ENRICO CARUSO ELUSIVE WHEN "MOVIE" MEN APPEAR

Great Tenor, Who Sings in Pittsburgh
May 5, Refuses Enormous Fees.

Caruso, who sings in Pittsburgh with the Cincinnati Orchestra on Saturday evening, May 5th, at Shriners' Mosque, is a constant target for the camera man. Probably no operatic artist in the world has been so sought after by the professional news photographers. And he must be in a very bad humor, something which seldom occurs, not to accede graciously when requested to pose for a "snapshot."

Caruso as Rudolfo in "La Boheme."

Nor is it surprising that the moving picture men also should be after him. Proposition after proposition has been made to him. Personal friends have been approached and begged to bring pressure in behalf of one "film" concern or another. Enormous fees have been hinted at, running into the hundreds of thousands.

"How about this movie business?" asked a personal friend of Caruso. "Are you going to accept any of their wonderful propositions to act for the screen?"

"Perhaps," he replied.

"When?"

"When I can't sing any longer!"

Cow's Fondness for Roses.

Because E. R. Patterson's milk cow walked into Walter G. Hyman's rose garden and consumed a sundry assortment of blossoms, Hayward Park, a fashionable residence district of San Mateo, is in the throes of a Civil war, avers a San Mateo (Cal.) telegram to the New York World. The law has been invoked and threats and counter threats are breathed.

Hyman filed a written complaint with the San Mateo city trustees, who referred it to Poundmaster George Maggi.

Recently Patterson made public the following letter to Hyman:

"I hand you herewith my check for $3.25 to cover the full amount of damages, as claimed by you, done by my cow when she recently broke loose and got into your yard. In view of the very childish 'tell-the-teacher' attitude you took in taking this small accident up with sundry city officials and others, I think I might have felt that I was justly absolved from any financial obligation to you. However, I guess your action carries with it its own punishment, as I know that I should hate to carry the brand real men put on one who assumes the attitude you did on this occasion."

Used to It.

"I beg your pardon. I didn't mean to step on your foot."
"That's all right. I walk on 'em myself."—Ohio Sundial.

He Went.

He (11 p. m. at the piano)—What shall I sing next? She—"Home, Sweet Home," without any variations.—Puck.

He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves and sharpens our skill. Our antagonist is our helper.—Burke.

Burying the Hatchet.

This expression, meaning "let bygones be bygones," is derived from a custom once in vogue among the North American Indians. According to a command of the "great spirit," they were obliged, when they smoked the pipe of peace, to bury in the ground their tomahawks, scalping knives and war clubs in token that all enmity was at an end.

"Dear Papa—I got all your letters, and you have put some munny in each one of them. Please write oftener. Your loving son, William."—Exchange.

It All Depends.

"But you must admit, sir," said the aggressive party, "that a man ought to be the boss in his own house."
"Y-yes, I suppose so," answered the meek and lowly man with the scanty hair, "but the house I live in happens to belong to my wife."—Exchange.

Revenge to the Point.

She—Alas, Algernon, my father's remarks about you were very bitter. He—I'm glad of it, because I'm going to make him eat his words.—Baltimore American.

Found Out.

"There are a lot of girls who don't ever intend to marry."
"How do you know?"
"I have proposed to several."—Puck.
