Unknown, undefeated Thomas

By TIM DAHLBERG AP Sports Writer

> Thomas, undefeated in 25 fights with 20 knockouts, is still a virtual unknown going into tomorrow's heavyweight title fight against Tim Witherspoon.

"He's the best kept secret around," said veteran trainer Angelo Dundee, who signed on with Thomas for the fight. "People don't know Pinklon, but he's got tons of ability and he's a great guy Thomas hopes his scheduled 12-round performance against Witherspoon for the World Boxing Council title will finally put him in the spotlight in the confused world of heavyweight boxing where three different fighters claim "They don't really know Pinklon Thomas yet because I haven't had the exposure," said the boxer. whose impressive record includes a draw with World Boxing Association champion Gerrie Coetzee "They might start knowing who I am after I win the title Friday

Thomas, 26, who now lives in Philadelphia, literally fought his way past an addiction to heroin that had plagued him since his teens in Detroit. His slow climb up the heavyweight ladder nearly seven years later will finally culminate in a title shot. "It's his job to hold his title and my job to take it," said Thomas. "I think my job will be a little harder, but my whole life has been harder. It's just been a tough go, If he wins, Thomas plans to give

Actually, Thomas has has more fights than Witherspoon although he has never figured prominently in the title picture. A quick puncher with a good left jab, he has also displayed lots of power in running up his impressive knockout re

"I feel I have more experience if you compare the guys I've fought with the guys he's fought," Thomas said. "I've always thought I had the potential to win the title, it was just a matter of doing the right things -getting enough sleep, eating right and staying away from Witherspoon, also 26, won the WBC crown in March with a 12round decision over Greg Page for the title undefeated Larry Holmes vacated in a dispute with promoter Don King.

The Philadelphia fighter, who became prominent on the heavy weight scene when he dropped a Holmes, also suffers from the same lack of recognition from most of the boxing public that still considers Holmes the only true heavyweight champion.

Even promoter Don King, who was embroiled in a money dispute with Witherspoon that prompted the champion to threaten to pull out of the fight earlier in the week, admits to as much.

"As long as he (Holmes) is out there, he's got to be considered the heavyweight champion of the world," King said.

> Witherspoon is scheduled to get $450,000 for the fight — although he says he'll be lucky to clear $50,000.
