'Inception' wins out box office

By David Germain

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

LOS ANGELES — Leonardo DiCaprio and Christopher Nolan's "Inception" is anything but a sleeper as the thriller opened big with $60.4 million and a No. 1 finish at the weekend box office, according to studio estimates Sunday.

The Warner Bros. action tale about a team that sneaks into people's dreams is DiCaprio's biggest opening weekend, topping his previous best of $41.1 million for last winter's "Shutter Island."

"Inception" falls far short of director Christopher Nolan's best, though. Nolan is the man who directed the Batman blockbuster "The Dark Knight," which opened over the same weekend two years ago with a record $158.4 million.

Warner Bros. has carved out a niche with this particular mid-July weekend. The studio followed "The Dark Knight" with a $77.8 million opening for "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince" over the same weekend last year.

superstitious, but stay away from this weekend. I own it," said Dan Fellman, head of distribution for Warner Bros.

debuts on the same weekend next summer. Warner plans to open Nolan's third "Batman" movie over that weekend two years from now, though Fellman said the studio could move it to an earlier date that summer.

plant an idea in a wealthy heir's subconscious.

Slipping to second place with $32.7 million was the previous weekend's No. 1 movie, Steve Carell's animated hit "Despicable Me." The Universal release raised its 10-day total to $118.4 million.

Disney's family adventure "The 'We like this spot. Not to sound Sorcerer's Apprentice'' was a dud, opening at No. 3 with $17.4 million, lifting its total to $24.5 million since premiering Wednesday.

"It's disappointing to say the The final "Harry Potter" movie least," said Chuck Viane, head of distribution for Disney, which had high hopes for the movie. "I'm perplexed. I have no response, because I honestly don't know what went wrong."

The movie reunites the team behind the hit "National Treasure" movies — Nicolas Cage, producer Jerry as leader of a team that normally Bruckheimer and director Jon Turteltaub — for an action comesteal their secrets but now has dy about an ancient wizard trainbeen hired to do the opposite - ing an awkward apprentice (Jay Monday.

Baruchel) to take down an evil sorceress in modern Manhattan.

Bruckheimer has been a blockbuster producer for Disney with such hits as "The Rock," 'Armageddon" and the "Pirates of the Caribbean" franchise.

But "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" was the summer's second Disney-Bruckheimer production to come up short at the domestic box office, following "Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time," which was unable to crack the $100 million mark.

"Jerry's working on 'Pirates 4' as we speak," Viane said of the Johnny Depp sequel due out next summer.

"I'll go to bat with Jerry any day, because his track record is pretty darn good."

"Inception" With and "Despicable Me," the weekend marked a rare instance when two original stories - not sequels, spinoffs or adaptations of comic books, best-sellers or other properties - led the box office.

Hollywood relies on familiar titles such as "Iron Man 2," "The Twilight Saga: Eclipse" and "Toy Story 3" for most of its big summer releases, though the occasional fresh idea manages to score with audiences.

"We let all of the sequels and popcorn films come out and get the summer rolling, then we come in here with this original concept," Fellman said of "Inception." "We're in a good place to run now for the rest of the summer.

Next Stage puts on '50s tragi-comedy

It doesn't matter if it's yesterday, today or tomorrow - the characters of "Waiting for Godot" will continue to wait on an old country road with a bare tree and a rock.

Carlijn van Nieuwland, who attended Thursday's performance, said she enjoyed "Waiting for Godot.

"I've always liked the play, but I've never seen it before, so it was nice to finally be able to see it." she said.

In "Waiting for Godot," two vagabonds — Estragon and Vladimir — wait for Godot because the pair want to know what Godot's answer is to their prayer.

While waiting, characters Pozzo and Lucky cross Estragon and Vladimir's path. Pozzo decides to stay a while before heading off to the fair to sell Lucky, his pet. The four tell various stories until Pozzo decides to depart.

Then a boy, Godot's messenger. comes and tells Estragon and Vladimir that Godot will not be coming today but will definitely make an appearance tomorrow. The pair resolves to return the following day and wait.

Co-artistic director Jay D. Shuchter said The Next Stage decided to perform "Waiting for Godot" as part of its year of "famous masterpiece plays."

Mary Skees, The Next Stage's other artistic director, said the turnout for the play has been $14, with a $2 box office fee. particularly good. We're getting a much bigger turnout than we have been [at prior plays], so this is very pleasing to get this turnout, and there's been a much higher percentage of people under 30, which is really good." Skees said. "I hope people will come and see it because you don't have many times to see this play. and it's a classic.'

Vickie Boone, whose son played the boy in the play, said she was surprised by the play.

"I think it's more humorous than I expected, and the acting is very good," she said.

Audience member Ed Boone said "Waiting for Godot" is a play someone should see more than once to fully understand its meaning. "I would have to say it's a lot of substance for just a few actors," Ed Boone said. "It's a live performance at it's most basic... no props, intimate setting - it's probably easy to connect with the characters.
