From the Kansas Herald. A Young Lady four days in the Snow--Wonderful Preservation.

IOWA POINT, K. T., 9, 1856. This has been a day of intense excitement in our quiet town, caused by a young lady of this neighborhood being lost in a snow storm.

The facts are as follows:-Miss Martha Perkins, who resides five miles from this place, was on a visit to her brother-in-law who resides here. On Tuesday last, the 5th inst., she started to walk home. It was snowing hard at the time she started and continued for two days. The snow was then eighteen inches deep. Her road was, mostly over high rolling prairie, the snow beating directly in her face. She pursued her journey with much difficulty 101 o'clock. until within a mile of home, when she lost her way and rambled about until near sunset, when she took refuge for the night in a deep bushy ravine. There in the deep snow she constructed a very ingenious little house out of the tall weeds that grew near by, and there she spent the first night of camp life, without food to sustain life or fire to warm, or any clothing except her apparel to shelter from the storm, the little weed house she had erected being the only thing she had to keep her from exposure to the bleak winds and howling storm.

Early next morning she started out in pursuit of her home, but went entirely a different course. After traveling all day, frequently through snow four feet deep, exhausted and fatigued, her feet frozen, abandoning all idea of ever reaching home, she stopped and again built her a weed hut. In this little frail tenement she resigned herself to her fate, and it came well nigh being her last resting place upon earth. She remained in this situation and at this last hamed place, from Wednesday until Saturday, about 12 o'clock, when she was found by a party who were in search for will compare in quality and prices with any oth-her. She had been out four days and a half, er brought to town the present season, His and four nights, exposed to the merciless storm on the prairies. The weather was in-tensely cold. During two nights of her exposure, the thermometer ranged from 17 to 20 degrees below zero. She said to those who found her, that she never slept during the whole time, believing that if she had gone to sleep, she never would wake again.

It is a most miraculous escape from death, and those noble spirits who searched and for men and boys, for spring and summer wear. found her deserve great praise. To think all well made and of good materials. Also that a young and delicate girl, not over sixteen years, could travel through such a snow storm five miles, wading often waist deep in snow, lie out in the open prairie, exposed to: the storm of snow and piercing blast of the wintry wind four days and nights, without food, fire, or even a blanket, and then live, is hard to believe, but such is the fact beyond doubt, as at least half our citizens, who were in search of her, can testify. Her feet were badly frozen, but it is believed she will entirely recover, with the loss perhaps of a few of her toes.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING ON A RAILROAD TRAIN .- A Buffalo letter gives an account of the terrible suffering of a large number of passengers who last week left Hornesville for that city in the cars. The writer says:

New York city road, and the passengers took the Erie road, to Dunkirk. They lay at Per- put up rysburg from Monday noon till Friday night. where they could get no beds and very little to eat. There were 520 passengers and 400 employees, who took in the cars all the rest they could get. During the time two children and one young man died-not entirely from cold and starvation, but fatigue and bad air, and being sick when they started. One lady who was on board received a telegraph- of Stoves, ic dispatch that she had three children lying ill of scarlet fever in Illinois. It was impossible to describe her agony at the constant detensions and long delays. The cars frequently ran off the track, and when replaced the wind would drift the snow upon the bought elsewhere. track and render it impossible to proceed .-We had the superintendent upon the train and fifteen locomotives to draw us-but there were some enormous drifts. One of them was forty feet deep.

A SIMPLE YET CERTAIN CURE FOR PILES. -In view of the immense suffering by this distressing complaint, I request space in your columns to make known a certain, safe and simple remedy, with the hope that it will be copied by other journals, that all afflicted may have the benefit of it. It is simply white pine pitch, made into the size of ordinary pills, and from ten to eighteen, (according to the state of the disease,) taken during the day, until relief is had. One case among the many which have been cured was that of a person who, after having failed to obtain relief from the most eminent medical skill, and even suffered a resort to the knife, without obtaining relief, has been entirely cured by the above, and now enjoys excellent health.

has decided that the Sunday liquor law of phia. Feb. 20th, 1855, was not repealed by the act of April 14th, 1855. The Court says:
"It is not pretended that the act of 14 April 1855, in terms repealed the preceding act, but it is said that it embraced the same subject matter and was evidently intended as a substitute for it; that the first act was supplied by the second one, and therefore by implication repealed, if not in whole, at least so far as relates to the specific offence charged.

Upon an examination of the acts referred to, we are all of the opinion that there is no and western passenger trains on the Rail Read. inconsistency between the two acts, so far The Principals have had long experience in as the section upon which this indictment is in training young Ladies and will exert thembased, and that the subject matter of the first | selves to give them an education at once useful is not revised and supplied by the latter act, and ornamental. They are prepared to give in-and that therefore the one does not repeal the struction in all the branches of English, in

To repeal an act by implication it must clearly appear that there is a plain inconsistency between it and a subsequent statute, or tency between it and a subsequent statute, or that the one is fully supplied by the other.— A subsequent statute repugnant to a prior one repeals it, but if they can be construed together, both will be sustained, as the law does not favor a repeal by implications.— Bowen vs. Lease, 5th Hill, 221.

There is very little similarity between the two statutes under consideration. Both, it is true, refer to the sale of intoxicating liquors; but the one prohibits the sale entirely on the first day of the week, whilst the other mereweek. Both acts were passed at the same session of the General Assembly, and the absence of any repealing clause referring in terms to the prior act, is strong evidence that D. Nowton Hamilton: Rev. J. B. Cheney, J. Appleading 251, Service B. B. Cheney, J. C the Legislature did not intend its repeal .-To protect the Sabbath and punish its violation by this species of worldly employment, March, 26, 1856-6t.

was the primary object of the act of February, 1855, rather than to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors; and when this object was accomplished, it is not to be supposed that the work would be undone by the same body of men in legislating upon another and distinct subject. Believing the act to be eminently calculated to promote public and private morality, and to conduce to the good order and well being of society, we feel no disposition to favor its repeal by legislative implication, or to impair its force by judicial construction."
