

Stickwomen rout Princeton, 6-0

They were looking for goals, and with a little help from senior co-captain Miriam Geller, the field hockey team got what it was searching for.

Yesterday, the 13th-ranked Lady Lions upped their record to 12-3-2 with an impressive 6-0 rout over Princeton in New Jersey. For her part, Geller scored three goals to tally her first hat trick of her career and became just the 14th woman in school history to post a three-goal game.

Six minutes later, the Lady Lions struck again when freshman Kristen Winters tallied her sixth goal of the season, taking a pass from senior Beth Stokes and blasting a shot past Tucci.

It was all Geller for the rest of the first half. At the 18:40 mark, she took a pass from Winters to put Penn State ahead by three, then at the 31:13 mark, took a feed from senior Diane Schleicher to end the half with Penn State ahead 4-0.

Although they jumped out to a formidable lead, the Lady Lions still needed to keep momentum if it were to stay in front of the Lady Tigers for another 35 minutes. Head coach Charlene Morett has been concerned with maintaining a lead throughout the season, but finally it seemed as if the Lady Lions had achieved that particular goal.

"It was very nice to get a lead and keep it," Morett said. "We really dominated this time and never even let Princeton get into the game at all."

In the second half, once again it was Worley and Geller on the attack.

Penn State's Tami Worley attempts to maneuver the ball past New Hampshire's goalie earlier this year. Worley contributed to the Lady Lion's 6-0 trampling of Princeton yesterday.

First, Worley posted her 19th goal of the season at the 16:42 mark. Unlike her usual tap-ins, this goal was a blast from the top of the circle.

The icing on the cake for both the Lady Lions and Geller came at the 25:30 mark. Taking a pass from Schleicher off of a corner shot, Geller blasted it beyond Tucci to give herself a hat trick.

Morett was pleased with her entire team as all of the bench got into the game at some point.

"Everyone finally knows where everyone else is on the field," Morett said. "Consequently, we're playing better as a team. The team has felt that they've been playing well for the past three games and this should help us out toward the end of the season."

Statistically, the Lady Lions dominated the game and capitalized on all of their opportunities. The Penn State squad recorded 29 shots on goal compared to 12 by Princeton. On corners, the Lady Lions were awarded only 10 but converted three of those chances.

Defensively, goalie Connie Ehresman did not have a busy day, turning away seven Princeton shots while substitute goalie Susan Mulvey blocked one.

The Lady Lions now must prepare for a game against Lehigh on Saturday. After this impressive win against Princeton, Morett believes her team should have a definite mental advantage.

"This shut out was really needed," Morett said. "Lehigh is a similar team to Princeton and this game will be a big confidence builder. Plus it will help us out in the long run if we keep playing like we did."

Booters reign over Ohio State, 5-0

When it rains it pours.

And so it goes with the weather here in Happy Valley, and the soccer team's scoring habits of late. The Lions put their offense in fourth gear in the second of their last three wins last night when Penn State slipped, slid and "squished" its way to a 5-0 victory over Ohio State in front of, maybe, 40 faithful, and just plain wet fans at Jeffrey Field.

Playing under what Head Coach Walter Bahr called "perfect soccer conditions," the Lions burned the Buckeye net for two early goals and added three more in the second half, including two within 15 seconds of each other.

"These are great soccer conditions," Bahr said. "We should have played better. This was a good playing field because you can slide the ball. We should have had 10 to 15 goals tonight."

The Lions definitely didn't need 10 or 15 goals. In fact, freshman midfielder Danny Kelly's first-of-two goals on the night 1:18 into the game would have been enough to put away the relatively lifeless Buckeyes and raise Penn State's mark to 8-6-3.

Less than 15 minutes later, sophomore midfielder Kamel Hadaad, who also contributed two goals to the winning effort, took a pass from forward Peter Daigle and shot at an open net to give the Lions a 2-0 lead that they rode to halftime.

Bahr said the quick start was important to his squad's victory, but after that he thought the Lions' play took a sudden turnaround.

"That first goal helped in the early going, and the second one came fairly quick after that," Bahr said. "But I thought for 20 minutes of the first half, we were absolutely terrible; we were hopeless. We got into a panic situation and certainly should have been playing with more composure when we were up by two goals. You get a couple of easy goals and there's a tendency to let down."

Kelly and Hadaad each picked up a second tally of the night about 20 minutes into the second half. Kelly capitalized first, after sophomore forward Steve Frantz went one-on-one with Buckeye keeper Norm Dellosa and ended up on the ground in a collision. Kelly picked up the loose ball and tapped it into yet another unguarded net.

Hadaad notched his sixth goal of the season just 15 ticks later with the aid of junior forward Steve Frantz, who fed Hadaad a short pass. Hadaad then lofted a powerful shot by Dellosa into the left corner of the net.

Bahr said Kelly, who has six goals on the year, has been improving with each game and predicts a bright future for the New City, N.Y. native. "Danny's a good player," he said. "I think in the next three years he's here, he'll do really well. He's a good player now and he's going to get better. He's got that burst of speed and change of pace."

Sophomore Jan Skorpen tallied his seventh score on the year when he also dumped the ball into an empty net with 12:48 to go in the game. Skorpen went one-on-one with Dellosa then tapped the ball in when the Buckeye keeper went down.

Hadaad said although OSU was not a bad team, the Lions simply dominated the play, especially at the mid-field area.

"We dominated up front, especially offensively," Hadaad said. "We put lots of pressure on their defense and made them make a lot of mistakes."

"In the last four or five games, we've been putting on more pressure at midfield. We don't let them (the opponents) play free, we stay very close to them. Whenever they get the ball, they find Penn State players around them."

NFL officials want to resume bargaining, revise for stock loss

By DAVE GOLDBERG

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — NFL officials said yesterday that they hope to resume bargaining with the players union soon, but with a revised offer on one of the main issues because the players' pension fund lost $39 million in the stock market problems of the past two weeks.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, said he expects to speak next week with union head Gene Upshaw to try to resume negotiations. Earlier, Commissioner Pete Rozelle had said he hoped negotiations could be concluded by next March so the league can go ahead with its expansion plans.

The owners also voted to play the rest of the season with 50-man rosters — 45 players active each Sunday and a five-man reserve squad.

But the main topic of the discussion was the 24-day strike that ended Oct. 15 and its after-effects, including the antitrust suit filed by the union against the owners when it ordered the players back to work. Among other things, it seeks the free agency the players were unable to get at the bargaining table.

During the strike, it was the players who constantly sought negotiations, but this time it was the owners.

"I think it's in the interest of both sides to negotiate," Rozelle said. "Once things cool down, and the media spotlight is off, it may be easier to get things done."

However, the union said it wasn't interested in resuming talks unless the owners changed their position on major issues. And any talks may be complicated by the effect of the stock market on the pension fund, a major area of contention between the two sides.

Donlan disclosed that "the last time I checked" what had once been a $40 million surplus in the pension fund had been reduced to $1 million by losses from the fund's stock market investments.

The owners have been offering to add $37 million to the fund, but $18 million of that is money the owners never put in.

"I don't know how much we're going to be restricted now by what happened," Donlan said.

"Now they've got problems with the stock market thing," Rozelle said. "They had money to play around with in the surplus. But they don't have that anymore."

The two sides last bargained formally on Oct. 11, the 20th day of the strike, with agreement reached on just eight of 38 contract issues. Additional ones, like management's demand for a six-year contract, also cropped up during the walkout.

Donlan, the chief management negotiator, broke off the talks, saying he saw no room for further bargaining. The strike ended four days later after threats of en masse defections by players led the union to send the players back and file the suit.

The increased roster size was approved without a formal vote, although participants at the meeting said that nearly enough teams spoke in favor of staying with the current 45-man limit that it seemed in danger for a while of failing to get the necessary 21 votes.

In the first week after the strike, teams were allowed to keep up to 85 players, but that figure will drop to 55 next week. The 50-man roster will take effect next Tuesday.

Rozelle said the teams hoped the increased roster size would allow them to keep veterans who might have been cut in favor of replacement players used during the strike. He also noted that it would help teams keep replacements who had been impressive.

Moreover, each team starts anew on moves from injured reserve. Each team is allowed eight free moves during the season without putting a player through waivers. Now all moves used previously will not count against the eight.

Rozelle, whose only role during the strike was to try to bring the two sides together, suggested that it was possible that without a labor contract it might be difficult to go ahead with expansion by 1989.

He has said in the past that he hoped to appoint an expansion committee at the league meeting last March if the league had gotten over three major hurdles — the television contract, the USFL suit and the labor contract. Asked if the absence of a labor contract could delay appointment of the committee at the next meetings, Rozelle replied: "I hope not, but it could."

Doug Allen, the assistant executive director of the NFL Players Association, said the union had no interest in resuming bargaining without substantive changes in the management position.

"Things stand just where they stood when they walked away from the table," Allen said by telephone from Miami, where he and other NFLPA officials are attending the AFL-CIO convention.

"Until we see a substantive change in their position, we don't see any reason for resuming talks."

Twins fans celebrate World Series heroes

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Hundreds of thousands of deliriously happy Minnesota Twins fans showered their heroes with millions of dollars in shredded money and waved the ever-present Homer Hankies in a World Series victory celebration yesterday.

"It's been building up since we won our division," said left fielder and leadoff man Dan Gladden, whose grand slam homer got the Twins off to a winning start in the first game.

"It's been parlayed and carried over since then. I guess this is the grand finale right here. These have got to be the best fans," Gladden said.

Police estimated that more than 200,000 fans turned out for the start of the parade in Minneapolis, and another 200,000 or more were in St. Paul to watch the parade and a rally on the steps of the Capitol.

"I could cry. That is so nice I could cry," said team owner Carl Pohlad as he rode at the head of the parade. A young woman rushed his car, planted a kiss on his cheek, then apologized to Pohlad's wife, Eloise, who rode beside him.

Steven Schussler, a Minneapolis nightclub owner, said he distributed some 17,000 pounds of confetti for the celebration. He said that included 2,000 pounds of out-of-circulation, shredded money from the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis.

Federal Reserve Bank officials estimated their contribution amounted to millions of dollars in old bills which had been taken out of circulation, Schussler said.

Gov. Rudy Perpich gave most state employees the afternoon off, and many Twin Cities schools followed suit. Perpich proclaimed the rest of 1987 "Twins Year," and promised individual days in honor of each player and members of the team management.

Kings tie Penguins; Flyers lose again

By The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Aaron Broten, Pat Verbeek and Patrik Sundstrom scored in a 2:55 span in the second period and goalie Alain Chevrier posted his first NHL shutout last night as the New Jersey Devils blanked the struggling Philadelphia Flyers, 4-0.

Chevrier stopped 26 shots as the Devils posted a franchise record fifth straight home victory and extended the Flyers' winless streak to four. The defending Wales Conference champs have lost three of their last four outings.

The Devils killed off eight Philadelphia power plays in the first two periods — and nine overall — and survived one stretch late in the first and early in the second periods where they played shorthanded for 4:49.

Ironically, the game turned with New Jersey on the power play. With Rick Tocchet off for roughing, Broten took a pass from Tom Kurvers and fired a 35-foot shot that deflected off the leg of Flyers' defenseman Brad Marsh and past goalie Ron Hextall at 6:52 of the second period.

Less than two minutes later, Broten stole a clearing pass by Marsh behind the Philadelphia net and passed the puck to Kirk Muller, who found Verbeek a lone in front for his seventh goal of the year.

Sundstrom closed out the Devils' blitz 2:14 later by beating Hextall with a 15-foot shot along the ice.

Penguins 4, Kings 4

PITTSBURGH — Dave Taylor scored with 7:09 remaining in the third period as the Los Angeles Kings overcame a three-goal deficit and tied the Pittsburgh Penguins, 4-4, last night.

After rookie Rob Brown put Pittsburgh ahead 4-1 with his third goal of the year at 1:40 of the second period, the Kings came back with scores by Mark Farady and Paul Fenton.

Hardy converted Luc Robitaille's pass at 12:44 and Fenton, who was recalled from the minor leagues on the weekend, got his first at 15:24. Mario Lemieux scored his 10th goal at 2:17 of the opening period.

Carson tied the score on a power play at 3:14, stuffing the rebound of Jay Wells' shot from the point past goalie Gilles Meloche. Craig Simpson put the Pens ahead 2-1 on a power play, his seventh goal this season, at 10:03. Lemieux scored again at 17:19 when he circled behind the net and tucked a backhand past goalie Roland Melanson.

Philadelphia Flyer Murray Craven, left, is shoved by New Jersey Devil Ken Daneyko in the Devils 4-0 win last night at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford.
