

STATE COLLEGE STAYS BELOW CENSUS RETURN RATE LOCAL, Page 3.

BUNNY

Echo and the... entertain... ARTS & E...

psuccollegian.com

The Daily Collegian

Published independently by students at Penn State

Vol. 110 No. 148

Thursday, April 29, 2010

30 cents off campus

Tom Ruane/Collegian

Paternovile-goers set up last season. The university e-mailed students about procedures for the fall season on Wednesday.

Past leader questions IFC

The former president is unsure about rewarding Chapters of Excellence with Wednesday socials.

By Sarah Peters COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

In a tweet Wednesday afternoon, former Interfraternity Council (IFC) President Luke Pierce expressed disappointment in the IFC's "use of alcohol as a carrot" to reward five chapters.

Pierce (senior-economics) said the use of alcohol sends the wrong message that "alcohol is indeed paramount" and using it as an incentive is not a sustainable model for encouraging good behavior.

Wendkos

"It's disheartening that the select few excellent fraternities are rewarded with the privilege of drinking on a Wednesday night," Pierce said. "It's sending the exact opposite message to our members that the finest fraternities are the ones being rewarded rather than leading the way in addressing the problem of excessive drinking and dangerous behavior."

Pierce

Current IFC President Max Wendkos said he doesn't think granting Wednesday socials to the five "chapters of excellence" — Sigma Nu, Tau Phi Delta, Theta Chi, Theta Delta Chi and Tau Kappa Epsilon — will create an unsafe drinking environment on Wednesday nights. The selected fraternities have proven their risk

See IFC, Page 2.

Ticket system to stay

Officials said the steps for buying football tickets will see minor tweaks next season.

By Andrew J. Cassavell COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

Following large-scale changes to Penn State football ticket sales during each of the last few years, 2010 may come as a surprise: Everything is staying pretty much the same.

In an e-mail released Wednesday to students through Penn State Student Central, the athletic department announced the sale will cycle through each class and run June 21 to 25. Like the 2009 system, this year will feature pre-registration from May 27 to June 2.

The price — $218 total or $31.14 per game — is a $0.26 raise per game from last season's cost.

"The sales process itself will be a virtual mirror image of last year," Associate Athletic Director for Marketing and Communications Greg Myford said. "We're still working on some small changes, but in some ways we're going by, 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it.'"

Myford said the athletic department is still trying to modify the process of buying and selling tickets before a game. He said last season's 5 p.m. Thursday deadline was too early in the week for students to exchange tickets.

See TICKETS, Page 2.

If you go

What: Student ticket sales
When: June 21 & 25
Where: ticketmaster.com
Details: Pre-registration is required and will occur May 27 through June 2 depending on semester standing.

IF YOU BUILD IT...

Tom Ruane/Collegian

The Millenium Science Complex continues to undergo construction Tuesday. The building has been under construction for the past two years and is expected to be complete in June 2011. Builders are currently working on construction within the building. These tasks include several green initiatives to make the building energy efficient. For full story on the construction | LOCAL, Page 3.

Police: Exposure incident in HUB

By Greg Galiffa COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

Police are looking for an unidentified man who indecently exposed himself to a female student at about 2:45 p.m. Tuesday on the east side of the HUB-Robeson Center.

The female student sat down in a chair on the building's first floor and saw a man sitting in a chair next to her exposing his genitalia and masturbating, Penn State Police said. The student then grabbed her belongings and left the area, police said.

Police could not confirm if the man is a Penn State student but described him as a white college-aged male with an average build and dirty blonde hair, police said.

He is 6-foot-2 and was wearing blue-and-white shorts, a long-sleeve blue T-shirt and sneakers, police said. He was carrying a dark colored backpack, police said.

This isn't the first indecent exposure this semester. On March 2, a female resident in East Halls reported to police that a skinny man with dark eyes indecently exposed himself to her while she was in one of the women's communal bathrooms, police said.

See INCIDENT, Page 2.

Courtesy of Penn State Police

This man is a suspect in the masturbation incident, police said.

UPUA passes budget

The assembly also approved an initiative that will lend bikes to students for free.

By Paige Minemyer COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

After a long discussion, the University Park Undergraduate Association (UPUA) passed its $139,628.55 budget for the 2010-2011 academic year with a vote of 33-3-3.

Several amendments were made to the budget that was initially presented to the assembly at Wednesday night's meeting. UPUA Programming Chairwoman Chrissy Boggs gave a revamped budget to the members of the assembly prior to the discussion, suggesting several key changes to the allocation of funds.

Boggs (junior-international politics) also suggested the assembly use money originally allocated to a discretionary account, moving it to other project. Some UPUA members said they were disappointed with the fact they had to make so many changes — which included revamping allocations of funds to most areas of the budget.

"I think it's sad that we're looking at two completely different budgets," said Chairwoman

See UPUA, Page 2.

Seniors, alumni gather at Hintz for sendoff

By Colleen Boyle COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

For Jen O'Neill, Lauren Subosits, Lindsay Adams and Lindsey Earle, whose friendship began four years ago at Penn State, Wednesday was bittersweet. The four seniors sat squished on a bench outside of the Hintz Family Alumni Center, sharing pizza and still unable to grasp that the word "alumnae" will soon apply to them.

This year's senior sendoff, "Aloha Class of 2010," was sponsored by the Lion Ambassadors as a chance for the senior class to gather before they don blue caps and gowns.

"It's to thank the seniors and get them in with the Alumni Association so they can see what they can do for Penn State after graduation," Lion Ambassador Katie Martin (senior-French and business) said.

Those who gathered could indulge in pizza, pulled pork sandwiches, cotton candy and Berkey Creamery ice cream cones.

About 500 guests pre-registered for the event, but Martin predicted between 1,500 and 3,000 seniors would stop by during the afternoon.

Bringing together any Penn State senior class is a mighty feat — one that is not often attempted during a student's time in Happy Valley. But despite the enormity of the soon-to-be graduating class, Earle (senior-supply chain and

See SENDOFF, Page 2.

Peter Tesonero/Collegian

Ashley Grfm (junior-marketing) and Curran McCready (junior-finance) make snowcones for seniors who attended senior sendoff.