

Demonstrators in southwest Philadelphia gather Thursday to show their support for a black family and an interracial family who were the subject of protests after they moved into a predominantly white neighborhood.

Phila. neighborhood calm after racial protests

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Calm reigned and city officials hoped the worst was over yesterday in a predominantly white neighborhood where Mayor W. Wilson Goode declared a state of emergency following protests outside two homes recently occupied by blacks.

"All's quiet," said Officer Robert Zindel at a district police station. Clergymen in the southwest Philadelphia neighborhood issued a statement Saturday calling for an end to public demonstrations while a black civil rights group called for a march after an appeal by Goode.

"We are cautiously optimistic that the worst is over and progress can be made toward a real, lasting and just peace," the Rev. William R. Yeats, chairman of the Southwest Task Force, said Saturday. The group, a community-service organization sponsored by the city, has been working with community leaders, clergy, police and city officials to maintain calm in the working-class neighborhood.

Hundreds of whites protested Wednesday and Thursday outside the homes of a black family and an interracial couple, prompting Goode's declaration Friday that prohibited more than four people from congregating except for religious or recreational purposes.

Police reported no arrests or violence since the mayor's declaration, which he appeared in court to defend on Saturday, calling the neighborhood "a time bomb."

Operation PUSH, a civil rights organization founded by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, planned a march and a motorcade through the neighborhood Saturday afternoon to show support for the two families targeted by the protests.

Stefan Presser, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney, asked a federal judge Saturday to let PUSH stage the demonstration, arguing that the mayor's order was unconstitutional.

Goode told U.S. District Judge William Ditter Jr. "I feel that we have a time bomb which is ticking, and that we have a potential to take and pull that fuse out and prevent it from exploding."

Goode, who toured the area earlier in the day, said, "If anyone marches on that neighborhood today, we will lose control." He said the two-week ban on public demonstrations was needed as a cooling-off period.

Ditter did not rule on the ACLU request as PUSH leaders agreed to call off the march, a decision praised by Benmie Swans, head of the city's Crisis Intervention Network.

About 400 people demonstrated Wednesday in front of a house recently bought by Charles Williams and Marietta Bloom, who are black, for themselves and their 7-year-old daughter.

The next night, 200 people appeared in front of the home of Gerald and Carol Fox, who moved into their row house Sunday with their two children. He is black and his wife is white.

THE ORIGINAL Italian PIZZA & RESTAURANT

SPECIAL THIS WEEK...

2 LARGE CHEESE PIZZAS only $10.99

Plus Free 6-Pack of Pepsi

ONE LARGE PIZZA WITH 1 TOPPING FOR ONLY $5.50

FREE DELIVERY AFTER 5:00 PM

222 W. Beaver (Under Beaver Plaza Apts.) 238-5513

Monday, November 25, 8:00 pm
Recital Hall

Gabrieli Canzonas

Mozart Sinfonia Concertante Members of the Pennsylvania Quintet

Tchaikovsky Symphony no. V

7:15 Introduction to the Concert with the Alard Quartet

Penn State Philharmonic
MARKAND THAKAR CONDUCTOR

FOR LOST ITEMS... THE HUB DESK

Lost and Found

GREAT FOOD RELAXED ATMOSPHERE

HOSS'S
Steak and Sea House

PERFECT STEAKS NEVER FROZEN

The area's only steakhouse with its own in-house butcher.

FRESH-COOKED SEAFOOD

Shrimp, scallops, haddock, flounder, crab cakes, and langoustines.

Over 21 steaks and seafood entrees, including our famous 12 oz. #1 only $8!

Giant baked potato, French fries or a vegetable with every Dinner entree.

Fresh salad bar and homemade soups with your entree.

Warm-from-the-oven, fresh-made bread and icing-covered raisin bread.

Daily 10:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday to 10:30 p.m.

STATE COLLEGE
1450 N. Atherton St. (Rt. 222)

ALTOONA SELINGROVE DuBOIS CHAMBERSBURG NEW CASTLE GREENSBURG INDIANA BEDFORD DUNCANVILLE JOHNSTOWN

IBM

PORTABLE PERSONAL COMPUTERS

Are available for pick-up at General Stores.

Fri. Nov. 22, 1985 — 8:30 am - 3:00 pm
Mon. Nov. 25, 1985 — 8:30 am - 3:00 pm
Tue. Nov. 26, 1985 — 8:30 am - 3:00 pm

Receipted order form a must for pick-up.

25% OFF Layaway Now for Xmas!

Pulsar
The world knows a great watch when it sees one.

Hummel Jewelers
125 South Allen St.
State College, PA 16801
237-3896

DOMINO'S PIZZA

Buy any 12" 1-item pizza and 2 Pepsis for only $5.00

Good only 11AM-3PM one coupon per pizza

Expires 11/27/85

North: 237-1414 South: 234-5655

1104 N. Atherton 421 Rear E. Beaver Ave.

our drivers carry less than $20 limited delivery area offer good only at participating locations customer pays applicable sales tax

Bubba's BREAKAWAY

237-7314

Expires 11/27/85

Open: 11 AM for Lunch Till 2 AM at Night FRI.-SAT. TIII 3 AM

FREE 16 oz. Pepsi®, Mountain Dew®, or Diet Pepsi® with the purchase of your favorite 14" or 18" Bubba's Sub

HOW EFFECTIVE IS USA?

Voice your opinions about the Undergraduate Student Gov't Senate & Academic Assembly at an OPEN FORUM

• Nov. 25 • 7 to 9 p.m. • 318-319 HUB

Help Us Help You!

sports

Penn State declaws Panthers in 31-0 romp

By MARK ASHENFELTER
Collegian Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — For the Pitt Panthers, the game represented one last chance to gain some respect. If they could have upset the football team for the second time in as many seasons, a bowl bid might have been waiting. A win also would have given the critics who want to fire Head Coach Foge Fazio something to think about.

Visiting Penn State, however, had respect and much more on the line Saturday evening at Pitt Stadium.

Although they had accepted an Orange Bowl bid to meet Oklahoma nearly two hours before kickoff, a loss would have dropped the Lions from the No. 1 spot in the polls, severely damaging the team's hopes of its second national championship in four years.

Early in the contest it appeared that the Panthers were going to spoil the Lions' holiday plans. Despite holding a 7-0 lead midway through the second quarter, the team was having problems with the Pitt defense.

Suddenly, almost shockingly to the 60,134 spectators who jammed Pitt Stadium, the Lions scored two touchdowns in a span of 19 seconds and then cruised to a 31-0 victory.

The victory secured the 1-0 Lions' fifth undefeated, untied regular season since Joe Paterno became the head coach in 1966. More importantly to the players, it meant Penn State will be playing for its second national title in four years when it faces the No. 5 Sooners (a 27-7 winner over

No. 3 Nebraska Saturday), on New Year's Night in Miami.

The Panthers dominated the scoreless first quarter, holding the ball nearly four minutes longer than the Lions and limiting Penn State's offense to 26 yards in 16 plays.

"They stuck a couple of blitzes in there with their linebackers that really gave us trouble with the pass," Paterno said of Pitt's first-quarter defense. "We had gone into the football game wanting to try and throw the ball early, to try and get (Pitt's defense) loosened up."

"We weren't getting any pass protection, so we just had to put our backs and go... we made up our minds that we were going to have to run on them."

And it was a seven-yard run by tailback D.J. Dozier that got the Lions on the scoreboard at 13:46 of the second quarter. However, the Lions still appeared lethargic as the six-minute mark approached.

Then it happened.

On a third and six from the Penn State 40, fullback Tim Manoa took the handoff on a draw play and quickly broke through the Panther line. Manoa cut down the left sideline and left the Panthers staring in disbelief as he outraced cornerbacks John Lewis and Terry Austin for a 69-yard touchdown.

"I came through the hole and I saw the big hole and my eyes just opened up," Manoa said. "I said 'I've got to do it.' I saw the guy coming from the side and I thought he was going to catch me. I went for it and I got it."

The ensuing kickoff was returned to the Panther 28, but a clipping penalty brought the ball back to the 14. On the next play, Pitt quarterback John Congemi was hit by the Lions' Don Graham as he backpedaled into the Penn State end zone. Congemi fumbled the ball and inside linebacker Pete Gifopoulos recovered for the score.

"It felt good," the 6-2, 243-pound native of Hamilton, Ontario said of his touchdown. "I haven't had one since high school."

The quick scoring spree was completed when Massimo Manca converted his 27th extra point attempt of the season. The Lions' 14 points in 19 seconds ended the game for all intents and purposes, but the Panthers had a final gasp as the half drew to a close.

Pitt regained the ball and drove from its own 42 to the Lion seven with four seconds left. Congemi's pass to Chucky Seales was incomplete in the back of the end zone, but it was ruled that Duffy Cobbs interfered on the pass as time expired.

The Panthers had one last chance on an unlined down from the Lion two. Fullback Darrell Stone took the handoff and, for a brief moment, had a massive hole through the middle of the line and appeared headed for the touchdown that could revive Pitt.

However, as Stone lunged for the end zone, he was met by linebacker Rogers Alexander, who seemed to materialize out of nowhere. Alexander drove Stone back and then Ray Bob White (34) pressures Pitt quarterback John Congemi in Saturday night's game at Pitt Stadium. White and the rest of the Penn State defense held the Panthers scoreless to chalk up the Lions' second shutout in their last five games.

Penn State's Tim Manoa (44) outraces the Pitt defense to the end zone in Saturday night's game at Pitt Stadium. Manoa's 69-yard TD run in the second quarter was one of the key plays in the Lions' 31-0 victory over the Panthers. Penn State now faces Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl in Miami on Jan. 1.

Lions' season silences critics

By CHRIS LINDSLEY
Collegian Sports Writer

After losing to Pitt 31-11 to end last season with a mediocre 6-5 record, it was time for Joe Paterno to do some soul searching.

What had gone wrong in season-ending beatings by Notre Dame (44-7) and Pitt? Paterno's teams had always gotten better as the season progressed, not worse.

After the Pitt debacle he called his players a "bunch of babies," saying there was one person to blame for that, and that was himself.

"I didn't do a good job for my football team last year coming down the stretch," Paterno said. "I tried to do a good job for my coaching staff. I didn't give them a chance to coach... I did give them a chance to coach, but in my mind it was me — it wasn't the kids." Whoever it is, it was Paterno's worst record since his first team went 5-5 in 1966, and for the first time many questioned whether Paterno might be losing his touch after 19 years at the helm.

And with the 1985 Lions opening up at Maryland, ranked by some as high as No. 1 in pre-season polls, many questions could be answered if Penn State opened up 1-0.

The Lions did score a come-from-behind 20-18 triumph at Maryland, and the rest, as they say, is history.

Of any of Paterno's past squads, this one is perhaps most representative of the former Brown quarterback, who has the best winning percentage of any coach with 12 or more years experience.

Paterno has long advocated that kicking and defense win games and in those areas Penn State has been close to perfect.

Placekicker Massimo Manca has hit on 21 of 26 field goal attempts, and his roommate and punter John Bruno has been the model of consistency all season, averaging 42.9 yards per punt.

And while the offense has struggled throughout the season, the defense has been the major force in the Lions' 11-0 record and No. 1 ranking.

Repeatedly the defensive 11 has stopped the opposition with the game on the line, and has caused 36 opponent turnovers, while the Penn State offense has turned the ball over just 20 times, for a +16 takeaway margin on the season, compared to a -4 last season.

"Our defense is a year older, those kids all played a tough schedule last year," Paterno said. "I think you have to give them credit... I think that we've had good kids who've challenged them. They've got a lot of character. They were wanted to be good, and they've been mature."

Mature may be an understatement. In their last five games, the first-team defense has given up but one touchdown, a 54-yard run by Boston College's Ken Bell while shutting out West Virginia and Pitt in the process.

But for Paterno, who completed his fifth unbeaten regular season as Lions' mentor in style by truncating arch-rival Pitt 31-0 in Pittsburgh, didn't expect such a big turnaround so soon.

"We've always talked national championships," Paterno said. "I tried to tell some people a year ago, in the middle of the year, that we are always trying to build a club that will be a national championship contender for every two or three years... I think we are a little bit ahead of where I thought we would be since they've never had another year of eligibility if they want it."

After last season, however, national championships were the furthest things from Penn State supporters' minds. For the first time since 1970 the Lions weren't going to a bowl game, and Paterno was the first to admit that that squad had a lot of work ahead if it was to be a competitive football team.

But for offensive guard Todd Moules, a member of Penn State's only national championship team, he knew the talent was there.

"I thought about it this summer," Moules said. "I thought this team had a lot of potential as hard as it was working, and the togetherness that we had on this team, and so far it's really worked out for us."

For quarterback John Shaffer, once the 1985 Lions took the field he felt there was no limit to how far they could go.

"It kind of slapped us in the face that first game when we realized how good we were," Shaffer said, "and we felt that if we could continue to play the games and work hard, we'd have every confidence that when Saturday came along, we'd win the football game."

"That confidence has been demonstrated seemingly game after game, as Penn State has come from behind six times this year to pull out victories, and when things need to get done, no one has done a better job than Shaffer."

Shaffer hasn't lost a game he's started since seventh grade, and he's played 110 games.

Paterno see Paterno, Page 12

Pitt's John Lewis (4) vents his frustrations on teammate Darrell Woods late in Saturday night's game. The 31-0 Penn State victory ended the Panthers' season at 5-1 and left them once again wondering what went wrong.

Pitt players confused after loss

By CHRIS RAYMOND
Collegian Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — When Pittsburgh left the field for the locker room Saturday after a 31-0 loss to No. 1 Penn State, the overriding emotion among the players was not one of frustration, but confusion.

For as the Panthers quietly shed their uniforms and returned to civilian dress, they had time to reflect on their season and a number of questions for which they had no answers — questions concerning the tenure of Head Coach Foge Fazio (25-18-3), questions concerning their 5-5 finish and questions concerning the game they had just lost.

Less than four hours earlier, the Panthers had entered the contest with high hopes for an upset and an opportunity to recapture a little respect, but true to the pattern they had followed all season, they quickly shut down those hopes with careless mistakes.

"We just played very, very sloppy and Penn State took every advantage they had," Fazio said afterwards. "We just made too many dog-gone mistakes — too many penalties, interceptions, fumbles — we just couldn't put anything together."

The Pitt defense controlled the pace of the game for the first 15 minutes of play, sacking Lion quarterback John Shaffer three times to set the Lions back a total 26 yards and give the Panther offense excellent field position. However, the offense could muster no more than three first downs in the first quarter.

"We had great field position in the first quarter and we just stopped ourselves," Fazio said. "You don't get the ball in that kind of field position against Penn State and not take advantage of it and we just didn't do that."

In fact, the Panthers' strongest scoring threat didn't surface until time had already expired in the second quarter. Moments after Lion cornerback Duffy Cobbs was called for interference in the endzone, Pitt fullback Darrell Stone took a handoff on second and goal from the two-yard line and raced toward a gaping hole in the Penn State line. The 6-1, 215-pound senior was stopped dead in his tracks one yard later when inside linebacker Rogers Alexander appeared out of nowhere to smother the play.

Stone's brief glimpse into the endzone would be the last for any Panther this season as the Penn State defense closed the door on the Pitt offense in the final stanza.

The Panthers' impotent attack was typical of how things had gone all season, quarterback John Congemi said.

"We took the ball and stuffed it down the field and didn't get any points out of it," Congemi said. "There's not many teams in the nation that take six-, seven-, eight-minute drives and don't get any points out of them."

"(This season) it was always something — a penalty, a dropped pass, a mistake on the line, a mistake made or a mistake someone else made — that prevented us from putting the ball in the endzone. If we could have just put our finger on that, we could have pushed our record up."

While keeping the Panthers off the scoreboard, the poor play of the Pitt attack contributed to the Lions' offensive production in the endzone for a converted two of five Panther turnovers into 10 points when inside linebacker Pete Gifopoulos recovered a Congemi fumble in the endzone for a touchdown and kicker Massimo Manca booted a 39-yard field goal after a 30-yard interception return by Lance Hamilton.

"The Pitt defense, ranked fourth in the nation against the rush, experienced problems similar to those of the offense as Penn State running backs carried for 223 yards on the day, well above the 91.3-yard average for Panther opponents.

Joe Paterno

arts: the next best thing to being there!