LOCAL & PERSONAL.

To Samuel G. Whittaker and William Brewster.

Editors of the Huntingdon Journal: your covert and cowardly attacks. The cause is best known to yourselves. I am a private citizen, without a medium for defence, but through the kindness of other printers. I read your follies and falsehoods but to blush at their impudence and knavery. Duty as a citizen, a man, and a professing christian, alone compels me to direct the eyes of the public toward you. You, Samuel G. Whittaker and William Brewster, are both of you members of the same church as myself. We have all made a public profession of our faith in Him whose injunction was "whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them;" and I have not lightly, nor unthinkingly commenced the task I now perform. I first sought earnestly an answer to the enquiry, how shall I best save from reproach the church of my Master; by passively submitting to your rude, unmanly, and maliciously false accusations, or by meeting you in your own field, and trusting to truth to vindicate, and protect the right, and to expose the wrong. I have no revenge to satisfy. Vengeance is not mine. I forgive your falsehood, but cannot forget your shame; and while I forgive, it is not my duty to conceal your crimes, either from the community upon whom you live, or the church which you disgrace.

You, William Brewster, was long since driven from one profession for your meanness, or vice. The Medical Association of this county expelled you as unworthy or unfit for the companionship of gentlemen.—Money purchased you position in another profession, and you advertise yourself as a "RAT" among printers. The past and the present are yours and the public's; if the future yields you a like harvest, infamy will point to you as her model. Your juvenile associate, Samuel G. Whittaker, sought and obtained admission into the American Order, opening its door with a lie, affirming as he crossed its threshold, that he was a man in years, although he was then an infant; declaring before the God he professed to honor, that he was twenty-one years of age, when his subsequent acknowledgment proved he was not. In such a Presence by Limself invoked, without a tremor on the tongue, the lie was boldly said. Both of you, master and minion, seek to hunt me, as proper quarry for your sport. Be it so. Such paltry kites have so long flown at me, and the bay of hounds has so long been heard behind me, that they excite no terror. Here, once and forever, I give you both a license to lie and rail about me, till the "crack of doom," first, however, giving the community another evi dence, that the old man has lost none of his meanness, and the boy still loves his lying. In your Journal of the 21st inst., you use the following language, viz:

"In relation to the 'gentleman' which the Globe accuses us of 'trumping up an account' against, we need only say, we 'know nothing.'
If Lewis has allusion to a third class lawyer who once upon a time stopped his paper, and plead the limitation law on his account, because we would not urge his claims for an office, let him say so. If it is he, the old axiom would very suitably apply to Lewis—
When the devil was sick,

The devil a saint would be: When the devil was well Devil of a saint was he." "

I here arraign you for the publication of what you knew to be untrue. Your denial, that you intended this to apply to me, would tale itself.

Before the citizens among whom you mingle and hope to deceive; and before that God whose religion you profess, but whose precepts you disregard, and whose church you pollute, I charge you both, as having, with studious and malicious care, broken the ninth commandment-with bold, unqualified, cunmingly devised yet intentional lying. You stell the lie, knowing it to be a lie, and intending it as a lie. No word or syllable ever passed between us upon which you could base the charge; and I burn into your foreheads the indelible mark of your baseness; to the people, that while I forgive your attacks upon me, ! shall on all fitting occasions strip expose you to the derision of your fellows,to the scorn and contempt of communityand to the pity and commisseration of the good; asking but the judgment of truth be-tween you and me.

MAX. GREENE'S LECTURE.-We attended the lecture of this gentleman on Monday evening, and must say that we were highly delighted with it, and like many of those present, could have listened to him all night: We are sorry to say that the audience was small, but that in attendance was of a highly literary and appreciative character, which we Sirs: For weeks I have been the object of hope will be accepted by Mr. GREENE as a fitting apology for the slim audience.

> MRS. HANIGAR, in an advertisement in another column, gives notice that she has taken rooms in the old Presbyterian Church, and will give lessons on the Guitar, Melodeon and Piano--and will also teach vocal music, and the German and French languages. Since her residence in Huntingdon she has been highly successful as a teacher of music, and has now some twenty-four pupils. We can highly recommend Mrs. Hanigar to the consideration and patronage of our community, to teach the above named sciences. For terms, see advertisement.

NEW HOTELS .- The 'BROAD TOP HOUSE, by Andrew Moebus, has been handsomely fitted up for the accommodation of strangers and travelers. It is located at the Broad Top Depot on Allegheny street. Mr Moebus will be found an accommodating gentleman.

Mr. Henry Compropst has also been granted license for a public house at his residence on Hill Street. The house is large, and the accommodations will be equal to any in Another Pic Nic .- The 2d male fand female Schools under the charge of Mr. LANE and Miss HILDEBRAND had a joint pic nie at the Cottage Grove yesterday afternoon. They had quite a pleasant time of it, and returned in the evening highly delighted with their amusements, eatables, &c.

A GERMAN CLASS. - Several of our young townsmen who are anxious to learn the German language are about forming themselves into a class for that purpose, under the instruction of Mrs. HANIGAR. They will meet one or two evenings each week. Those wishing to become members of and commence their studies with the class, should hand in their names to Mrs. H. during the present week. We admire the "sweet German accent," and are decidedly in favor of this de-

Joined HER CHILDREN .- We learn from the Johnstown Echo, that Mrs. Cox, the mother of the two lost children, has followed them to the "spirit land." The stroke was too severe. She died of excessive grief. The gates of Heaven have opened to her, and her spirit is now in bliss, with those of her children-The father is in a critical condition and may soon follow them. How mysterious are God's dealings.

DISCOVERY OF A CAVE IN BLAIR COUNTY .-Max Greene, a correspondent of the Hollidaysburg "Register," who, sixteen years ago discovered what is known as Gost's cave, near Frankstown, made another discovery in the be a meaner and more craven lie than the same locality,, on the 17th inst. In company with Messrs, Rowland C. Richards, Joseph R. Shannon, and a lad named Robert Luther Mason, he visited the cave. After having gratified their curiosity by looking through the cavern, they ascended the flue, and within a hundred yards came to the face of a rock which looked cave like. After digging away some dirt and roots, an opening was effected into an adjoining chamber. An aperture was made sufficiently large to admit the body of young Mason, who entered with a candle, and send you forth licensed to void your filth and crept along until he reached a room in upon me, without let or hindrance. Saying which he resumed a standing posture, and announced himself "in!"
