PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An Ivy League-educated dentist pleaded guilty yesterday to masterminding a multimillion-dollar cocaine ring dubbed the "supple conspiracy" and faces a possible life in prison.

Prosecutors said Dr. Lawrence Lavin, 31, crossed $5 million a month managing a drug racket whose principals included dentists, doctors, lawyers, stockbrokers, a former airline pilot and several businessmen.

About 60 people have been convicted or have pleaded guilty to taking part in the cocaine operation, said to be one of the largest ever uncovered in Philadelphia, authorities said.

The former Devon, Pa., resident pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise under the "drug kingpin" law which allows prosecutors to seize a drug dealer's illegal profits.

He also pleaded guilty to conspiring and three counts of using the telephone to facilitate a crime.

Lavin, indicted in 1984, jumped $150,000 bail but was captured May 15 in Virginia Beach, Va., where he was living under an assumed name with his wife, Marcia, and two children in a fashionable, colonial-style waterfront home with a swimming pool and hot tub.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald K. Noble said Lavin agreed then to forfeit several million dollars in illegal assets, including his $225,000 home, two new cars, an $85,000 boat and more than $1 million in stocks, bonds, mutual funds and other investments.

"It's my belief that he had been caught and that we would eventually get all assets," Noble said.

The drug kingpin statute, designed to "get the people at the very top," carries a minimum sentence of 10 years in prison and a maximum of life without parole and a $100,000 fine, Noble said.

Sentencing was scheduled for Sept. 4. Lavin remained held without bail.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tina Williams Gabrielli said Lavin was not given a plea bargain but that prosecutors will bring to the judge's attention any cooperation he might give in the continuing investigation.

Prosecutors said the ring distributed up to 175 pounds of cocaine a month in 13 states, the District of Columbia and Canada from 1978 to late 1984. Lavin and two University of Pennsylvania dental school classmates started the operation, authorities said.

Charges of accessory after the fact and related offenses against Lavin's wife were dropped earlier this year, but Noble said prosecutors reserve the right to reinstate the charges.

Girl accused of swindling her blind grandparents

HOUSTON (AP) — A 13-year-old girl has been accused of stealing more than $25,000 from her blind grandparents by using their automatic teller machine card to withdraw up to $500 a day during the past six months.

The grandparents were unaware that their funds were being depleted because their grandchild used their bank statements for them, said juvenile officer Mike Knox.

The girl, whose name is being withheld because of her age, has lived with her grandparents since her father's death in 1973.

"She is very sharp and mature for her age and very knowledgeable about money matters," Knox said.

The girl was charged Monday in juvenile court with misdemeanor theft.

"It's a very hard thing for me to do this," her grandmother said about filing charges. "But wrong is wrong no matter who does it."

The 65-year-old woman said she learned of the thefts after a store clerk called her about a credit card the girl had tried to use. The grandmother called her son, who checked their bank statements and found that $25,430 had been withdrawn between Jan. 3 and June 12.

"She said she spent the money on jewelry, stuffed animals and clothes," Knox said.

Police some of her friends learned what she was doing and demanded money to keep quiet.

A sinkhole 80 feet wide and 47 feet deep appeared on West Chestnut St. Tuesday in Macungie, Pa., about 10 miles west of Allentown. No one was injured, but about 20 families were evacuated from the area. City officials have yet to identify the cause of the sinkhole, but some are pointing the blame on mine activity in the area.

Sinkhole leaves Macungie residents agape

MACUNGIE (AP) — A huge sinkhole that swallowed up a street, a sidewalk, some small trees and parts of a parking lot continues to mystify officials in the small borough near Allentown, authorities said.

No one was hurt and other than the land, there was no major property damage, said borough secretary Clarence Mohr.

"But it sure was the darndest thing I ever saw," he said.

The hole, 80 feet wide and 47 feet deep, opened up without warning Monday at about 1:15 p.m. on West Chestnut Street, Mohr said. A mail carrier, who was interrupted by the sinkhole, could be seen in the hole.

City officials have yet to identify the cause of the sinkhole, but some are pointing the blame on mine activity in the area, Mohr said.

The borough has hired a private contractor from Allentown to determine the cause of the sinkhole, Mohr said. It will take two to four weeks to clear and repair the street, he said.

"We were very fortunate that no cars were on the street or no kids were playing in the area," Mohr said.

About 20 homes and apartments near the site were evacuated Monday evening as a precaution, said Police Chief Larry Boyer. But engineers have since determined that the hole has "stabilized and is not spreading" and all but seven families have been allowed back, Boyer said.

The affected families were asked to stay away from their residences until their utility services, which were interrupted by the sinkhole, could be restored, he said.

City officials have yet to identify the cause of the sinkhole, but some are pointing the blame on mine activity in the area, Mohr said.

Mass. college president accused of indecently assaulting student

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — A grand jury has indicted the president of Westfield State College on four counts of indecent assault and battery stemming from a complaint by a student who received a controversial $10,000 settlement from the school.

Francis J. Pilecki, 52, did not appear for arraignment yesterday on the indictment returned by a grand jury because he is hospitalized for "serious depression," said his lawyer, Robert Keefe.

Hampden County Superior Judge Lawrence J. Urbano agreed to postpone Pilecki's arraignment until July 9, and Keefe said his client will plead innocent. Urbano then sealed the indictment.

According to court records made available to The Associated Press, the assaults upon which the indictment was based took place in Westfield and involved two male victims. One of the victims was assaulted "on or before May 15, 1984," and the other "on or before Sept. 3, 1984," the records said.

Each of the charges carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. The charges stem from testimony presented to a grand jury convened when it was learned a student at the school was paid $10,000 and provided free tuition after he accused Pilecki of sexually assaulting him.

The school initially contended that the cash settlement arose from allegations of academic malfeasance by the college.

Pilecki has been on a sabbatical from his $80,000-a-year job since January. He resigned in March, but has been on paid leave until his resignation takes effect in August. Under state law, state officials must be suspended without pay upon criminal indictment.

College trustees were scheduled to meet last night, but chairwoman Jane Berry said it was unclear whether the Pilecki case would be discussed.

She said the school's lawyer, Mark Peters, had advised the board that if the president was indicted, the board could ask the Regents to suspend him. Because the indictment remained sealed, however, the board's position was unclear.

"I am very sad. I really like Frank Pilecki and he did a great deal for the college. It was a shock to find out that he has been accused of this," Berry said.

The payment to the unidentified student for "academic impairment" raised the ire of teachers at the 2,900-student school in western Massachusetts who saw it as a slight on their abilities. The alumni association, the governor and other state officials also demanded an explanation.

Rumors surrounding the payment led to the convening of a grand jury. The state attorney general's office acknowledged the student's allegations against a "top official" of the school and soon elaborated to make it clear Pilecki was the center of the probe.

Retired Superior Court Judge Rudolph Pierce is preparing his independent investigation of the affair.

Cries of stabbed man ignored

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Pleas for help by a man bleeding heavily from a stab wound went unanswered as he crawled on a door after door. He died after being found by police in a gutter, authorities said.

"Man and woman alike said someone did come to their houses, but they were afraid to open the door," said Sgt. Pete Graves.

The victim, about 30, crawled a few yards from the houses where he sought aid about 1 a.m. Tuesday, Graves said. A police officer later collapsed in a gutter a half-hour later. He died from his wounds shortly afterward in San Jose Hospital.

The officer would not speculate whether the man would have survived if one of the residents had responded.

Investigators identified the victim but withheld his name until his relatives are notified, said Sgt. Dwight Messimer.

Police have ruled out robbery as a motive for the attack because his wallet, "which had a lot of money in it," was found on the street next to him, Messimer said.

A trail of blood showed the victim staggered to the doorways of several houses before he fell, Graves said.

One resident said the man hammered on her door, but that she just heard a grumble and some speech in a language she said she didn't understand.

"I feel real bad about it," she told investigators.
