

Monroig stays positive through tough season

Megan Monroig would have made the same move her coach did.

After admitted-ly struggling against Minnesota on Oct. 16, Monroig was told she would be benched for senior defender Mo Ryan.

The junior had started every game up until this point, but coach Erica Walsh said Monroig took it "so well." Monroig is now content with her backup role.

"Now that we're into NCAAs, it is all about the team," Monroig said. "There's no individuals whatsoever, and everything is about what's best for the team. As long as Mo is playing great then I have no problem not being in there because she's doing such a wonderful job for us."

Monroig and the No. 16 Penn State women's soccer team (12-5-2, 8-1-1 Big Ten) will take the field at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Jeffrey Field against Colgate (11-6-3) in the first round of the NCAA Tournament. If the Nittany Lions defeat the Patriot League champs, they'll advance to play the winner of Virginia and St. John's, who play at 5 p.m. in Happy Valley.

Having another home game means Monroig's family and friends can easily travel from their hometown of Northumberland to State College to watch the Lions play, because it's an hour away.

When Monroig's father, Rodney Swineford, died in a tractor-trailer accident last year, Monroig played quality minutes against Michigan two days later.

"She handled it with such grace, and she didn't get angry or anything," senior Melissa Hayes said. "She just makes everyone laugh. ... It's just great to see that kind of joy out of someone who's suffered such a great loss."

Monroig has taken everything in stride. She has been learning how to play defense all season long — something she had never done since she started playing soccer at age 5.

Assistant coach Michael Coll praised Monroig's performance as a defender all season long.

He emphasized the coaching staff is confident plugging in any combination of the five defenders into the four backline spots.

Monroig said she's comfortable playing any position on the pitch — noting her brief stint as a forward in the Lions' 2-0 victory against Michigan.

Hayes noticed too.

"In practice she'll ask a million questions because she wants to make sure she has it right," Hayes said.

"And you can just see that concentration carry into the game."

Monroig makes sure she keeps the atmosphere light in the huddle, too. Hayes said her teammate will frequently jump in front of Walsh in a huddle to make everybody laugh.

"I love joking around and being funny. That's one of my favorite things," she said. "During water breaks at practice things don't have to be focused then. We all feel it's something important to keep things balanced a little bit and to continue to enjoy ourselves."
