from the face of the earth, with no trace left of any human being. It will take months, in all probability, to take full toll of the upheaval.

As telephone, telegraphic and traffic communications are gradually restored, the tales of sorrow are rolling in upon the authorities here in such measure that even the most ardent relief activity can scarcely cope with the situation. It seems now that the effect of the shock in Rome, great though it was slight in comparison to the result in the province to the north, the east and the south. Naples felt the shock and far to the north Florence and Bologna quivered in their turn.

In the district surrounding Sulmona, southeast of Aquila, there was extensive damage done and numerous victims are reported. The towns of Popoli, Roccasale, Alano, Vittorito, Pentina, Pratola Poligna, Prezza, Roccapia, Potorano, Anversa and other places are in ruins. Scano sends word of 20 dead and many hurt, with the probability of the casualties increasing. Villago has been almost leveled and Frattura is scarcely in existence now.
