Tyson TKOs Ruddock in 7th scoreboard

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS - Mike Tyson, rocked in the sixth round, beat Razor Ruddock in the seventh round last night when referee Richard Steele stopped the fight after a flurry sent Ruddock to the ropes but did not drop him.

Ruddock turned his hands up and looked at Steele in disbelief that the fight was over, then bodyguards representing both camps piled into the ring and a melee broke out.

Chaos reigned for several seconds. Tyson knocked Ruddock down in the second round and again in the third. Ruddock, however, came on strong in the sixth and had Tyson in trouble late in the round with several hooks and a right hand.

In the seventh, action slowed until Tyson landed a six-punch combination with both hands that sent Ruddock back to the ropes and Steele stopped it at 2:22.

When order was restored in the ring and the time was announced, there were thunderous boos from the crowd of more than 15,000 in an outdoor arena.

Several minutes after Steele's shocking action, security men were still pitching people from the ring. The last two punches that drove Rud-dock into the ropes were a right hand and a left hook. He appeared dazed but looked more shocked at Steele's decision than from Tyson's punches.

The fight was marked by thunderous punches from both men as they tried to end it from the outset. It was also to challenge the winner of the fight marked by wildness and by a lot of clutching and grabbing.

Twelve seconds into the second round, Tyson, winning for the third time since his upset title loss to James "Buster" Douglas 13 months ago, scored a flash knockdown with a left hook to the Ruddock bounced up, signaled he was not hurt and took the mandatory 8count. Tyson dominated the remainder of the round with body shots.

Ruddock was in more serious trouble in the third when, with the round drawing to a close, he went down from a left hook. He got up at 7 and a few seconds later, the bell ended the round.

Tyson dominated the fourth round, again with body shots, as Ruddock ppeared tired and befuddled. If he landed an uppercut, it seemed to do no damage. Many of his punches were blocked.

sixth, however, Ruddock appeared like he might change the course of the fight. With about 10 seconds left in the round, he shook Tyson with a left hook, a right, a left and another hook. Tyson punched back but Ruddock landed a couple more hooks before the bell sounded.

Ruddock said, "Tyson hits hard for his size, but I am disappointed they stopped the fight ' between heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield and George Foreman on April 19 at Atlantic City. Promoter Don King has said Tyson would fight Foreman should he win, but he would not fight Holyfield because Holyfield refused to make a defense against Tyson before fighting Foreman.

Money talks in boxing, however, and Tyson against the winner of that fight would be boxing's biggest money

The 24-year-old Tyson weighed 217 pounds for his 40th victory, 36 by knockout, against one loss. He reportedly earned $6 million.

The 27-year-old Ruddock, a native of Jamaica who lives in Toronto, weighed 228 pounds, giving him weight, height and reach advantages over Tyson. Ruddock is 25-2-1. He reportedly made $3 million.

Tyson was ranked No. 1 by the three sanctioning bodies - the World Boxing Association, World Boxing Council and International Boxing Federation while Ruddock was ranked second by all three. The loss snapped Ruddock's 16-fight winning streak.

After a tough 9-7 loss to national powerhouse Princeton on Saturday, the men's lacrosse team rebounded Sunday with a 14-7 win over Ohio Wesleyan in the Loyola Invitational Tournament consolation game.

The host school defeated Princeton in the final, 10-9.

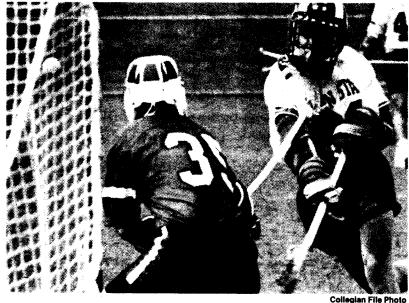

The Lions (2-2) received solid performances against Princeton from senior Ted Peddy, junior J.J. Pearl and sophomore Pete Makover. Both Peddy and Makover each scored three goals, while goaltender Pearl turned away 21 Princeton shots.

"We made a good run at Princeton," Coach Glenn Thiel said. "I think we definitely put a scare into them.

On Sunday, Rob Strassberg contibuted three goals and an assist to the winning effort against Ohio Wesleyan. Jim Laverty added two goals and two assists, while both Peddy and Chris Lehman each scored two goals and added an assist.

Thiel said the Lions dominated play against Ohio Wesleyan after the first quarter. During this stretch, the Lions received solid goaltending from Jamie Morse, who registered 15 saves for the game.

News media reports have said that Jackson may have avascular necrosis. Medical experts say avascular necrosis generally does not arise from a sudden injury, instead taking years to develop, but that it is potentially disabling as the blood flow to the bone is cut.

But Andrews said it was a "significant injury" and that blood flow to the hip joint is being monitored.

The doctor declined to elaborate when referring to news reports that Jackson may have avascular necrosis.

"There has been no collapse of his hip joint," Andrews said. "That's the reason we're putting him on crutches."

"We're in a protective phase at this point," said the doctor, who left open the possibility that Jackson may eventually be able to play football for the Raiders.

"(Dr.) Andrews might think Bo might be able to a make a little quicker return than Steve," Robinson said. "We might re-evaluate by the middle of the year and see if there has been any regeneration of cartilege and bone. There may be differing opinions where one doctor says no strenuous activity for 15 months and another says 10.'

"I know deep down I'll be back playing baseball this year," said Jackson, who is still on crutches.

"Bo's a unique individual who has the history of sports.

overcome adversity in the past," Andrews said. Because of his positive attitude, the doctor added, it's likely that "Bo will be able to return to professional sports in the future.

'I don't want to speculate," Raiders coach Art Shell said in Hawaii at the NFL meetings. "The doctor gave me some name of the injury. It was slight dislocation and with rest he would be all Jackson arrived with his agent in a limousine. As he got out, he acted surprised at the gathering of reporters and cameramen.

Where's Elvis?" he asked jokingly. When questioned about his health upon entering, Jackson said simply, 'ine," and then hobbled into the office of Andrews, an orthopedic specialist.

Clearly he wasn't fine, though. The fast, powerful tailback-outfielder — the only man to win college football's Heisman Trophy and baseball's All-Star MVP award - has been unable to compete athletically since he injured his hip when tackled from behind Jan. 13 in the Raiders' playoff game against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Some media reports even raised the possibility that Jackson's injury may bring a premature end to the career of one of the most phenomenal athletes in

'There's always that revenge factor," Foley said. "We're out to get them and that's what you feel for teams you have a good rivalry with — I think it's getting to that point with Loyola.'

Bakun breezed through the first inning 1-2-3, but hit Cortland State's Missy Emery with a pitch to start the second. After Emery moved to second on a sacrifice bunt, Holly Brown lined a single and advanced to second on an offtarget throw to the infield, putting runners on second and third.

Cortland's Pam Chilbert then hit a fly ball to right, which appeared deep enough to score the runner from third. However, right fielder Amy Myers threw a perfect strike to the plate and catcher Kathy Cafazzo applied the tag to Emery, completing the double play. In the Lady Lions' half of the inning, Amy Tortorella scored the game's first run when Cortland State's Chris Lenihan issued a one-out walk to Denise Oswald with the bases loaded. However, Penn State failed to capitalize on Lenihan's control problems and left the bases loaded to end the inning.

But in the fourth inning, with the score 2-0, the Lady Lions finally took advantage of its scoring opportunities. Sandy Lehr knocked in Joyce Tinner and Dawn Hoover to give Penn State a 4-0 advantage. Tortorella added another run in the inning, scoring on a double steal with Lehr on first. The Lady Lions now have a week of practice left before their home opener.
