News briefs

Greek Sing showcases talent, music Sunday

The annual Greek Sing event sponsored by the Panhellenic Council will take place at 2 p.m. Sunday in Eisenhower Auditorium. The event will feature a showcase of Broadway performances highlighting this year's theme, "Rolling Out the Red Carpet: From Rags to Riches." During Greek Sing, a student that has excelled in the areas of academics, involvement in the greek community and involvement in the university community will be named recipient of the Gayle Beyers Scholarship. The scholarship, which is named for Gayle Beyers Webb, a former adviser for the Interfraternity Council, PHC and National Pan-Hellenic Council, is made up of the profits Greek Sing produces from the event, said Stephen Rupprecht, assistant director of greek and community life. During the event, 20 sororities from PHC paired with twenty fraternities from IFC will perform eight-minute presentations, including one or two songs and a speaking part from a Broadway play of their choice. Some of the performances will include scenes from Fiddler on the Roof, Jesus Christ Superstar and Cinderella, Rupprecht said. "It (Greek Sing) is a celebration of greek talent," said Rupprecht. Tickets will be available tomorrow at the HUB/Paul Robeson Cultural Center. They also can be purchased at the Eisenhower ticket office during the weekend and prior to the event. The cost of the tickets is $7.

Hacker tampers with weather Web site

Sometime between 9:30 and 11 p.m. Wednesday, an unknown person changed the weather forecast on the Campus Weather Service's Web site (www.meteo.psu.edu/cws/), according to CWS Vice President Matt Cerrato. Yesterday and today's weather forecasts were replaced with inappropriate sexual innuendoes. The Web site was last updated at 10:54 p.m. Wednesday. The only computer with access to editing the Web site is centrally located inside the weather station, Cerrato said. For security purposes, CWS has discussed installing a card access system to the room with the Department of Meteorology, said CWS President Michael Kidonakis. CWS is not sure of what happened, but an internal investigation is under way and disciplinary action will be taken when the person responsible is found, Cerrato said. "We are continuing to investigate," Kidonakis said. "If and when we find the person who is responsible, we intend to turn the person over to university security." CWS is a nonprofit volunteer organization run by meteorology students.

AMERICORPS NATIONAL SERVICE

"I learned that change is not easy, but it is possible."

When Sanjay Garla left college, he doubted whether his classroom lessons related to the real world. But joining AmeriCorps helped him make the connection he had been lacking. By the end of the year, he had launched a public education drive to help community residents get the health care they needed. "AmeriCorps challenged me and helped me grow," Sanjay says. "After that year, I returned to school with new skills and a better sense of direction."
