would remain closed if he is elected president, while Gary Hart campaigned among unemployed steelworkers and the Rev. Jesse Jackson said he could not muzzle supporters, even when they threaten violence.

"I have no problem disassociating myself from violence or threats of it," Jackson said two days before Pennsylvania's Democratic presidential primary.

But he said attempts to impose remarks by a supporter, Minister Louis Farrakhan of the National of Islam, into his campaign were a bit unfair.

In a radio speech, Farrakhan had threatened a black Washington Post reporter who disclosed that Jackson had referred to Jews as "Hymies" and New York City as "Hymietown."

"I have no ability to muzzle a surrogate who wants to make a contribution," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"That statement certainly was not a campaign statement or a campaign-authorized statement."

Jackson campaigned in Philadelphia yesterday while his Democratic presidential rivals crisscrossed the state looking for votes in the primary tomorrow, when 172 delegates will be at stake.

Going into the Pennsylvania contest, Mondale leads Hart in delegates, 916.8 to 540. Jackson is a distant third with 141.2.

A Washington Post-ABC poll taken Wednesday through Friday found Mondale and Hart dead even in Pennsylvania, with 41 percent each. Jackson was a distant third with 12 percent. The poll, based on interviews with 454 registered Democrats, has a margin of error of 5 percentage points.

Mondale traveled yesterday to

Middletown, Pa., the site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident, and told supporters, "I will guarantee" that the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant would remain shut if he is elected president.

Referring to the Metropolitan Edison Co., which operated TMI at the time of the March 1979 accident, he asked, "What strange logic . . . justifies giving them a license to run a nuclear power plant when a meltdown could kill thousands of people?"

In his prepared remarks, Mondale recalled sitting in the White House as vice president when the TMI accident occurred. He said it was a "desperate, scary moment, and thank God it worked out without people being subjected to a meltdown."

He charged that Hart has taken "about three different positions" on whether the plant should be reopened.

Hart, meanwhile, was in Western Pennsylvania, trying to nibble at Mondale's labor support. He told unemployed steelworkers that he would provide government-guaranteed loans to modernize aging plants and factories.

"But every cent of those loans would have to be put into modernizing equipment and training people," he said.

As part of the plan, he added, workers would have "guaranteed jobs" if they participated with managers in negotiations for these loans and conditioned their wage increases on productivity increases.

Throughout the campaign, Mondale has been highlighting Hart's votes against the government-guaranteed loans for Chrysler Corp.

Appearing on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," Hart said the Chrysler bailout was "a partial success. A lot of people lost their jobs under that reorganization."

He said the difference between his proposals and those of Mondale was that, "Walter Mondale did not have a policy to reorganize the entire auto industry and I do."

Hart charged that Mondale, as vice president, already had four years to try to get "the economy of Pennsylvania and this country back on its feet and it didn't work."

He pledged to reduce unemployment by implementing a policy to rebuild "this country's basic facilities through the private sector." Contracts would require companies to hire a fixed percentage of the unemployed, he said.

After big losses in the New York primary and Wisconsin caucuses last week, Hart needs a victory in Pennsylvania to regain the momentum he had after a string of victories in New England.

The Colorado senator emerged as the victor from Wisconsin's non-binding presidential primary Tuesday, but no delegates were at stake. At the caucuses, Mondale outpolled him by better than 2-to-1 and won 42 delegates to 23 for Hart.

Phi Psi 500 wins despite the cold

The Big Brother/Big Sister program of Centre County will receive almost $25,000 that Phi Kappa Psi fraternity raised during its 16th annual Phi Psi 500, the overall chairman said yesterday.

Mike Smoyer said despite problems with the cold weather and occasionally rowdy crowds, things went well during the 1.1 mile race through downtown State College.

"Overall, things went pretty well considering conditions," Smoyer said. "Clean-up went really smooth. It was really easy this year."

State College Police Chief Elwood A. Williams Jr. said the crowd was relatively well-behaved. However, there were a few minor incidents of vandalism, criminal mischief, disorderly conduct and underage drinking.

The State College Police Department reported that 20 citations were given out during the event. The citations were mainly for disorderly conduct.

The police also reported that one individual was apprehended and taken into police custody. The individual was cited for disorderly conduct, harassment and criminal mischief.

Smoyer estimated that 10,000 to 15,000 people watched the Phi Psi 500, which was held in cooperation with the Stroh's Brewery Company.

The race began about noon Saturday at the fraternity, 403 Locust Lane. The start of each heat of the race was signaled by Bruce Parkhill, University head basketball coach.

Participants ran to six bars along the route and drank either a beer or soda at each stop.

Participating bars were: The Phyrst, 111 1/2 E. Beaver Ave.; the Brickhouse Tavern, Humes' Alley; Nello's, 128 E. College Ave.; The All-American Rathskeller, 108 S. Pugh St.; the Shandygaff Saloon, 212 E. College Ave.; and The Brewery, 233 E. Beaver Ave.

Winners in each division were:
• Master's division: first place, Chuck Strauss, 6:45; second place, Don Lykens 6:55, and third place, David Petersen, 7:56.

• Women's division: first place, Barb Schulman, 9:02; second place, Maryann Rapp, 10:06, and third place, Donna Wills, 12:35.

• Fraternity division: first place, Bill Ziegler of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, 6:07; second place, Steve Gross of Tau Kappa Epsilon, 6:31, and third place, Kirk Oates of Tau Kappa Epsilon, 6:39.

• Independent division: first place, Jim Kolton, 6:06; second place, Steve Parks, 6:33, and third place John Cope, 6:39.

• Team division: first place, Tau Kappa Epsilon alumni, with a combined time of 33:09; second place, Tau Kappa Epsilon, 33:52, and third place, Beta Theta Pi fraternity, 35:53.

• Sorority Relay division: first place, Pi Beta Phi sorority; second place, Delta Gamma sorority, and third place, Chi Omega sorority.

• Anything Goes division: first place, the Alpha Gamma Rho

Fraternity Fling hosts cited for disorderly conduct

By WILLIAM SCOTT
Collegian Staff Writer

Delta Upsilon's First Fraternity Fling held yesterday afternoon at 229 Locust Lane, ended prematurely when State College Police cited the fraternity for disorderly conduct.

Cpl. Richard Garris said police first warned the fraternity at 12:33 p.m. and asked that the noise be decreased. Within the next two hours, Garris said, the police received more than 25 complaints about the noise and responded at 2:55 p.m. to issue the citation.

The citation carries with it a fine of up to $300 and a fraternity representative will have to appear before District Justice Clifford H. Yorks within 10 days, Garris said.

'It was handled like any other complaint, whether a party or at a fraternity house.'

— Cpl. Richard Garris, State College Police officer

The event, sponsored by the Miller Brewing Company and WQWK radio, was to have included three local bands and was scheduled from noon until 5 yesterday. Because of the citation, however, only the band Azgard was able to play in its entirety. Delta Upsilon social chairman Henry Carl and Nittany Beverage representative Chris Zarus, who handles Miller-sponsored events, estimated that Miller will lose about $1,000 because of the event's premature ending.

Students really make this town and they (police) turn around and do something like this.'

— Henry Carl, Delta Upsilon social chairman

Garris said about 2,000 students were at the event when the citation was issued.

"It was handled like any other complaint, whether a party or at a fraternity house," Garris said. "The lawn was packed, plus there were other people sitting across the street."

The fraternity had secured an activities permit from the State College borough to conduct the event, but the permit does not include a noise variance. Carl said, however, he was "really disappointed" about the citation, and the way police handled the situation.

"We had everything organized and the crowd was so passive. Students really make this town and they turn around and do something like this," he said. Carl added that State College Mayor Arnold Addison was contacted about the matter, but that he said he was unable to help. Addison was unavailable for comment.

Undergraduate Student Government President Emil Parvensky, who was present when police arrived, said "We even asked if we could get a noise meter out here" to determine if the music was exceeding the 55 decibel limit for residential areas. The police refused, according to Parvensky. "In other words, that option wasn't available to us," he said.

Zarus also expressed his dissatisfaction with the police action: "If they would have said 'You can have it, this loud,' that would have been fine. But they didn't."

PSU student charged with theft of 2 exams

By MIKE KINNEY

A University student has been arrested by University Police Services and charged with theft of trade secrets, theft by unlawful taking or disposition and receiving stolen property.

The charges involve the alleged theft of two electrical engineering exams from the University and the subsequent sale of those exams, a police spokesman said.

David E. Schmidt (senior-nuclear engineering), 707 Stuart Hall, was arrested April 5 as a result of an investigation which is continuing, University Police officer Delmar Woodring said.

He also was charged with possessing instruments of crime (lock picks); possession, sale, distribution, manufacture or advertisement of intercepting devices (wire tapping equipment).

In addition, he was charged with unlawful possession of a controlled substance (marijuana); and possession of a controlled substance with intent to manufacture or deliver.

According to police, the items were found during a search of Schmidt's room at Stuart Hall.

"The charges were filed by the University Police as per state crime codes statutes," Woodring said.

Schmidt, 21, whose hometown is Acton, Mass., was arraigned before District Magistrate Robert May.

He is being held in lieu of $40,000 bond in Centre County Jail, Bellefonte.

The officer handling the investigation, Ronald Shreffler, was in Florida on police business over the weekend and will not be available for comment until the beginning of the week, Woodring said.

James Bartoo, acting executive vice president and University provost, issued the following official University statement Friday afternoon:

"We have reason to believe some examinations may have been compromised. We are taking steps to tighten security and to replace those exams not yet administered that may have been compromised.

"The University's Council of Deans will be advised of the situation (today). Our office of Conduct Standards is also looking into the matter because the allegations involve student violations of the University's code of conduct regarding academic integrity."

Astronaut unable to retrieve satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Spacewalker George Nelson failed yesterday in three daring attempts to retrieve a costly, crippled satellite for repairs in space, and flight directors said their only hope was to save it by using the shuttle's robot crane.

Frank Cepollina, director of the rescue mission said if the capture was accomplished with the shuttle arm within 24 to 36 hours there would be little damage to the expensive solar observatory called Solar Max.
