DEATH OF THE CHRISTIAN.

Hark! it is the bridegroom's voice; Welcome, pilgrim, to thy rest:
Now within the gates rejoice, Safe and seal'd and bought and blest!
Safe from all the tares of vice, Seal'd—by signs the chosen know, Bought—by love, and life the price!
Blest—the mighty debt to owe.

Holy pilgrim! what for thee In a world like this remain?
From thy guarded breast shall flee Fear and shame and doubt and pain.
Fear—the hope of heaven shall fly, Shame—from glory's view retire, Doubt—in certain rapture die, Pain—in endless bliss expire.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GRAVE.

"Why," says Ossian, "shouldst thou build thy hall, son of the winged days? thou lookest from the towers to-day, yet set years, and the blast of the desert comes—it howls in the empty court, and whistles around thy half worn shield!" Then why should man look forth as he fondly hopes up on the sunny future with the eye of fancy, and lay up the golden visions, which have passed like sunbeams in his pilgrimage, in the hope of brighter ones yet to come, when to-morrow the clods may be heaped on his coffin, and above his quiet rest the sepulchral views tremble in the wind! Alas! if there is nought on earth which should subdue pride —which should make men feel that "the rich and the poor meet together, and that the Lord is maker of them all!"—it is the Grave! It is there resentment dies, revenge and ambition are satiated: it is there above the urn of sorrow, man must learn that "Life is a torrid day; Parch'd by the wind and sun—
And death, the calm, cool night, When the weary day is done!"

THE FARMER.

Happiness seems to have fixed her seat in rural scenes. The spacious hall, the lighted assembly, the splendid equipage, and the pomp of courts, appear as less than the shadow of a shade when compared with rural romanticism, and milder beauties of soul pleasing nature: glittering misery does not sooth and entertain the mind of man in any degree, like the verdant plain, the enamelled mead, the romantic vale, the fragrant grove, the melodious feathered choir, the sportive beasts, the azure sky, and the star besprinkled heavens.

It is undoubtedly a fact, that in proportion to our population, too many leave the occupation of the Agriculturist, for other employments. If this arise from its being considered that the employment of the husband-man is not respectable, it is a very great mistake. Every thing is honorable which is useful and virtuous. This is an employment instituted by God himself, and by him peculiarly owned and blest. It is that on which every thing depends. True it is laborious; but, then, labour brings health, and health is the fountain of employment and happiness—and it is health alone that can render life desirable. The condition of the farmer is the condition of independence. His little dominion is his own, his comforts are his own, and he is not at the mercy of the public whim or caprice. It is not necessarily the case, in this happy country especially, that the farmer must be a stupid, ignorant man.
He is taught in his youth the first rudiments of education, and he has many spare hours to read. In the heat of summer's noon, and by the long winter's evening fire, he has much time for his newspapers and his books, and in this country they are placed within the reach of all. The farmer, by his proximity to God as He is displayed in the works of His creation, is led to "look through nature up to nature's God;" and his nearness to the sourceless and endless Author of all created things accounts for the unusual extent of religious feeling among those who "venerate the plough."

Mr. Wm. Bradford, of Vermont, has a horse which he has driven in a loaded wagon from Montpelier to Boston and back, one hundred times in six years and eight months; the distance being 170 miles, the horse has travelled in that time 34,000 miles. He is now about 21 years old, and is "a pretty good old horse yet."

Baltimore & Ohio Rail Road and Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.—We are indebted to the attention of a correspondent at Annapolis for the highly gratifying information that this most important suit has been decided on final hearing by the Chancellor, IN FAVOR OF THE RAIL ROAD COMPANY.— We take the earliest opportunity of announcing this to the public, and congratulating the community on the result.—Balt. Gazette.

Mary Ann Higgins, a handsome girl, aged 19, was lately convicted at Warwick Assizes, of administering arsenic to her aged uncle with a view to kill him and obtain his property. The old man died from the poison; the prisoner was believed to be instigated to the act by her sweet-heart, Edward Clarke who was tried as an accessory, but acquitted.

She was executed on Thursday at Whitley Common, near Coventry. It is supposed that from 15 to 20,000 persons were present at the execution.—English Paper.

The word Veto is thus explained in a late letter from Kentucky: "When the plaguey Congress pester the old chap (the President) with any of their law he don't like, he throws it down and stamps it all to brick and dust; and as he never lets them have it any more, this is called putting his five toes upon it; for V. stands for five, you know, for short. See, Jim, what it is to have larnen."

FRANKLIN, Pa. Sept. 20.

EMIGRATION.—Megers Riley and Scott, of the city of New York, own a large body of land in the upper end of this county, and extending into the south west corner of Mercer county. A great accession of settlers has taken place lately on those lands. We are authorised from an authentic source to say, that between one and two hundred families of new settlers will be on the next spring, principally from Massachusetts and New Jersey. The tide of emigration is nearly equally rapid to other parts of the country. Almost every day we hear of new settlers. This is as it should be. We have long been satisfied that if the resources of Western Pennsylvania were fully developed, they hold out to emigrants much stronger inducements than those of Illinois, &c. westward. We sincerely wish our new and enterprising settlers health and prosperity.

LITERARY CONVENTION.—This distinguished body met at the City Hall, in New York, on Tuesday last; and was organized by appointing the Hon. JOHN Q. ADAMS, of Massachusetts, to preside over their proceedings. The Hon. Mr. Gallatin and Lieut. Gov. Livingston were appointed V.
Presidents; and John Delafield, Esq. of N.
Y. and Professor Jocelin, Secretaries. We have seen no full account of their proceedings, but believe it was their object to introduce a uniform system of pronunciation of the Greek and Latin languages, in the classical institutions of our country.

Newark N. J. Monitor.

From a statement published in several newspapers, it appears, that the amount of debt contracted by the state during two years of Governor Wolf's administration, is nearly as much as the entire sum contracted during the administrations of Heister and Shulze, in a period of nine years.

Three young men, sons of Mr. J. Phillips, of South Salem, in a boat, near Phillips's beach, on the evening of the 22d ult. fired into a flock of shags, and killed 42 at one discharge of their pieces, which were common muskets. The shag is a species of duck, and is rarely killed except singly.—Sa. Gaz.

In Bedford county, Va. a slave belonging to Dr. Mitchell, was sentenced to death for attempting to kill his master's wife. Another, owned by Mr. Circle, on James river, was tried at Fincastle, on Monday, on a charge of insurrection; and, as the court was not unanimous, was sentenced to be whipped.

A letter from a respected friend in Isle of Wight county, dated 27th inst. informs us that a free negro, named Wat Johnson, a resident of that county, murdered his wife and his only child, on the evening of Wednesday 26th inst. and had absconded. The following description of the wretch is given, that he may be brought to justice. Said Johnson is a hewer and sawyer by trade, quite likely in person, about five feet 9 or 10 inches high, of dark complexion, about 25 or 30 years of age—no marks recollect.

The Wellsborough Phoenix says, that a most shocking accident occurred in that village on Thursday evening last. A coloured woman, wife of Elias Spencer, being in a state of intoxication, fell into the fire, and was burned about the face and breast in a most dreadful manner. She yet survives, but no hopes are entertained of her recovery. This is another proof of the fatal effects of intemperance.

EMANCIPATION OF SLAVES.—We have great pleasure in being able to inform our readers, that the British Government have determined on the emancipation of the slaves belonging to the Crown in the various conquered colonies. Directions to this effect have already been forwarded to the Governor of Barbadoes, and in a few months we may joyfully anticipate that our government, at least, will be purged from the foul stain of slavery.—London Baptist Mag.

There is a gourd at the museum, the growth of the present season, under whose shade a modern Jonah or even Goliah might repose. It measures five feet four and a half inches in circumference, and weighs fifty-six pounds. It was raised in Hobbs-ton, by Mr. Aaron Greenwood, nephew of the superintendent of the museum, from seed brought by Mr. Moses G. from a place 700 miles west of Little Rock, in Arkansas territory.—Boston Traveller.

At the late election in this state, five editors were candidates for seats in the General Assembly, three of whom have been elected. It would appear from this, that the proscriptive system adopted by some politicians, that all who are so unfortunate as to have been concerned in the publication of a paper, should be excluded from office, does not generally obtain in Pennsylvania.
