Amid the successes, flops the box office went boffo

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — Box-office receipts for 1993 may well set a record, eclipsing the 1989 mark of $5.1 billion. Behind those grosses were a variety of films that clicked and many more that did not.

The following is a studio-by-studio scorecard of who did what.

■ COLUMBIA: The Sony studio was so feeble, chairman Mark Canton tried to take credit for the hit In the Line of Fire — a movie Columbia didn't really make. The Clint Eastwood drama was financed by Columbia but produced by independent Castle Rock Entertainment, and Castle Rock made most of the key creative decisions.

Besides that, Columbia had a dismal year. It overspent on The Age of Innocence, bombed with Bruce Willis' Striking Distance and flopped with Geronimo: An American Legend.

One more thing: Last Action Hero.

Grade: F.

■ DISNEY: While other studios raked it in during the summer, Disney inflicted one bust after another on moviegoers. Remember Super Mario Brothers, Hocus Pocus or Life With Mikey? Neither does anyone else.

But Disney did take some rare artistic risks, and with good results: Both What's Love Got to Do With It and The Joy Luck Club were critical and commercial successes.

Grade: C.

■ MGM: Six Degrees of Separation may not make much money for MGM, but the adaptation of John Guare's play was among the year's most thoughtful studio titles. Benny & Joon generated modest sales earlier in the year and sparked a popular soundtrack album.

Otherwise, it was one MGM disaster after another: Untamed Heart, Rich in Love, Meteor Man, Undercover Blues, Fatal Instinct and Son of the Pink Panther.

Grade: Incomplete.

■ ORION: The minimajor's output was curtailed severely by financial difficulties, and its slate was as thin as it was unpopular. Orion took a gamble in distributing the obsessive love story Boxing Helena, but the company lost an arm and a leg on the film.

Grade: F.

■ PARAMOUNT: The studio had two solid blockbusters. One was expected — Tom Cruise in The Firm — and the other was a stunner — Demi Moore and Robert Redford in Indecent Proposal. Even though Sharon Stone's Sliver was skinned by reviewers, it played strongly overseas and on video.

The studio's marketing arm struggled with Searching for Bobby Fisher despite some of the fall's best reviews.

Paramount's Wayne's World 2 and Addams Family Values played relatively well at year's end. The only real hole in Paramount's schedule: No Oscar-caliber film.

Grade: B+.

■ TRISTAR: Unlike sister studio Columbia, TriStar frugally spent its money and produced several hits. The studio's investment in the independently produced Cliffhanger was minimal while the returns were maximal. Sleepless in Seattle was made modestly but nevertheless went on to gross more than $125 million.

The year for studio chief Mike Medavoy comes down to the AIDS drama Philadelphia, the first such film from a major studio. The film is likely to draw several Oscar nominations.

Grade: B-.
