In Westminster Abbey.
St. Edward's chapel is the most sacred spot in Westminster abbey, for it incloses the body of Edward the Confessor, the first king who has any historic claim to be called its founder. It is entered by a flight of ten steps from the north ambulatory. On Oct. 13, 1269, the walrusot chest which contained the confessor's body was brought from the palace to its new resting place. Henry III., his brother, Richard, king of the Romans, and his two sons bore the coffin on their shoulders.—London Standard.

Dying Poor.
It is no disgrace to die poor, but it's a mean trick to play on your relatives.—Boston Transcript.

Goethe.
Besides his five or six consummate works, which by universal consent are practically above criticism, it may be said that Goethe's songs are the best in the world. He is the greatest of all literary critics, and in subtle and abundant observation of human life and in the number and value of his wise remarks and pregnant sentences he is one of the greatest writers of all time. Goethe may be classed as one of the "greatest men."—New York American.

The One Drawback.
Most town men would like to farm if it were not for doing the farm work.—Aitchison Globe.

White Socks Diplomacy.
She—Jimmy wears different socks every day. He—How to you know? She—By just looking at them. Sundays he wears white ones; on Mondays he wears them shaded under the ankles, and on Tuesdays he has a cute little ring around them next to his shoetips. He—And the rest of the week? She—He wears high shoes.—Detroit Free Press.

A Spirit of Resignation.
An actor on his benefit night, having a very limited audience, when he came to the often quoted passage, "Tis not in mortals to command success, but we'll do more, Sempronius; we'll deserve it," heaved a deep sigh and substituted for the last line, "But we'll do more, Sempronius; we'll do without it."—"Pictures and the Picture Goer."

THIS VERY DAY.
Yesterday is gone. Tomorrow may never come. I believe in today. It is all that I possess. The past is of value only as it can make the life of today fuller and freer. There is no assurance of tomorrow. I must make good today.—Charles Stelzle.

A Summer of Haze.
Europe and Asia were covered by fog during the summer of 1783. Says Gilbert White (letter 109): "The summer of the year 1783 was an amazing and a portentous one, * * * for, besides the alarming meteors and tremendous thunderstorms, * * * the peculiar haze or smoky fog that prevailed for many weeks in this island (England) and in every part of Europe and even beyond its limits was a most extraordinary appearance. The heat was intense. Calabria and part of the Isle of Sicily were torn and convulsed with earthquakes." Cowper also refers to this phenomenon in speaking of "nature, with a dim and sickly eye."

A Dictionary Pillow.
I once knew a woman who wrote books, a woman who was very learned in the matter of French and Latin and German and Greek. Often when her nights were dark and dreadful and sleepless, she would lie awake and think of words—what language they were derived from and what their original meanings had been. She told me that it was a great source of pleasure to her and kept her from growing nervous when she felt wide awake. Often through the chill gray dawn I, too, lie awake and think about words to keep myself from the unpleasant imaginings that sometimes haunt me in the nighttime.—Christian Herald.

At the Foot.
Pater (sadly)—I don't know what to do with that boy of mine. He's been two years at the medical school and still keeps at the foot of his class.
Perrins (promptly)—Make a chiropractist of him.

The Magnetic Poles.
The north magnetic pole is in latitude 70 degrees 5 minutes, and west longitude 96 degrees 45 minutes. The south magnetic pole is in latitude 72 degrees 30 minutes, and in east longitude 155 degrees 30 minutes. A straight line drawn from pole to pole through the earth would pass at a distance of 50 miles from the center. And one of the remarkable facts about this magnetic axis of the earth is that it keeps itself at right angles to a line drawn from its center to the center of the sun.—New York American.

Cold Feet.
During a marriage ceremony in Scotland recently the bridegroom looked extremely wretched, and he got so fidgety, standing first on one foot and then on the other, that the "best man" decided he would find out what the trouble was.
"What's up, Jack?" he whispered.
"Hae ye lost the ring?"
"No," answered the unhappy one, with a woful look. "The ring's safe enough, but, man, I've lost ma enthusiasm."—Boston Transcript.

A Proud Boast.
A teachers' meeting was in progress, and it was decided that the more difficult subjects should come in the morning and those that required less application later in the day. History was last on the list, and Miss Wheeler, the young teacher, protested.
"But it certainly is easier than science or mathematics," the principal insisted.
"As I teach it," replied the young teacher, "no subject could be more difficult and confusing."—Lippincott's.

When a Hedgehog Awakes.
When a hibernating hedgehog awakens it rapidly warms itself up. Whether this is done automatically or whether it is due to the awakening animal "pulling itself together" seems to be a moot point. The fact is that the animal rapidly warms itself up. The chemistry of this is a rapid combustion of glycogen along with a small or moderate quantity of fat. There seems no doubt that the important fuel which so rapidly makes the fire of life burn up is glycogen; the fat is only subsidiary. It must be noticed that in the hedgehog the awakening and the warming up are two distinct though associated processes, for the animal may be awake at a lower temperature.

THE TURNING POINT.
In all lives, the highest and humblest, there is a crisis in the formation of character and in the bent of disposition. It comes from many sources and from some which on the surface are apparently trivial. It may be a book, a speech, a sermon, a great misfortune or a burst of prosperity. But the result is the same—a sudden revelation to ourselves of our secret purpose and a recognition of our perhaps long shadowed but now masterful convictions.

Watch Crystals.
A few factories in Europe make all the watch crystals used in the world. These comprise five in Lorraine, two in France, two in Switzerland, one in Alsace and one in Bohemia. The annual output is about 800,000 gross. Hand labor is employed to a great extent in making the crystals, and the wages paid are very small.

Confused.
"You must pardon me!" exclaimed the golfer. "The trouble is that I have been so perplexed about naval matters that I got confused."
"What's that got to do with the game?"
"You didn't hear my warning. I said 'Aft!' when I should have said 'Fore!'"—Washington Star.

HUMAN WISDOM.
Human wisdom makes as ill use of her talent when she exercises it in rescinding from the number and sweetness of those pleasures that are naturally our due as she employs it favorably and well in artificially disguising and tricking out the ills of life to alleviate the sense of them.—Montaigne.

Quick Growing Rice.
In Siam there is under cultivation a common sort of rice which in flood times grows as much as a foot in twelve hours, so that the plant often attains a height of ten feet in its efforts to keep its leaves above water.

Telegraph Wires.
A telegraph wire in the open country lasts four times as long as one in a city.
Getting Things Shipshape.
"Dearest," said the sentimental bridegroom after the wedding ceremony, "do you think that I'll prove to be a satisfactory mate?"
"Oh, I guess you'll do all right," responded the practical bride, "and now look me over and tell me what you think of your captain."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Take to the Woods.
Mrs. Bacon—This paper says that the forests of the United States cover 50,000,000 acres.
Mrs. Egbert—No wonder it's difficult to find a man during housecleaning time.—Yorkers Standard.

No Chance of That.

The beggar accepted gratefully a nickel from the professional humorist.
"Thank you, sir," he said, his voice vibrant with deep feeling. "Oh, thank you, sir, and may you live to be as old as your jokes."—Washington Post.

Stevenson's Whimsical Attire.
Here is a picturesque glimpse of Stevenson's whimsical attire as given in the "Collected Essays of Edmund Gosse:"

"Stevenson was not without a good deal of innocent oddity in his dress. When I try to conjure up his figure I can only see a slight, lean lad in a suit of blue sea cloth, a black shirt and a wisp of yellow carpet that did duty for a necktie. This was long his attire, persevered in to the anguish of his more conventional acquaintances. I have a ludicrous memory of going in 1878 to buy him a new hat, in company with Mr. Lang, the thing then upon his head having lost the semblance of a human article of dress."

The Adjutant Bird.
It is stated that the adjutant, or marabou, a tall bird of India, of the stork species, will swallow a hare or a cat whole. It stands five feet high, and the expanse of the wings is nearly fifteen feet.

MODERATE ABILITY.
The art of being able to make a good use of moderate abilities wins esteem and often confers more reputation than greater real merit.—La Rochelecauld.

Successful.
"I started out on the theory that the world had an opening for me, and I went to find it."
"Did you find it?"
"Oh, yes; I'm in a hole."—Baltimore American.

Great Combination.
"She has a very keen perception."
"Yes, and a sharp tongue."—Buffalo Express.

The Sofa in Germany.
In Germany the sofa is invested with a sanctity as of a throne. The visitor must not sit upon it unless especially invited to do so by the hostess. To take a seat there unasked is an outrageous presumption.

Lucky He Was Saved.
"You can't convince me," said the little man with the ragged trousers, "that you can bring up children right by talkin' to 'em and lettin' it go at that. You've got to use the rod, or you'll spoil the child. I used to git about three lickin's a day on the average."
"It doesn't seem to have done much for you," replied the lady with the protruding jaw.
"It done a lot for me. If they'd let me go my own way I might almost of been a failure in life."—Judge.
