held in every section of the State immediately after the opening of the campaign." We are sincerely gratified at this movement. It recognizes at once the importance of organization, and the great fact that the duty of the Democracy is to struggle unceasingly-to lose no advantage by inactivity, and to accept of no success but the most complete and unquestionable. The late result in the Old Keystone is in every aspect full of encouragement, but it points merely to the Hollidaysburg, Pa.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer. Ohio Election --- Chase a Minority Governor---his Repudiation by the People. We have now received the official returns from fifty-one counties on governor, which give nearly two-thirds of the aggregate vote of the State. The increase, thus far, on last year's vote, which was 60,000 short of that given at the presidential election in 1852, is only about 8,000. The probability is that the whole vote for governor will be about 310,000. In these fifty-one counties officially heard from, Chase's majority over Medill is 7,814. Trimble has received 18,393 votes in the same counties. Last year, Blickensderfer beat Miller, democrat, for member of the board of puplic works, in these fifty-one counties, 56,706, showing a democratic gain on governor in the same of about 49,000. We have reported returns, more or less accurate, in addition to this official abstract, from all the counties but three. The entire majority for Chase over Medill will not vary much from 16,000. Trimble will have at leest 24.000 votes.

It is, therefore, a certainty that Chase is a minority governor. He has been repudiated by the people, although he obtains the office under the the constitution. Chase made this run in order to receive an endorsement from the electors of Ohio that his course in the Senate had met with their approbation. He has failed to receive it; they have refused to approve of his abolition notions. It is, therefore, unjust to Ohio to call her an abolition State. She must be taken out of that category. Owing to a division among his opponents, Chase will assume the gubernatorial office, and not because he is the choice. The majority against the democracy last fall was 75,000, and yet, with this capital to go upon, Chase fails of an election by the people. The following estimate of the vote for governor in | H. Wintrode. the whole State, we think, will turn out to be nearly accurate: 152,000

Tuckerman, the Bosten defaulter, was well known as a genial man, with a smile and a pleasant word to every one. Since the news respecting his son's swindling transaction was made known, all joyful expressions left his face, and his stolid features, his eyes fixed on vacancy, and his gastly, pallid color, all showed that deep grief had taken possession of him. Some ten days since, without any marked cause, he died from shame-the victim of his son. There may have been no rupture of the cardiac organ, but the world recognizes it as a broken heart.
