

Lions overcome challenges during game

By Andrew Robinson
COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

By the time Sunday's game against Michigan State started, the Penn State men's soccer team was already down its captain.

MEN'S SOCCER

And obstacles kept piling on from there.

But despite a injury that held senior Drew Cost out, three yellow cards, plenty of fouls and a very involved referee, the team kept pressing, emerging with a win. They just wish officials would take it easy during Big Ten games.

"It affects [the game] a little bit, but in the end you can't let it affect you," junior defender Matt Smallwood said. "We've had a couple guys here, this sideline ref blew a call against Indiana, but you can't complain about it, it happens. We've just got to keep our mentality and keep our composure."

The game took a physical tone early and it persisted the entire 90 minutes. Several players went down after collisions, including defender Brian Forgue and midfielder Matheus Braga.

With physical play came altercations, as both teams got involved in shoving matches after yellow cards were shown. But it was the players, not the officials, who prevented anything from going further.

"I was proud of our guys, and the same thing with the Indiana game, they broke everything up," Penn State coach Bob Warming said. "Every time there was a little something, the players took care of it. They managed it themselves. There was a little bit of a temper but they managed it and that's the way it ought to be."

At the half, the Lions knew they need to make changes in order to win the game. It started with a change from a 4-4-2 formation to a 4-3-3 but also in personnel.

Junior centre back Mark

Fetrow sat the second half, moving Fogue inside and putting John Gallagher at left back. Smallwood and Warming praised Fetrow's sacrifice in choosing to sit for the best of the team.

It's the newest new either. Senior co-captain Andres Casais has sat the last two games to let redshirt senior Andy Parr in the lineup and Parr has turned in two strong showings as a result.

"When you're sharp and you're in form, everything's great. But when you're not, you have to give way to a teammate," Warming said. "Those guys are awesome teammates, they're incredible."

Despite the changes, the Lions defense proved to be a strong point all game. Forgue made a critical save in the first half after goalkeeper Brendan Birmingham was out of position.

Smallwood said the defense is playing as one unit, regardless of what four players are playing on the field.

With a solid defense behind them, the team's offensive players have plenty of confidence when they press up on attack.

"It's a great back four, I'm not worried about them at all," Hertzog said. "The only goal they scored on us was ten yards off-sides, so I'm not even worried about when [opponents] get the ball in the other half."

Conrad's 3rd error gives Giants 3-2 win vs. Braves

By Paul Newberry
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

ATLANTA --- Brooks Conrad bobbled a grounder. Then he dropped a popup. Finally, a hard shot skidded under his glove in the ninth inning, his third error of the game, allowing the San Francisco Giants to rally for a 3-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves on Sunday.

The Braves were within one out of taking control of the NL division series.

But it was a 30-year-old journeyman infielder who wouldn't have been playing if not for season-ending injuries to Chipper Jones and Martin Prado simply couldn't catch the ball.

Buster Posey's grounder went right under Conrad's glove, his worst miscue yet in a performance that might speed up the retirement of Braves manager Bobby Cox.

Freddy Sanchez yearned around with the go-ahead run, and Brian Wilson shut down the Braves in the ninth to give the Giants a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series.

San Francisco can close it out Monday night.

For Conrad, the memories of this game will linger for an entire lifetime.

Atlanta did nothing against Jonathan Sanchez, managing only two hits in 7 1-3 innings, and the Giants led 1-0 on an unearned run provided by Conrad's second error: that dropped popup in short right field in the second.

But when pinch-hitter Eric Hinske lined a two-run homer off Sergio Romo in the eighth, the Braves took a 2-1 lead.

But unfortunately for Atlanta, there was no Billy Wagner to close it out.

He was removed from the pulled muscle on his left side.

Rookie reliever Craig Kimbrel was within one out of a save before the Giants rallied.

Aubrey Huff tied it with a run-scoring single off Mike Dunn. Then, Posey hit a grounder to just the right man.

It skidded through Conrad and into center field.
