"When Dat Jack Johnson Hit Me in de Back, Oh, Lawdy!"

"SKEERED FOR DE FUTURE."

"Nigger John" Says, "I Guess I Allus Did Have Mo' Curiosity Dan Intelligence"-Had Rabbit Foot and Attributes His Being In Paris Hospital Instead of Graveyard to Luck.

The Foreign legion's American contingent was nearly wiped out in the great Champagne advance. One of the few who came out whole was John Frederick Brown, ordinarily known as "Nigger John" of Boston, writes William Philip Simms, a Paris correspond-

"Where are you wounded, John?" I asked.

"I ain't wounded," grinned John. "I's jes' par'lized. We were goin' up a slope with all kinds of things comin' down at us, an' a great big German Jack Johnson hit me right in the middle of the back, an', Lawdy me, mistah, I sho thought ma days was ovah."

The Jack Johnson, the nurse explained, only bruised John's back and probably deadened his legs, maybe temporarily.

Mo' Curiosity Dan Intelligence.

John used to work in an automobile house around Boston, and it seemed such a long way from there to a Champagne battlefield that I asked him why he joined the Foreign legion. "Lawdy, man," said John through his perpetual smile, "I guess I allus did have mo' curiosity dan intelligence." "Still you saw the big battle; that's something."

"You bet it was something," said John.

"When I left Paris we went to the Vosges first. Then they sent us to Champagne for the big mill. We startof Swipes (Suippes).

What Tommy Told the Duchess

I called on Gawd to witness that all my ribs was broke! 'It thumped me and 'e punched me and 'is bloomin' face was long, But when 'e says, "Count five, my lad," I give 'im this 'ere song:

"It's a long way to Tipperary, It's a long was to go.
It's a long way to Tipperary And the sweetest girl I know!"

They chucked me in a luggage van with 'alf a 'undred more,

And grewsome kind of cheer it was, with straw ticks on the floor. The matey wot was nearest me 'ad lost out both 'is eyes-'E cried for 'is old lady and then 'e ups

Ah, Gawd, 'e loved 'er so!"

and dies!

I 'ad to keep my spirits up, though tears ain't no disgrace When you're coughing blood and shrapnel, but I 'ad to save my face, So I 'ollered in my blanket, and you bet

I made 'em 'ear; "If any mate will 'elp me sing I've two bits left for beer."

"It's a long road to Tipperary, We're going 'ome today. We cursed the surgeon for a thief, But 'e wouldn't let us stay."

Then something must 'ave 'appened, for an English nurse was near. With natural imperliteness I said, "Mornin,' sister, dear!" She turned as white as paper. "Man, be careful what you say!

You 'aven't spoke for seven weeks-we thought you'd die today!" "It's a long way to Tipperary, But when I 'eave in view, Moll won't mind the crutches Because my 'eart is true.

'I don't mind your crutches, Tom, I know your love is true! That's wot Moll will say to me

When I 'eave in view.

Bandages can be prepared from the good parts of worn sheets or pillow slips if perfectly clean. Rolls six to eight yards in length are most convened in the fight from a place jes' north lent-one inch wide for fingers, two inches for feet, two and one-half to three inches for head and arms and four inches for legs. A good way of keeping them in condition for use is to seal the rolls in a perfectly clean glass
