Workers' lawsuit claims USX denied pensions

By PEG McENTEE
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — USX Corp. executives devised a scheme to cheat workers out of about $350 million in pension benefits and unload an aging Utah steel mill to save money, an attorney for the steelworkers said yesterday.

Attorney Gerry Spence is representing nearly 2,000 former steelworkers at the Geneva Works in Orem in a lawsuit that alleges the steel producer deliberately tried to keep the employees from receiving their pensions.

The trial, which began yesterday before U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins, is expected to last several weeks. USX officials have declined to comment on the case in the past. The company was to begin presenting its side of the issue later yesterday.

qualify for retirement.

Instead, the company secretly tried to sell the plant sooner and shed itself of a pension burden that was a "nightmare," Spence said.

He said USX's total pension fund had become so large it was worth more than all the company's other assets, and executives wanted the money for other ventures.

"The pension fund became a huge treasure for anyone with the know-how to grab and utilize — except the steelworkers," Spence said.

He said then-USX president David M. Roderick even wrote to the workers in December 1985 to assure them the plant would remain open until 1989, when a Korean steel mill would take Geneva's place as supplier for West Coast manufacturers.

Early in 1986, USX officials were exploring the possibility of selling the plant to Basic Manufacturing & Technology, a Utah-based business consortium, said Spence. BM&T was to be made a USX subsidiary, he said.

Springfield Mall killer claims drugs now make her OK

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sylvia Seegrist says daily medication frees her from the psychotic anger that burst forth in a 1985 shooting rampage and she shouldn't spend the rest of her life in prison, a newspaper reported yesterday.

Seegrist killed two men and a 2-year-old child when she entered Springfield Mall wearing Army fatigues and sprayed 20 rounds from a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle. Seven others were wounded.

Seegrist, 30, now hopes that someday her three life sentences will be commuted. Pennsylvania has no parole for life prison terms.

"I'm still hoping that if I go up for commutation they'll realize that just wasn't me," she told The Philadelphia Inquirer.

RABBI NATHAN LOPES CARDOZO

INSIDE G-D'S MIND

Rabbi Nathan Lopes Cardozo combines in-depth training in Talmud and biblical exegesis at Great Britain's premier Rabbinic Academy with a Master's degree in modern philosophy from a well-known university in his native Holland.

Currently a senior lecturer in Jewish philosophy at two academies in Jerusalem, Rabbi Cardozo lectures extensively in England, Holland and the U.S.A. He is the author of two books, The Torah as G-d's Mind on Jewish mysticism, and The Infinite Chain on the relationship between the written and the oral traditions in Jewish thought.

In Inside G-d's Mind, you can join Rabbi Cardozo for an introductory journey into the world of the Kabbalah, the source of Jewish mysticism. His lecture unmasks the real Torah, its narratives and its commandments as he discusses the Jewish view on extraterrestrial life, the afterlife and the life of the soul.

If you've ever wondered about the basics of Jewish thought and mysticism, don't miss this chance to fill in the gaps in your knowledge.
