THE SYMBOL OF PRIDE

Astronauts and artists, educators and executives, scientists and surgeons -- Alumni Fellows all. They are Penn State's greatest resource, those professionally eminent graduates whose generosity and talents are tapped year after year as Penn State bestows upon them the title Alumni Fellow, asking only that each Fellow return to Alma Mater to share a bit of know-how with others who will follow. It's a lifetime commitment the Alumni Association and the Council of Academic Deans are proud to be a part of.

THE COLLEGE OF EARTH AND MINERAL SCIENCE IS PROUD TO PRESENT

Dr. Kee-Hyong Kim '61g, Korea's first Minister of Science and Technology and today one of that nation's most esteemed scientific leaders, will share with Penn Staters his "Perspectives on the Industrialization of Korea." For two decades Dr. Kim has played a leading role in scientific policy and education and today chairs the board of trustees of the Korea Advanced Institute, premier institution for graduate education and research in science and technology.
