A PLEA FOR DANGER.

This Writer Argues That Too Much Safety May Breed Weaklings.

In these days of the placarding of safety first" and the juxtaposition of "safe and sane," is a voice necessarily that of a madman if it be heard in the land singing the praises of danger and wisk? With all our laws and move ments and committees for the elimination from our daily life of all chances unfavorable to life, limb, health and property are we in no danger of saving the body at the expense of the spirit?

Too great security breeds weaklings, and too nervous a regard for physical safety is not only craven but ultimate-Ly unwise. Our nation, if it is to be great and free, must set high value on the courage, resourcefulness and high spirit of the individual citizen. Now, courage is nourished on dangers coped with, and the prudent soul that always "plays safe" cannot be called high or moble. Our evolution up to this point has always been conditioned by the need of self preservation in the face of innumerable enveloping dangers. The creature that hesitated to take chances or always avoided threatened injury soon ceased to exist, either as species or individual.

Hence our bodies, our minds, our very spirits have been evolved, in part at least, to fulfill this function of coping with some kind of danger. For what purpose our eyes, our ears, our nerves, our muscles, our sense of right and wrong? A removal, then, from our environment of this element of danger tends to be followed by degeneracy and atrophy in all parts of our natures. Indeed, in modern life we are prone to become stall fed in body and spirit. This we tacitly con-Less in our passion for sport, which is essentially mimic hunting or war and for the vicarious adventure of romantic fiction.-Scribner's.

MARBLES OF VERMONT.

They Surpass the Product of Italy's

Famous Quarries. The greatest marble producing indus try in the world is no longer to be found in the famous Carrara district of Italy, but in Vermont, where one of the richest veins in the world stretches In an irregular line across the state.

So great is the production of marble In this section that the inhabitants have lost much of their appreciation of its value and use it for such humble and utilitarian purposes as paving, un derpinning for barns, hitching posts, stepping stones and drinking troughs for horses. This vein is about fiftyseven miles long, from 1,600 to 2,200 feet in width and runs from 375 to 850 feet in depth, and from it is being taken in enormous quantities white marble that is equal to the finest Ital fan marble as well as an endless va riety of blue, yellow, green and jet black marbles.

For quarrying and finishing the marble the most up to date methods and equipment are used, no part of the work being done by hand that can possibly be done by machinery. Hand methods of drilling, still in vogue in Italy, have been entirely superseded by power driven drills and channeling machines. The blocks as they come from the quarry are handled by dercricks and are conveyed in most cases by an inclined railway or a ropeway to the mills, where they are sawed and shaped by power driven machines, only the last delicate stage of polishing being done by hand.-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Song and Addition.

If soldiers be encouraged by the authorities to sing on the march civil servants might be exhorted to lighten their duties in the same way. Sir Laurence Gomme confesses that at the beginning of his official career he used to add up huge columns of figures for statistical purposes by the simple process of doing the task to the tune of Gregorian music, and he was always correct in his arithmetical results. Examples of the practice of performing labor tasks to the accompaniment of music could, Sir Laurence says, be produced from all over the world. He in-Stances the case of the London pavers who until forty years ago or so used to be mulcted by their mates of the price of a pot of ale if they omitted to groan rythmically at each thud of the ram.-London Standard.

Dog Speaks.

The plantom day specter was one of the hardest of old English supersti tions. Almost every county had its black dog which haunted its lonely spots and was the dread of every native. Most of them were regarded as devils, but some were held to be the spirits of human beings, transformed thus as a punishment. Lady Howard. a Devon notable of the days of James I., for instance, was said to be compelled to haunt Okehampton in the form of a dog as a punishment for her cruelty to her daughter.

His Gift.

"They say he gets $25 for his speeches!" "Yep. He's pecuniarily gifted."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.
A Doleful Mood.

The proprietor of a Paris cafe noticed that after he had refused to give his planist an increase of salary the number of his customers dwindled rapidly. It was only when all but one diner had deserted him that he discovered that the planist had been inflicting Chopin's "Funeral March" on the audience nightly. The planist. who was proceeded against in the law courts and was fined 5 francs, pleaded that he placed according to the mood he felt in after his request had been

GOOD HABITS.

Good habits bring a personal freedom that it is impossible to obtain otherwise. The man who has the habit of doing anything that he ought to do with clocklike regularity is saved from a galling bondage of uncertainty, hesitation, energy wasting debate with himself, renewed day after day and growing more of a burden as life advances.
