USEC and Undergraduate Student Government vice president, said increased graduate representation may be a valid option for USEC.

"I feel that if a substantiated request can be made, then it is a possibility," Miller said.

Frank Arlinghaus, chairman of GSA's Judiciary Committee, said, "USEC has to define what representation means. Also, I think it needs to view itself as what it was originally set up for — it needs to review its original purpose."

Miller said USEC is presently examining its purpose at the University.

"We're looking at how we can best effect change, how we can most effectively start changing things," Miller said. In the process, USEC will look at the best format for its membership to accomplish USEC's goals.

Jones said USEC was originally created to represent the entire student community, without focusing specifically on graduates or undergraduates. She said USEC's purpose is twofold: to advise the president on issues concerning the student community and to be a forum for communication among student groups.

"At the moment, I don't think USEC is accomplishing either of those goals," Jones said.

Thirteen different organizations are represented on USEC, including USG, GSA, Black Caucus and the Council of Commonwealth Campus Student Governments. Student Trustee Christina Henke is also a member of USEC.

Ken Martin, GSA secretary, said USEC has become "more of a legislative or policy-making board for students or student organizations in general. It's supposed to be an advisory board to (the University president), and a forum for student leaders to get together and discuss common concerns."

As for increased graduate representation, Martin said, "It has been said occasionally, since my experience in GSA, that graduate students are being underrepresented. We've never really had a full-blown discussion, but it's something I hear from time to time in various places."

Five hostages escape Atlanta prison captors

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Rioting Cubans freed two ailing hostages at the Atlanta penitentiary yesterday and five others reportedly escaped, while Cuban prisoners holding captives in Louisiana were confronted by a SWAT team with fire hoses.

Late yesterday night, a car whisked a small group of people from the east side of the U.S. Penitentiary in Atlanta to an entrance controlled by authorities, and a short time later two-way radio transmissions on a frequency used by prison officials reported that five hostages had escaped.

Prison officials, who have made few appearances to speak to reporters, were not available to comment on the development.

Meanwhile, authorities in Atlanta said they were removing all the American inmates and transferring them to other prisons.

Americans give special thanks

By The Associated Press

As families across the nation gather for Thanksgiving, some Americans say they have special reasons to be grateful: freedom for a former hostage, amnesty for a 98-year-old illegal alien and $46 million for the winners of North America's largest lottery jackpot.

For some, Thursday's holiday has become a celebration of survival, of defying odds. For others, it is about life's unexpected joys.

"First of all I'm thankful for my health, because you go through things like this and there's no guarantee that you don't develop an ulcer," Muriel Siebert, who owns a discount brokerage house in New York, said of the October stock market crash. "I'm thankful that I have a very good staff that was able to hold the hands of a lot of investors."

"We're thankful we don't have to work any more," said Linda Despot, 37, a former bookkeeper from Hollidaysburg, Pa., and co-winner of $46 million in the Oct. 14 Pennsylvania lottery. "We're thankful that we

"We have seen the splendor of our natural resources spread across the tables of the world, and we have seen the splendor of freedom coursing with new vigor through the channels of history," President Reagan said in his 1987 Thanksgiving Day proclamation.

"The cause for which we give thanks, for which so many of our citizens through the years have given their lives, has endured 200 years."

"I thank the Lord for all the blessings he has given me in all aspects of my life," said Clara Escopedo de Martinez, at 98 the oldest undocumented alien to receive amnesty under the new immigration law. "We receive blessings without deserving them."

"I am very thankful for my freedom," said David Jacobsen, 56, of Huntington Beach, Calif., who was a hostage in Lebanon for 17 months. "I consider myself a lucky man to be able to have spent six months with my father before he died at age 93... because I got home in time for the birth of my two wonderful grandsons... (and) to have been able to devote the past year to lobbying on behalf of my friends who remain hostages."

No one injured in car wreck

A car heading South on Atherton Steet veered off the roadway just past the West Hamilton Avenue intersection and struck two traffic signs and a parked car early yesterday morning, State College Bureau of Police said.

The driver, Sharon L. Runyon, of Carlisle, said she fell asleep at the wheel and did not wake up until the car, a 1976 Pontiac Sunbird, hit the traffic signs. She sustained minor injuries, State College Police said.

Runyon traveled 198 feet off the road before striking the traffic signs. No damage estimate was available.
