Gubernatorial candidate to visit campus

The Penn State Grassroots Network will host gubernatorial candidate Dan Onorato at 3 p.m. today in the Paul Robeson Cultural Center's Heritage Hall as part of the educational forum open to the public.

No tickets are required, but seating will be available on a first-come, first-serve basis. After opening remarks from Onorato, the event will follow a question-and-answer structure.

The expected focus of the open forum is higher education, and the event is co-sponsored by the Council of Commonwealth Student Governments and Penn State's Graduate Student Association.

Police: Man with .369 BAC stopped

At about 2 a.m. Sunday, a 22-year-old man was initially stopped early for an open container violation at 126 S. Fraser St.

He was later found to have a blood alcohol content of .369, according to a preliminary breathalyzer test, the State College Police Department said.

The man was taken to Mount Nittany Medical Center for treatment and will be cited via summons for public drunkenness.

Police: Student broke into residence

Penn State student Herbert G. Klann, 23, was arrested at about 3:20 a.m. Friday after he was seen entering a house inside a 1216 William St. house after having been told the residence was secured earlier that night, the State College Police Department said.

Klann, 23, of Butler, Pa., is charged with second-degree criminal trespass, one count of misdemeanor burglary and prowling at night time, and one count of simple assault and mischief, police said.

Police said a resident awoke to noises around 3:15 a.m. and "strangely" and found Klann sleeping on a sofa in the living room, at which point the resident called police. Klann exhibited an odor of an alcoholic beverage and was later found inside the residence.

The resident told police all doors to the house were locked, but it was later discovered that a window to the porch had been shattered and was standing open. Police said Klann was seen running away from the house.

Earlier that night, police said they were called to a residence at 1224 William St., to reports that a woman was awakened by a male at her back door. The woman and homeowner screamed at him. Police said the two incidents were related to the later one involving Klann.

Four Simmons trespassing cases reported

Four more cases of trespassing in Simmons Hall were reported from October 15 to October 21, police said. The incidents occurred during the weekend, Penn State Police said.

At 2:24 a.m. Saturday, a student told police he saw an unescorted man on the second floor of Simmons Hall at 2:15 a.m., police said. Police said they were called to the scene at 2:15 a.m., police said. Police said the unescorted man fled when officers arrived.

Later that morning between 9:50 a.m. and 10:30 a.m., three separate students also reported incidents in Simmons Hall. At 9:50 a.m., a student saw an unescorted male in the hallway on the fourth floor. At 10:18 a.m., a student reported an unescorted male on the sixth floor. At 10:21 a.m., a student reported an unescorted male on the fourth floor.

Police said they could not provide names of the individuals regarding the most recently reported incident. The investigations are ongoing.

Residents: Unknown man entered dorms

Two female residents of Porter Hall said an unknown man entered their dorm rooms — one on the fourth floor and another on the sixth floor — at about 6:15 a.m. Sunday, police said.

The man left soon after entering each room and a student was injured, police said. The dorm rooms were unlocked when the trespassing occurred, police said.

Police said the incidents are related and that further details are available at this time, but the investigations are ongoing.

Penn State professors Tianyou Zhang, Jim P. van Wazer speak about "Granular Flow" at 10 a.m. in the Paul Robeson Cultural Center Building. The event will be held in the Paul Robeson Cultural Center Mathematics. For more information, contact 814-865-1828.

Zoning decision stalled again

By Colleen Boyle
COLLEGIAN STAFF WRITER

A decision on the zoning of the 234 E. Beaver Ave. property some council members hope to see become high-rise downtown housing has still not been reached.

On Thursday, State College Planning Commission members unanimously voted down a proposal regarding parking and height restrictions for building on the property, stalling a discussion that began in April.

The consensus was that there is no consensus," commission chairman Evan Myers said.

"So basically the decision was that we were not going to rezone it to anything else because nothing has been put forward that makes sense," Myers said.

Throughout the Planning Commission's discussions on the property, community members expressed their opinions about building more student housing. "The zoning can't be resolved, that area."

Many were starkly opposed to the zoning change again. Then, the idea and said they were concerned that another student housing project would draw too many people to the area on the week end. Students to the area on the week end. Commission members expressed their duty to consider the community's needs as well as the property owner. "I think it's a tight spot for the community as a whole," Myers said. "There's a whole cultural issue here regarding density of students. It's a matter of different issues."

Commission member Don Carpenter said she was one of those who expressed her opinions how many issues could be resolved around one property.

"In my opinion, before we rezone housing is provided for that particular area, some zoning issues need to be resolved," Carpenter said.

Field

Hill said there are many reasons to name Beaver Stadium after Coach Paterno.

"Why shouldn't Coach Paterno reserve this honor? He's consistently run a clean [football] program. It's given back to the university in many ways," Hill said.

McClintock said he holds high expectations for student response.

Paterno Field based on a survey response his campaign has received so far.

He said when he contacted Penn State athletic department officials earlier this month, they were "overwhelmed" by letters and emails about Paterno Field.

Hill said she is looking for a group of students to petition Penn State at Beaver Stadium for Saturday home game against University of Michigan.

Canning

The Greek community was not informed ahead of time.

"We fully understand the reasons for Psi Chi's current leaders have chosen to use the event's full budget to purchase new canning materials. Our only interest is in preserving the Greek community." Council Panhellenic spoke out of respect to Psi Chi's leaders and to maintain the 150-year-old tradition that binds the Greek community."

The student was arrested on Saturday.

The student Vice President of Psi Chi said she understands the decision and is sorry for the loss.

Construction

The new HUB lawn side of the building that will be a venue not only for HUB events but for HUB sponsorship, concerts and other outdoor events.

The construction of the facility will have implications on the surrounding area though.

Kristof Ritsko, project manager for the construction, said a portion of the HUB lawn will be closed to move construction vehicles safely in and out of the area.

But walkways will be built so students and faculty can still access the area.

For the second set, the band performed the song "Wanted to Live" which was performed by founding members Henley and Frey, guitarist Walsh and bassist Timothy Schmit.

"This is the way we started out, sitting around in a circle playing guitars," Frey told the audience. "What a concept."

In addition to playing the songs the band put out together, they also performed songs from each member solo work from when the band split in the '80s and early '90s including Walsh's "Life's Been Good," which received a standing ovation from the crowd.
