

Turkey visits White House

President Reagan is introduced to Wilfred, a turkey flown in from Minneapolis and presented in a Rose Garden ceremony yesterday by his owner, John Holden. The event is sponsored annually by the National Turkey Federation. (Wilfred won't be sacrificed for the First Family's Thanksgiving dinner, by the way; he is being donated to a farm).

Lawsuit tries to link cigarettes and cancer

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Write

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — A widow who filed cigarette-linked wrongful death lawsuit against tobacco company described her husband's last years of life on bottled oxygen and testified yesterday that he said "smoking wasn't at fault." Elayne Galbraith, the first witness called by lawyer Melvin Belli in the lawsuit against R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., told jurors her husband, John, smoked three packs of cigarettes a day during most of their married life and sometimes awoke during the night to smoke. "If he woke up during the night, as soon as he put his feet to the ground, he lit a cigarette," she said. Galbraith said her husband smoked Camels until the early 1960s when he switched to Winstons, which had filters. "He had read some information in magazines ow do you present yourself on paper to a prospective employer? Do you try to cram everything about yourself into that space that you're going to call your résumé, or do you carefully choose and measure each word and phrase to present as clear an impression as possible?

At Collegian Production we recommend the latter. By carefully weighing the effect of each word, your résumé can tell your story briefly and effectively. And if you want those words to look as good as they sound, come to Collegian Production. We have a wide variety of typefaces and formats so that you can make your résumé work for you.
