The harp, says an English writer, was the highlander's instrument be- fore the bagpipe. That point was in- sisted upon by a Scotsman of fifty years ago, the lord advocate of the time, who was anxious to disclaim his country's responsibility for the bag- pipes and to show that they were "English, essentially English." He ap- pealed to Shakespeare, who often mere tions the pipes, but not once in "Mae beth," his only Scottish drama. It is in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire that he localizes the instrument, James IV.'s accounts contain an item for "Inglis pyparis," while our Edward I had his court pipers, and from his time on the Elizabeth's mention of such oftensite onstantly recurs Most Englishned at conduct across the torter. A Great War "Scoop." Days have changed for the war correspondent since Archibald Forbes was praised in the house of lords by Lord Salisbury and received by Queen Victoria at Buckingham palace in recognition of his exploits as a news gatherer during the Russo-Turkish war of 1877. Forbes' greatest exploit was his ride from Shipka pass to the nearest telegraph station at Bukharest and his reception en route by the czar. to whom he was the first to communicate news of the Russian victory, the former trooper of the Royals having outdistanced not only all rival correspondents, but the official messengers as well.-London Mail.

RIGHT LIVING.

Live right today and it will be a step toward living right tomorrow. No man has any right to expect to live differently tomorrow from the way in which he is living today. Whathe chooses for today he chooses for tomorrow. What he overcomes today he is overcoming for tomorrow. Yet most of us live as though we did not believe this, and we try hard to persuade ourselves that we are safe in so living.

PATTI STOOD PAT.

She Wanted Her Money Before She Sang, and She Got It.

One of Adelina Patti's peculiarities was that she never sang a note until she had her salary either paid or so fully assured that there was no doubt as to her getting it. When she sang at the Academy of Music, in New York, at one time the manager was sorely put about to find money to pay her, but she always stoutly refused to sing until she had her salary.

One night at a quarter past 8 her representative went to him and said: "Madam is all dressed except her shoes. She will put those on when

The manager, half distracted, rushed about the house and succeeded in raising one-half the amount due the prima donna, which he hastily sent to her. But another quarter of an hour passed. and, though the audience showed great impatience, there was no Patti, whereat the manager ran to her room.

"My dear madam, why do you not go on? I have sent you half the money, and the rest will reach you before the end of the first act."

Patti smiled dolefully, exhibited the tips of her feet and said: "You see, I have only coe shoe on. I cannot go on the stage without the other. It would be quite impossible."

Almost crazed, the manager rushed out and discovered that the other half of the money could be raised .- New York Tribune.
