and dashboard. A passenger, was left lying 15 feet away from the vehicle.

Drogan and two other passengers left the scene, passing the Sugarloaf Township police station, however, they did not tell police of the accident.

Michele Anthony, an employee with the clerk of courts at the Luzerne Courthouse, said there are several other charges filed against Drogan.

These charges include reckless endangerment, causing an accident involving personal injury and underage drinking were filed in early June.

She said there's been no action with the case since.

Drogan was listed as the No. 3 long tackle on the preseason depth chart this season and Paterno said he will remain a Lion despite the accident.

"Dan will be with the team," Paterno said.

"We'll wait and see what happens with some of the legal things," he added, "but I'm not going to try Dan Drogan in the press.

"I just think Dan Drogan was a kid who made a mistake, as some kids will do. It was not malicious. There was no intent to go out and hurt anybody. He made a mistake. He'll pay a little price for it obviously."

terback and offensive leader. This was good news for Penn State, but bad news for McQueary. He spent two seasons feeding signs in to the offense, waiting, watching, learning and waiting some more.

But with Richardson gone, McQueary's time has come. Coach Joe Paterno tabbed McQueary this year's starting quarterback, and the former Notre Dame fan couldn't be happier.

"It's a great feeling," he said. "It's better than going into the season knowing you're the No. 3 or 2 quarterback.

"It's a lot of responsibility and it's something that you work for all of your life to get to. Now that I'm here I'm just going to enjoy it, and the other guys are going to help me along, and I'm looking forward to it."

McQueary isn't a typical first-year starting quarterback. He saw action in 10 games in 1996, highlighted by a come-from-behind victory Oct. 26 in Indiana's Memorial Stadium when he went 9-for-19 for 184 yards and two touchdowns after replacing Richardson in the second quarter.

"I think it's real important for confidence to get some exposure whenever you can get it," McQueary said.

"Coming in against USC and Indiana and some other games there provided the confidence builder needed. I was able to get my nose wet a little bit and prepare myself for the season."

Now it's McQueary's turn to dive in head first.

Tiger Woods: Golf's 'A' student

By RON SIRAK
AP Golf Commentator

The PGA Tour got the best of all possible worlds from Tiger Woods in his first 12 months as a professional. He brought unprecedented attention to golf without making a mockery of the competition.

Woods lived up to the hype, but other players rose to the challenge of a supremely confident young man who at the Masters made it seem like he just might win everything.

"I think eventually the excitement is going to take on a more realistic tone," Tom Lehman said about Tigermania after the Masters and before the U.S. Open.

"Right now, it's at a point where Tiger Woods is Superman and everybody else is just a bunch of loyal serfs out there trying to keep up," Lehman said. "That's not the case at all."

Certainly, professional golfers Ernie Els, Justin Leonard and Davis Love III proved the wisdom of Lehman's words with their actions on the greens and links.

If Tiger Woods gets an "A" for his first year on tour, then golf gets an "A-plus."
