

Netwomen capture Atlantic 10 crown . . .

By LEW BOSCO
Collegian Sports Writer

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — The women's tennis team went into this week's Atlantic 10 Championship knowing it was the best team in the conference. And after the dust settled on the outdoor tennis courts of West Virginia University Saturday, everyone else knew it too.

The Lady Lions (18-4) defeated Rutgers 8-1 in the final match to claim their third-straight Atlantic 10 title. The win also marked the fifth time in the last six years that Penn State has brought the championship back to University Park.

Head Coach Jan Bortner was elated by his team's effort. "They did everything when they needed to," Bortner said. "I thought they were a little uptight in the opening games of the first sets, but once they settled down and got into a rhythm, they took control. They ended the season in style."

Penn State's road to the championship began Friday afternoon in a semifinal match against the Lexington Mountaineers of West Virginia. West Virginia earned a berth in the semis after knocking off George Washington, 8-1. The match wasn't even close. The Lady Lions blanked WVU 9-0 for the second time in as many weeks, ending any hopes the home team and its fans had of a possible upset.

No. 4 Claudia Karabedian, No. 2 Darnell Adams, No. 3 Romi Walker, No. 4 Lisa Thomas, No. 5 Kelly Nelson and No. 6 Christine Ellis were all straight-set winners in the singles matches.

In doubles, the No. 1 team of Walker and Nelson lost the first set, but then lost just one game the rest of the way, winning their match over Patti Pritt and Kathy Curvan 5-7, 6-0, 5-1. The No. 2 team of Karabedian and Caroline Pierce pitched a 6-0, 6-0 shoutout over Lena Thoren and Dana Watis, and No. 3 Thomas and Adams beat Shelley Stead and Katie Highland 6-3, 6-0.

Doubles specialist Pierce was surprised by her team's wide margin of victory. "I didn't think we would win both sets at love," she said. "We just played extremely well. They never put any pressure on us and we took it to them."

As it turned out, he ended up with the "better" part. Thomas and Ellis each won three-set thrillers over their opponents to clinch the championship for Penn State. Thomas fought off two straight match points in beating Tricia Ulicious 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, while Ellis took less than three hours to down Cathy Decker 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

"Going in I knew the key was going to be which team won the close matches," Bortner said. "Lisa and Christine were outstanding and pulled out two crucial wins for us."

All three doubles teams won their respective matches in straight sets to make the final tally 8-1 and close the book on yet another successful season. "We couldn't have finished any better than we did," Bortner said. "It's a great accomplishment to win one championship and even greater to win two in a row, but three straight is almost unprecedented. It's a great feeling."

LADY LION NOTES: Freshman Thomas finished the year with 12 straight wins and led the team with a record of 15-1. Senior co-captains Walker and Wittman finished their seasons at 13-2 and 4-3, respectively, while sophomore Adams and freshman Karabedian had 12 wins each.

Looking ahead to next season, Bortner has verbal commitments behind it, the squad went into the Rutherford Invitational with confidence and captured first place. Hosting a tournament seemed to be just what the doctor ordered for the Lions, as Penn State finished higher than 12th for the first time this spring.

Tied for second after the first round, the Lions came out determined yesterday and edged Army by one stroke for the victory.

Not only did the Lions win, but they placed four golfers in the top six. Mark Treese took first-place honors, defeating Rutgers' John Dorney on the first hole of a sudden death playoff. Dan Braun and Chris Keim tied for third, while Terry Hertzog finished sixth.

"I just told myself I could win," Treese said. "This was the most exciting I've had playing with confidence and I think with the way we played the weekend we could have won anywhere."

Head Coach Mary Kennedy was extremely pleased with the way her squad performed. "The guys deserved to win," she said. "They were ready mentally and physically to win. They knew they had to win this weekend. Knowing they can win will help them proceed with more confidence and with the feeling that they can continue to win."

His ultimate goal is to qualify for the NCAAs. I think working this winter on getting a winning attitude has finally paid off."

"I want to get revenge on West Virginia, that's our main concern," he said.

Golfers win Rutherford Invitational

It was all just a dream. It worked on Dallas, and it seems to have worked on the men's golf team.

Putting its nightmarish tournaments behind it, the squad went into the Rutherford Invitational with confidence and captured first place.

Dodgers 9, Padres 1
SAN DIEGO — Mike Marshall drove in five runs with two home runs, and Bob Welch pitched five hits in eight innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Diego Padres 9-1.

Brewers 6, Rangers 4
MILWAUKEE — Rob Deer hit a three-run homer to tie the score and Dale Svum won the game with a two-run shot as the Milwaukee Brewers rallied for five runs in the ninth inning to beat the Texas Rangers 6-4 yesterday and set an American League record with their 12th straight victory from the start of the season.

Yankees 5, Royals 0
NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Pasqua snapped a scoreless tie, and a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, hitting the New York Yankees to a 1-0 victory and a doubleheader sweep over the Kansas City Royals yesterday.

White Sox 7, Tigers 2
DETROIT — Tim Lincecum hit a home run and drove in three runs to back the sixth pitching of Floyd Bannister as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 7-2.

Red Sox 4, Blue Jays 1
TORONTO — Wade Boggs hit a home run, Ed Romero added a two-run ninth-inning single and Al Nipper pitched a five-hitter over seven innings to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Indians 3, Orioles 0
BALTIMORE — Pat Tabler drove in three runs with a pair of singles and a bases-loaded walk to help the Indians to an 8-7 victory over the Baltimore Orioles on the part of GMU gave the Lions the victory. A Penn State hit put the ball deep in the Patriots' back court. On its last hit, Schwab arched a shot high in the air which wasn't quite hard enough to get over the net.

"Once we got to it 19-13, we knew it was us," Chase said. "We've been in that situation a million times with a million teams. Pressure has become second-nature to us this season, and they didn't have that going for them."

Although the Lions weren't under much pressure Friday night against Rutgers-Newton, junior outside-hitter Dave Bitner called Rutgers' play its best of the season and welcome competition for the finals.

"I was pleased with Rutgers' play," he said. "We really needed to get a good game out of Rutgers to prepare us for George Mason (Saturday) night."

The Scarlet Knights, who lost Saturday's consolation match to East Stroudsburg, only presented a real threat in game two. The Lions jumped to a 9-4 lead, but Rutgers fought back to within one. The game was nip-and-tuck until Penn State took the lead for good at 19-12.

Spikers

"Once I rested up a bit, I came in and felt better," Chase said. "Even though it was down two points, George Mason wasn't about to roll over and die. GMU and Penn State traded points early on in game three, making the score 7-7. Penn State then made a run, using a combined block by Chase and Javier Gaspar, two net calls and a lift call on GMU to go up 11-7."

But the talents of Patriot hitters Moyo Kasim and Uvalde Acosta brought Mason back within striking distance. An Acosta kill and a Kasim stuff block made the score 11-9. Gaspar chipped an over-the-shoulder kill to put the Lions back up by three, but blasts by Patriots' Tod Tompkins, Kasim and Mike Schwob ended the tally at 12-12.

Chamberlain and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the 30,000-point club.

Before the game, Erving ended his talk with a final thanks to the fans, telling them how much they meant to him. "What he said best summed up what the 17,967 fans were trying to say to him."

"I thank you, I love you, fans, forever and a day."

Laxers

Thiel said Penn State could have held a little tighter at the end of the game. "We didn't play as well as we have in other games," Thiel said. "But it's nice to know we can play a little below our average and still come away with a win against a good team like Rutgers."

LION NOTES: The Lions are now 8-3 and return to Jeffrey Field for three night games and one day game at their usual home, Pollock Field, to end other seasons. "Penn State will host Kutztown tomorrow and Pennsylvania State on Saturday. . . . Scott McKean and Chris Dent lead the Lions in scoring with 27 and 28 goals respectively. . . . Dent is now ninth on the all-time goal-scoring list with 63 career goals. . . . Jeff Connor pumped in three more assists Saturday and is the team's offensive leader with 39 points.

There's no doubt that the men's tennis team gave a collective sigh of relief when it returned home Saturday from its last road trip. The Lions split their two weekend matches defeating Rutgers 8-1 on Friday and losing to Princeton Saturday 4-2.

The Lions wind up the regular season at home against Maryland today at 5 p.m. in the Penn State Tennis Club and on Wednesday in Penn. The coming weekend they will return to Rutgers for the Atlantic 10 Championships.

The Lions (15-14) defeated Rutgers easily, but Head Coach Holmes Cathrall said that a couple of their top players were sidelined because of injuries.

Penn State's No. 1 singles player Lee Spoungale got things rolling with a 6-2, 5-9 win over Mark Weingard. Oliver Sebastian defeated Bory Ponticello by a score of 6-2, 4-6. Adam Steinberg continued the streak with a win over Jay Kanoto, 6-2, 6-4. Penn State's only loss came at No. 4 where Bill Dollard lost a tough match in three sets to Ken Green, 1-6, 7-6, 6-2. Glenn Leach got things back in control with a 6-3, 6-0 win over Craig Nigredo and Ron Meier followed by defeating Barry Edson, 6-1, 6-1.

Spoungale teamed with Sebastian to win the No. 1 doubles match over Weingard and Ponticello 6-1, 6-2. Leach and Meier blanked Kanoto and Nigrelli, 6-0, 6-0 and Dollard and Steinberg won in three sets over Green and Vince Leach 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Rain forced the Lions indoors against Rutgers, but Cathrall said his team played well despite the slow courts.

"We just completely dominated and overpowered them," he said. "Against Princeton it was a different story. The Lions were only able to score two team points in the effort. Sebastian registered both wins, first at No. 2, singles with a 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 victory over Tim Maize and then he teamed with Spoungale to win the No. 1 doubles 8-6 in a pro-set.

Cathrall changed the lineup a little bit for the Princeton match. He said it gave his team a better chance of winning and create more incentive for the players.

Steinberg and Leach lost close three-set matches against Princeton at No. 5 and No. 6, respectively. Steinberg won his match, but lost the next two, 6-1, 6-3 to Tom Stieglmeier. Leach lost his match by a score of 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Dollard, the Lions' No. 4 singles player said winning the close singles matches was the difference and would have increased the chance of winning.

Because Yale had defeated Penn State 6-3, and beat Princeton by the same score, Cathrall thought the Lions might have a good chance of defeating Princeton.

"We thought we had a good shot at them, but you can't speak in terms of comparisons," he said. "You never know what's going to happen."

Now the Lions must face Maryland, a team Cathrall said is "one of the toughest. . . we'll face all year." He said Maryland is a national contender, full of foreign players, but he hopes the home courts will give Penn State the edge.

Dollard said that tough matches, such as today's, are a tune-up for the upcoming Atlantic 10 tournament.

"We want to get revenge on West Virginia, that's our main concern," he said.
