

Women's soccer club searches for fourth victory

By PETER FAGGEN
Collegian Sports Writer

Three and a half million women around the country under the age of 19 play competitive soccer, and with that influx of young talent, the sport has flourished at the intercollegiate level, including Penn State.

Led by second-year coach Denny Hall, the Penn State women's soccer club (3-2) has had a successful season despite having to play the majority of its games on the road. Over the last eight days, the Lady Lions, now affiliated with the Big Ten Conference, have played four games against St. Francis, Michigan, Bucknell, and Lafayette.

And at 10:30 tomorrow morning at Pollock Field the Lady Lions will face California, Pa. in search of their fourth victory.

"I'm happy with the team's progress so far despite the fact that we still don't have many healthy players because of the flu and other various physiological injuries," Hall said.

After hosting a pre-season tournament over Labor Day weekend with Bloomsburg, Michigan and Gannon, Penn State took its first step toward its season long quest: to receive a bid to the NCCSA National Soccer Tournament in Austin, Texas in November. Although Big Ten competition will not begin for a few seasons, the team with the best overall record in the conference will receive the bid. A three-day road trip in mid-October, when the team will play three games in three days at Navy, Delaware and Elizabethtown will tell Hall more about his team and its chances to make the NCCSAs.

Despite a tough opening loss to LaSalle, the team rebounded with a 4-3 victory over St. Francis in the rain for its first win. The team then traveled nine hours by bus to Ann Arbor to play Michigan, whom they beat, 3-2.

"That win felt great. Michigan said some things about our style of play at the pre-season tournament, and we just went up there and shocked them," said senior Esther Brown, one of three senior captains.

After its third straight road victory in four days at Bucknell (2-1), the team lost last Saturday to Lafayette, 5-2.

"We have a better team than last year because of our new offensive style. Now we have five midfielders instead of three. It's more fun and we are scoring more goals," Brown said.

With the extra midfielders, seven different players have cracked the scorebook for the Lions this season. Junior forward Dina Dinacci, who has been bothered by an ankle injury and is questionable for tomorrow's game, has scored several key goals for the team, including the game winner against St. Francis.

Brown, senior Geanine Baldino, juniors Laurie McQueen and Charity Grims along with promising freshman Bret Hannagan have contributed to the new potent Penn State offense. Hall also has been pleased with the play of his fullbacks and the goaltending of senior Andrea Tramontana and freshman Laura Jackson.

Despite being a club sport, the program is still operated like any other varsity sport at the University, Hall said.

The team held its annual tryouts in August, and the 58 players that tried out grueled through three-a-day practices. Thirty women made the team, which is divided into two squads, blue and white. The white team, which fields more experienced players, is the squad that competes against other schools. Playing on the blue team prepares the less experienced players for future games. Every afternoon, along with Hall, assistant coaches Joe Lowery and Wendy Jones practice with the team at Pollock Field.

Penn State has one of the largest intercollegiate sports programs in America with 15 varsity men's sports and 13 varsity women's. But the fact that the soccer team is not yet included as a varsity sport doesn't concern coach Hall.

"I would very much like to see the women's soccer team become a varsity sport, but I have excellent trust and respect for the decisions of Jim Tarman and the athletic department. The department has been under a lot of pressure with the University's acceptance to the Big Ten Conference," Hall said.

Over the last year, 350 women have contacted the soccer program about playing for Penn State.

"Soccer around here is a great, great sport and we run a very structured program," Hall said. The players follow a strict fitness program and practice year around in the indoor facilities. Every summer, the soccer program sponsors a soccer camp for high school players.

"Women's soccer is taking a giant step forward in the nation, and we're pleased to be a part of it," Hall said.

NFL's toughest defenses to clash when Raiders battle Bears

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

In 1984, the Bears and Raiders met in Chicago in a game that featured the year's two Bruise Brothers. They meet in Los Angeles Sunday in a matchup of the year's two biggest early-season surprises.

What we have here are the NFL's two stingiest teams — the Raiders have given up just 25 points in three games, the Bears have allowed 29. Both, naturally, are unbeaten.

We also have two teams that don't exactly have Joe Montana at quarterback — after Chicago's Jim Harbaugh threw for just 47 yards against Minnesota last week, Mike Ditka suggested he'd run the ball 70 times if he had to. Even with Howie Long out, that probably won't work against the Raiders.

So the winner is probably the team that throws better. The Raiders are favored by 1½ points, meaning the oddsmakers think the Bears may be a mite better — call it the NFC edge.

But home field advantage doesn't mean much in the L.A. Coliseum, which is likely to draw a lot of Chicago expatriates.

On the other hand, back to the passing game — Jay Schroeder may not throw better than Harbaugh.

But he throws it longer . . .
RAIDERS, 13-10
Denver (plus 2½) at Buffalo

The Broncos are hurting on defense — cornerback Tyrone Braxton is the latest casualty. If — and it's a big one — the Bills can remain up for two straight weeks . . .

BILLS, 27-21
Miami (minus 1) at Pittsburgh

The Steelers have yet to score a touchdown on offense. Last week, the Dolphins' offense played like the Steelers. But it's hard to shackle Dan Marino two straight weeks. The Steelers may score, but . . .

DOLPHINS, 24-13
Cincinnati (minus 3) at Seattle

This is the first of five straight road games for the Bengals, forced out of Riverfront until Nov. 14 by a combination of the league and the Reds. It's also a good spot for an upset as in "the Seahawks are the best 0-3 in the league." That's not hard, there's only one other.

SEAHAWKS, 21-20
Cleveland (plus 6½) at Kansas City

What does it tell you that Mike Pagel is getting more work this week in the event Bernie Kosar succumbs to his own offensive line?

CHIEFS, 17-3
Green Bay (plus 3) at Detroit

Where's the Silver Streak and where's the Majik?
LIONS, 24-20
Tampa Bay (plus 7½) at Minnesota

The indoor Vikings (even with Rich Gannon) aren't the same as the outdoor Vikings, who have lost six straight.
VIKINGS, 21-16
Dallas (plus 14) at New York Giants

It was 28-7 Giants two weeks ago in the 100-degree-plus heat of Texas Stadium and could have been 45-7.
GIANTS, 45-7
Indianapolis (plus 13) at Philadelphia

The last time the Eagles were favored by this much was two weeks ago against Phoenix. They've learned their lesson.
EAGLES, 27-7
New York Jets (pick 'em) at New England

Neither is a powerhouse, but the Jets don't have to be.
JETS, 21-19
Houston (plus 2½) at San Diego

Run and shoot doesn't work against brute force.
CHARGERS, 20-17

Los Angeles Raiders' quarterback Jay Schroeder (13) tries to throw the ball away as Denver's Simon Fletcher (73) grabs him from behind. On Sunday the Raiders will face the Chicago Bears in a battle of two of the league's unbeaten teams.
