Andy Griffith serves up the right image

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Well, shucks. Ol' Andy Griffith's just a Shoney's kinda guy.

The Shoney's chain, with restaurants in the South and the Midwest, has selected him as its spokesman.

"His image on Mayberry and Matlock is very wholesome, very down to earth," Greg Kaplan, senior vice president of marketing for Shoney's Inc., said Wednesday. "He enjoys tremendous popularity and respect as well as very high recognition among Shoney's customers and non-customers alike."

Duchess of York sheds some weight

LOS ANGELES — Sarah Ferguson's sweated off 14 pounds, and now her trainer's telling her to lighten up.

"She's one of those people you have to hold back a bit and say, 'Well, you don't need that much.' It's very hard to tell her to do less," Josh Salzmann told TV's syndicated "Extra" in an interview that will air Thursday.

Salzmann has been the Duchess of York's trainer since 1990, but only recently has she gotten motivated enough to shed those pounds and shape up.

"Everybody goes through ebbs and flows and people tend to be more disciplined at certain times of their lives and less disciplined at other times," Salzmann said.

"You can only do so much with a person when you see them for three hours a week."

McCartney's burgers have too much fat

LONDON — Linda McCartney's vegetarian burgers: fat lot of good they'll do you.

McCartney's beefless burgers were recalled yesterday after a TV program analyzed batches and found a fat content of 20 percent to nearly 23 percent. The packages say the veggieburger has an 11.2 percent fat content.

McCartney, a vegetarian who's written a veggie cookbook, was "very upset" and insisted that the problem be corrected immediately.
