

Giles fires Felske, names Elia Phils' new manager

John Felske

CHICAGO — Fiery Philadelphia coach Lee Elia moved back into the managing ranks yesterday, succeeding John Felske at the helm of the faltering Phillies.

season's second-place showing was tempered by the fact the Phillies finished 2 1/2 games behind the National League East Division champion New York Mets.

Elia's contract will run to the end of the season, but Giles said he hopes to have him back next year.

Phillies coach in 1980-81, and in 1982, became manager of the Cubs when Philadelphia's Dallas Green moved into the front office with the Cubs.

Conference will deal with women in sports

Soviets may skip Seoul

MOSCOW — A Soviet television commentator suggested yesterday that the 1988 Seoul Olympics could not take place if the unrest in South Korea continues.

He then reminded viewers that the 1988 Olympics are to be held in South Korea, adding: "I think you comrades would also agree that because of reports like those we have been receiving from South Korea for a long time, almost every day, this (the Olympics) is impossible."

San Antonio's rights to David Robinson questioned as NBA draft approaches

By BILL BARNARD AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK — The San Antonio Spurs and David Robinson know what uniform he will be wearing the next two years.

What they don't know — and what Monday's NBA draft won't help resolve — is what basketball uniform he will wear by 1989.

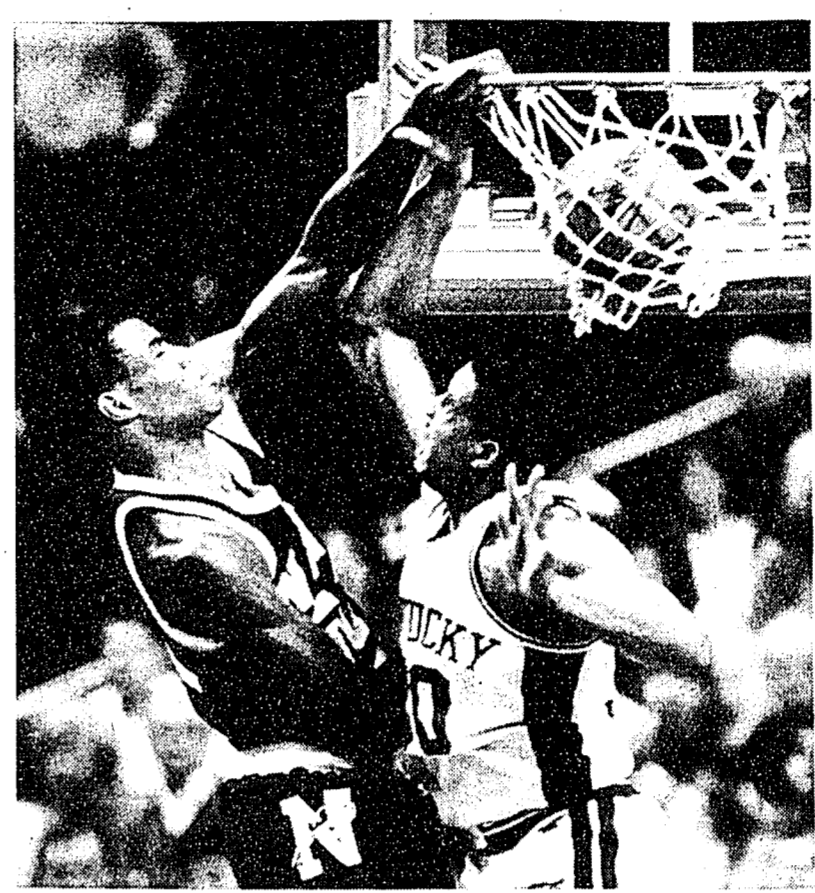

"Nothing has happened since the draft lottery to change our minds," said Angelo Drossos, Spurs president.

Under NBA rules, the Spurs would retain the rights to sign him for a year, but they contend a bylaw that predated the current collective bargaining agreement gives them more than two years to sign Robinson.

Several developments in recent weeks will complicate the Spurs' efforts to sign Robinson.

The NBA said on June 2 that a judge or an arbitrator would have to resolve any dispute over whether signing rights continue beyond a year.

"The point may become academic because we hope to sign him very quickly," Drossos said. "He's a very intelligent young man and we believe he will make a very intelligent decision."

Even if a judge gives the Spurs an extra year to sign Robinson, the NBA contends he would become a free agent eligible to sign with any NBA team after that time.

"All these things will make it a little tougher to sign him, but they that is what's going to happen," Bass said. "We will start discussions with him when he gets an agent to represent him."

Monday's first-round draft order after the Spurs is Phoenix, New Jersey, Los Angeles Clippers, Seattle, Sacramento, Cleveland, Chicago, Seattle, Chicago, Indiana, Washington, Los Angeles Clippers, Golden State, Utah, Philadelphia, Portland, New York, Los Angeles Clippers, Dallas, Atlanta, Boston and San Antonio.

"If David Robinson is out of the league for the next two years, our guy is going to be the most talked about rookie in the league," said Suns General Manager Jerry Colangelo.

Other players expected to go high in the draft are 6-11 Olden Polynice of Virginia, who played last season in Italy; 7-0 Chris Welp of Washington, 6-3 Kenny Smith of North Carolina, 6-10 Horace Grant of Clemson, 6-9 Dallas Comeyes of DePaul, 6-9 Reggie McKey of Alabama, 6-8 Ken Norman of Iowa and 6-3 Mark Jackson of St. John's.

Marty Blake, the NBA's director of scouting, said that the 1987 rookie crop is deep, but does not have the quality to make an immediate impact on the league.

"You'll have to look back at this draft in two or three years to get a real understanding of just how good it really is," Blake said. "I think you'll see an awful lot of these players in the league."

"I wish we could get Michael Jordan with the third pick the way Chicago did three years ago," Nets General Manager Harry Wetman said. "But there's no one of that caliber available."
