

Notre Dame QB denies charges

By THOMAS P. WYMAN
Associated Press Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Notre Dame quarterback Rick Mirer, recovered from the shock of being handcuffed and hauled off to jail by police, defended himself yesterday against accusations of drunken and disorderly conduct.

"It was a misunderstanding, and the only thing I can say about that is I was not publicly intoxicated and my conduct was not disorderly," he said.

"I don't know what's going to happen in the next few days, but I've got nothing to hide, and I don't have to tell lies to anybody."

Coach Lou Holtz left no doubts he's squarely behind the starter who hopes to lead the Irish squad throughout the 1991 season.

He called the involvement of Mirer and linebacker Demetrius DuBose in the Friday off-campus party that attracted 500 people a "very innocent thing."

The security officer at the apartment complex where the two were arrested had instructions to call police if the crowd "became large," he said.

"The security man who called the police told me that there was no rowdiness, that there was no problem, no destruction," Holtz said. "It was a very orderly crowd."

For now, starting positions for Mirer and DuBose appear secure. Holtz said he would discipline both, not suspend either. The two still might face discipline by the university Office of Student Affairs.

No formal charges have been filed. Although Notre Dame appeared to close ranks behind its star quarterback, the arrests caused dissension within the city police department.

An internal memo written by an acting shift commander criticizes a police spokesman for siding with Mirer, according to a report published Tuesday.

After Mirer and DuBose were released on $100 bonds, police department spokesman Lt. Norval J. Williams drove the pair to the South Bend Tribune to give reporters their side of the story.

"They weren't drunk," Williams said. "I think it was a case of them being at the wrong place at the wrong time."

Williams also said Mirer asked the arresting officer for a breath test, but was refused. Mirer said he was "denied my chance to prove that" he wasn't drunk.

A memo drafted by Lt. David H. Shock, acting shift commander during the incident, said Williams' statements violated department rules against public criticism of fellow officers "made with reckless disregard for its truth or falsity."

Shock said Williams asked the arresting officer, Patrolman Robert Culp, to release Mirer, DuBose, and John P. Neal, 19, of Tonawanda, N.Y., a third Notre Dame student arrested at the scene.

When Culp refused, Williams allegedly told the officer to "think about his career, and the career of the people he arrested," Shock wrote in the memo, a copy of which was obtained by the Tribune. Police have refused to release arrest reports on the incident.

Mirer, 21, a junior from Goshen, said he drank two beers within a two-hour period. DuBose, 20, of Seattle, said he drank two or three beers. Mirer said an unwritten team rule prohibits drinking except in prescribed circumstances.

The students are scheduled to appear in court Oct. 9. No other arrests were made.

PSU-Cincinnati tickets remain

About 2,000 tickets for Saturday's game against Cincinnati remain unsold. Students may purchase one ticket each at a price of $8 at the Beaver Stadium ticket office. They are reserved seats, mostly returned from an allotment to Cincinnati. The general public may purchase these tickets at a cost of $20 apiece. The ticket office is open from 8:30 to 4:30 daily.

Cards-Dolphins trade

MIAMI (AP) — The Dolphins traded wide receiver Randal Hill, their first-round draft pick, to Phoenix yesterday in exchange for the Cardinals' top selection in next year's college draft.

The trade was prompted by the fact that the Dolphins had "an abundance of wide receivers and it would have been a luxury to carry six through the year," coach Don Shula said.

"By getting Phoenix's first-round draft choice, this will put us in a better position to obtain defensive help, which is a more pressing need, either this year through a trade or next year in the draft," he said.

Hill, who signed with Miami on Aug. 6, played one game with the Dolphins. In the Sept. 1 contest against Buffalo, he had one kickoff return for 33 yards.
