The Aim of the Foreign Language Papers of America

To help preserve the ideals and sacred traditions of this, our adopted country, the United States of America; To reverence its laws and inspire others to obey them; To strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty; In all ways to aid in making this country greater and better than we found it.

AN EVENING WITH DUMAS.

It Was a Cosmopolitan Crowd That Flocked to His Shrine.

Dumas sat like some bronze of a Buddhist temple, while his guests stood or moved about, conversing with him or among themselves, writes Francis Grierson in the Century, describing an evening with the great novelist. A famous comedian from the Gymnase exchanged jokes with a tragedian from the Theatre Francais, a witty journalist was conversing with a gifted singer from the Theatre Lyric, an artist with flowing hair and a huge plume was begging a professional beauty to give him a series of sittings for her portrait, a novelist on the qui vive for copy seemed to see, hear and appropriate everything and everybody all at once.

A young poetess and an aged dramatist were discussing the latest plays. A Russian countess, tall, slender, insinuating, clad all in black, made me think of a character I had seen in a fantastic pantomime. She glided about mysteriously and, stopping at Dumas' chair, placed her long, thin hand on his shoulder for some moments, like a ghostly visitor with a fatal message, and then glided away. Austrians, Italians, Germans, mingled their accent with the accent of the true Parisian. But Dumas was more than a Parisian; he was a cosmopolitan at a time when there were no cosmopolitan Frenchmen, and he gave me the impression of a man who had seen life in every aspect.

He might as well have said in so many words: "My mind is made up. Do not give yourself the trouble to tell me what is going on in England or America or in the country of the Grand Turk or among the nabobs of India. I know as much as they know. You see me sitting here contented enough as things are. All these charming women of talent are my friends" (as a matter of fact, there was not an old woman in the room). "A man is not the author of books like 'Monte Cristo' without some recompense."

No one would have taken him for a celebrated author. He had the air of a man who had done nothing all his life but invent, taste and prepare luxurious dishes at a restaurant patronized by wealthy gourmets.

NATION STARTS WORLD INDUSTRIAL INQUIRY.

Data Will Be Used In Efforts to Extend Country's Foreign Trade.

Instructions to American consular and commercial representatives in foreign countries calling for exhaustive reports on industrial organization and the relations between industry and government have been transmitted by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

The reports will form the basis for a thorough investigation of industrial and business systems throughout the world undertaken by the federal trade commission, with which the bureau is co-operating. The trade commission also plans to conduct a supplementary worldwide inquiry through squads of special investigators.

Commercial attaches in foreign capitals, as well as the consular officers of the state department, have been instructed to cover in their reports business organizations, manufacturing and producing efficiency, merchandising methods, business and industrial laws, and particularly the relation between business organizations and governmental authority. Instructions were prepared separately for each of the various countries.

Special instructions have been issued calling for reports on the so called "cartel" system of business organization, as developed in Germany, under which great combinations of capital are fostered.

The reports also will be available for use by the bureau and the commission in their efforts to extend the foreign trade of the United States. The commission already has held numerous hearings in this country on this subject.

TOKIO MARKET SUSPENDED

Skyrocketing of "War Brides" Excites Wall Street of Nippon.

Tokio, Dec. 1.—The wildest skyrocketing in Japanese history of war stocks forced a temporary suspension of the stock exchange. As a result of frantic bull trading some representative stocks have risen $500 per share. The boom is a general result of the enormous sales of arms, munitions and supplies to Russia since the war began, but received tremendous impetus from the Russo-Asiatic bank's recent advertisement of a loan to take care of the czar's purchases.

CHEWED OFF WIFE'S NOSE

John Megino Tried to Murder Spouse at Christening, Alleged.

Latrobe, Pa., Dec. 1.—Her throat slashed almost from ear to ear and her nose completely bitten off, Mrs. Mary Megino, aged twenty-five, is in a critical condition at the Latrobe hospital as the result of an alleged attack by her husband, John Megino, at a christening here. Megino escaped and state troopers are searching for him.

Chivalry.

"Do you know," said the particularly well groomed and elaborately vivacious lady in the full bloom of her second youth, "that I have the most wonderful gardener in the world—the tenderest hearted not only of gardeners, but of men? He has always made me up a very special bouquet on my birthday and presented it to me in person. But ever since I was thirty—well, he's only given me a birthday bouquet every third year."—New York Post.

Heroes and Villains.

Men are not made heroes by the performance of an act of heroism, but must be brave before they can perform it; so they were not made villains by the commission of a crime, but were villains before they committed it.—Ruskin.

Is This So, Ladies?

"They say that a Martian year has over 400 days." "Possibly it is in Martian years that our ladies give their ages."—Boston Transcript.

The Exception.

"If at first you don't succeed, try again." "That's good theory, but it isn't all ways wise practice." "Why not?" "I once tried to paper a room myself. I didn't succeed, but I assure you that my experience taught me never to try it again."—Detroit Free Press.

Berthollet and Robespierre.

It is said that the celebrated savant Berthollet in the most dangerous times of the republic sustained his fearless love of truth. Some days prior to the ninth Thermidor a sandy deposit was found in a barrel of brandy intended for the army. The contractors, suspected of poisoning, were immediately arrested, and the scaffold was already prepared. Berthollet, however, examined the brandy and reported it free from all adulteration. "You dare maintain," said Robespierre to him, "that that brandy does not contain poison?" As his reply Berthollet drank off a glass, saying, "I never drank so much before."

"You have plenty of courage!" exclaimed Robespierre. "I had more when I signed my report," replied the chemist, and here the matter terminated.

Seventh Century Needlework.

Before the end of the seventh century needlework was carried to great perfection in convents, where it was used for the establishment of the church and the decoration of priestly robes. Artists did not think it beneath their dignity to trace the patterns used for embroidery in their natural colors. A certain religious lady, wishing to embroider a sacerdotal vestment, asked no less a personage than St. Dunstan, then a young man, but already noted for his artistic skill and taste, to draw the flowers and figures, which she afterward worked in gold thread.—Exchange.

An Old Verb.

To laze is an old verb. In Samson Rowlands' "Martin Marcell" 1610, we are told that "lozeters laze in the streets, lurk in alehouses and range in the highways." The word occurs in some of Mortimer Collins lyrics: But Cupid lazeth 'mongst the faleri lassies.

Animal Etiquette.

No one who is at all observant of the ways of animals can have failed to notice how gentle large dogs, like the St. Bernard and the Great Dane, are to their smaller canine fellows. It is rare that a big dog turns upon one of the little fellows, no matter how aggravating and snappy the latter may be. Instead, he invariably treats the small dog's antics with ungrudging and dignified tolerance. For there is a recognized code of etiquette among animals, if you please, quite as much as there is among human beings. In truth, there are not a few respects in which the animals can give points on politeness and good behavior to man himself.

Takes a Sip of Tacks.

While she attempted to take a drink from what she thought was a glass of water while in the dark at her home in Point township, Northumberland county, Pa., Miss Alice Rhoads, eighteen years old, swallowed several hundred tacks and pins. She was taken to the Mary M. Packer hospital, Sunbury.

Easily Arranged.

A man took the following telegram to a telegraph office: "Mrs. Brown (Center Street) I announce with grief the death of Uncle James. Come quickly to read the will. I believe we are his heirs. John Black"

The telegraph clerk, having counted the words, said, "There are two words too many, sir." "Cut out 'with grief,'" was the reply.—Chicago News.

OUR MISNAMED RUINS.

The Mesa Verde Cliff Dwellings Are Really Complete Towns.

Many visitors to the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde National park, in southwestern Colorado, says government publication, are astonished to find that what is commonly described as a dwelling is not properly a dwelling at all, but a village or city. The celebrated Cliff Palace is not a palace. Neither is Spruce Tree House, a house, nor Balcony House a house. Each of these is a complete town, which once, in the dim ages before the earliest Indian tradition, was an organized community, often of considerable size.

The arrangement of houses in a cliff dwelling of the size of Cliff Palace, for example, is characteristic and intimately associated with the distribution of the social divisions of the inhabitants. The population was composed of a number of units, possibly clans, each of which had its own social organization more or less distinct from others, a condition that appears in the arrangement of rooms. The rooms occupied by a clan were not necessarily connected, although generally neighboring rooms were distinguished from one another by their uses.

Babies in Samoa. Samoan babies can give points to Europeans apparently. According to A. S. Middleton in "Sailor and Beachcomber" they are much prettier and very intelligent. Moreover: They can swim at three months old; talk, run and sing at a year old, and if a Samoan had a child that sucked a dummy (presumably a comforter) at six years old and wailed driving along in its pram at an advanced age, as the children of the wealthy class of England do, they would look upon it as a great curio and smother it for shame on the first starless night.

John Bull. The nickname John Bull is said to have appeared first in a satire by Dr. John Arbuthnot called "Law is a Bottomless Pit; or, the History of John Bull," published in 1721. Washington Irving mentions the typical figure as a "sturdy, corpulent, old fellow with a red waistcoat, leather breeches and short, oaken cudgel. Many Napoleonic caricatures show John Bull represented in this way.
