University Park Forecast for Tuesday, Nov. 10

Showers and warm breezes will develop today as a vigorous storm system over the Great Lakes pushes a cold front toward the area. The front will cross the region tonight, accompanied by heavy showers and a few gusty thunderstorms. Behind the front, breezy and cooler conditions will enter Happy Valley tomorrow. Another storm system may bring showers to the area by Saturday.

Today  Warmer; periods of rain High 60	Tonight  Windy; showers, storms Low 45	Wednesday  A.M. shower, then mostly cloudy High 52

How to interpret this map: Shades of gray indicate the expected high temperatures for today. Today's forecasted high and tomorrow morning's low are also shown for selected cities.
Legend: SU(Sunny), PS(Partly Sunny), MS(Mostly Sunny), MC(Mostly Cloudy), CY(Cloudy), HZ(Hazy), RN (Rain), SH(Showers), SN (Snow), SF (Snow Flurries), I(Ice), TS (Thunderstorms).

Weather Highlight

An outbreak of strong to severe thunderstorms will affect parts of the Great Lakes States today. During November, these areas rarely experience severe thunderstorms. However, a strong cold front intersecting warm air over the region will make for a stormy afternoon.

Recreation Summary

Mount Nittany, Tussey Ridge
 Trails will become muddy today as rain moves into the area. Winds from the south will increase to 20 to 30 miles per hour by late afternoon.
Bald Eagle, Spring creeks
 Water levels will undergo moderate rises as a soaking rain affects the region today and tonight. Water visibility will become somewhat muddy.

USG Fraternity — Gingrich says his resignation avoids Republican infighting

 USG Town Affairs Director Jamie Klingler, town Senator Beth Seigley, USG Chief Supreme Court Justice Jessica Rovell and Casagrande were named in the documents as students whose e-mail was read illegally by Covener.
 Also, Weis and Hornick had been forwarded several intercepted e-mail messages by Covener, according to the documents.
 Weis could not be reached for comment, but said in an earlier statement he did not request Covener send him the e-mail.
 Hornick also said Covener forwarded him the illegally intercepted e-mail without his request.
 Covener had sent Hornick e-mail messages containing user IDs and passwords of USG members including Rovell, Desmond, and Seigley according to the documents.
 Hornick said he has cooperated with the investigation.
 "This is something I have been dealing with for a while now," Hornick said. "I just want justice out of all this."

 theft — he had gone home for the weekend.
 Police were able to dust for fingerprints from compact discs that were discarded on the fraternity lawn, Tranell said.
 Interfraternity Council President Brad Nestico said fraternity pranks such as the theft of composite photos are a normal part of fraternity life. But the incident at Phi Kappa Theta cannot be considered typical.
 Fraternity member James Hornick (junior-marketing) said cases of vandalism have been a part of fraternity life, but until recently, they have been on a relatively small scale.
 "There's always stupid things like the fraternity flag getting stolen," Hornick said.
 "In terms of this (burglary at Phi Kappa Theta), it's more serious. It says a lot about interfraternal relations," he added.

 Hornick said his car tires had been slashed the week before the theft and other items have been stolen from the fraternity before.
 A stereo was taken last semester, he added.
 Lt. Diane Conrad of the State College Police Department said the incident is still under active investigation.
 Nestico said he doubts something as serious as the theft could have been fraternity-related, but will make sure the IFC takes appropriate action if it turns out to be so.
 "It could have been fraternity-related," Tranell said. "If it wasn't, then it was someone trying to make it look that way."

Gingrich says his resignation avoids Republican infighting

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON, D.C. — House Speaker Newt Gingrich said last night he decided to retire rather than fight for a new term last week because his continued presence would have become an "excuse for divisiveness and factionalism" inside Republican ranks.
 It is wrong, Gingrich told a meeting of GOPAC, for "any one person to put their office above the good of the country and the party."
 Gingrich's speech before the Republican organization he once headed marked his first extended public appearance since his stunning decision Friday to give up his high office.
 Gingrich, R-Ga., was received warmly, and got a rousing ovation when he displayed his personal copy of the "Contract With America," the campaign manifesto that Republicans rode to their landslide election victory in 1994. "Again and again, calmly systematically, we kept our word," he said of the revolution he once led.

 Gingrich also used his speech to tick off accomplishments of the last four years — welfare legislation, overhaul of Medicare, expanded medical research among them.
 Listening in the audience was Rep. Bob Livingston, the Louisiana Republican who challenged Gingrich for the speakership on Friday, and then became the overwhelming favorite to succeed him after the Georgian decided to retire.
 "The next speaker of the House,"

Gingrich called Livingston, and urged all Republicans to work with him to prevent a victory in 2000 by Vice President Al Gore and congressional Democrats.
 Gingrich decided to retire last week after his party suffered unexpected setbacks in the midterm elections. Only hours after he had assured the rank-and-file that Republicans would gain as many as 30 House seats, the voters decided otherwise. Instead, the GOP lost five seats, the first time since 1934 that the party in power in the White House has gained seats in the House during midterm elections.
 Stunned Republicans demanded a leadership change, and within 72 hours, Gingrich had withdrawn, signaling the end of a tumultuous reign as the first GOP speaker in 40 years.

 University Permit Holder:
 King is taking a return for the better for patrons attending Bryce Jordan Center Events. In the university's ongoing efforts to improve parking and traffic patterns for such events, an ad-hoc Parking Committee has been meeting for the past 18 months to recommend possible enhancements to the current system. The new system, which began in part on November 1 at the Billy Joel concert, enhances traffic movement by separating patron groups and sending them to different parking lots.
 Patrons attending an event who have not purchased a parking permit in advance will be asked to park in either Lot 44 located just east of the Bryce Jordan Center or in the new A Stadium lot located just west of Beaver Stadium. General public patrons are asked to use Porter Road and/or Park Avenue when attending an event. Persons with special needs will find accessible parking spaces available in Lot 44 and in the first row of the Stadium lot. If required, persons with special needs may be dropped-off at the ground in front of the Bryce Jordan Center. Pick-up at this point may occur fifteen minutes after the event unless otherwise directed by authorized traffic control personnel.
 Another recommendation implemented to make traffic flow more efficient impacts university permit holders. The Orange E Shields parking lot will be reserved for current university permit holders attending Bryce Jordan Center Events. This lot and all other lots on University Drive will be dedicated to university permit holders at no cost. Access to Orange E Shields is gained via Bigler Road to Curtin Road due to restricted access on University Drive. Lot B and Orange A Stadium lot are reserved as event lots and a $5.00 toll will be charged for all patrons upon entering.
 For more information on the changes to events parking may be directed to the Director of Transportation Bryce Jordan Center (814) 863-4006 or to the Manager of Parking at (814) 863-1136. More information is also available on the Bryce Jordan Center web site at www.bjc.psu.edu.
 Thank you in advance for your cooperation, in helping us achieve our goal of making event attendance a better experience for all.
