LIFE'S SUNNY SPOT.

Though life's a dark and thorny path, Its gaol the silent tomb, It yet some spots of sunshine hath,

That smiles amidst the gloom. The friend who weal and woo partakes, -Unchanged whate'er our lot; Who kindly soothes the heart that aches-Is sure a sunny spot.

The wife who half our burdens bears, And uttors not a moan; Whose ready hand wipes off our tears,

Unheeded all her own: Who treasures every kindly word, Each harsher one forget,

And carols blithly as a bird-She's too a sunny spot,

The child who liks at morn and eve. In prayed its tiny voice.

Who grieves whene'er its parents grieve, And joys when they rejoice; In whose bright eye young genius glows,

Whose heart, without a blot, Is fresh and pure as summer's roso-

That child's a sunny spot.

There's yet upon life's weary 'road, One spot of brighter glow, Where sorrow half forgets its load,

And tears no longer flow: Friendship may wither, love decline; 'Our child's dishonor blot:

But still, undimmed, that spot will shine-Religion lights that spot.

THE MIND .- The most compendious, the most noble, and the most effectual remedy which can be opposed to the uncertain and irregular motions of the human mind, meated by various passions, inclining someand of mer, even the best towards a state of and diprivation, is this: We must choose bettings such virtuous objects as are proportioned to the means we have of pursuing, and as belong particularly to the stations we are in, and to the duties of those stations.---We must determine and fix our minds in such a manner upon them, that the pursuit of them may become the business, and the attainment of them the end, of our whole lives. Thus we shall imitate the great operations of nature, and not the feeble, slow and imperfect operations of art. We must not proceed in forming the moral character, as a statuary proceeds in forming a statue, who works sometimes on one part, and sometimes on another: but we must proceed, as nature does in forming a flower, an animal, or any other of her productions --- "rudiments partium omnium simul parit et producit."---"She throws out altogether, and at once, the whole system of every being, and the rudiments of all the parts." The vegetable or the animal grows in bulk and increases in strength, but is the same from the very first. Bolingbroke.

From the New York Evening Journal. ÆSOP REDIVIVUS.

The two following anecdotes may possibly be fabulous-but a moral can be squeezed out of each, very applicable to certain up start politicians who are now endeavouring to eut a figure before the American people. The first is extracted from an English paper; and those whe have watched the signs of the times will be at no loss to give to the empel, or rather the Martin therein mentioned, a more palpable and mischievous existence-"a local habitation and a name." The second is copied from the N. York Gazette of Monday-and whether our friend Lang (which is not customary with him) actually meant more than he wrote, and designed to convey any thing like an abstract varning against the danger of becoming a bully's cats-paw, we know not: at all events, his story is a good one, and fits a late windy occurrence at the seat of government adminably.-FABLE I.-The Eagle and the Weasel. -A group of haymakers in Selkirkshire, saw an old eagle rising above the steep mountains that enclosed the narrow valley. The north of Market Street. spectators were soon aware of something peculiar in the flight of the bird they were observing. He used his wings violently, and the strokes were often repeated, as if he was unusually agitated, wheeling in circles constantly decreasing, while his ascent was proportionally rapid. He rose until he was nearly out of sight, when at length he appeared to descend, and with great rapidity, but in the manner of a shot bird. When he reached the greand, a black tailed weasel came from the body, us the haymakers came up, looked around, stood on its hind legs for a moment or two and then ran into a bush. The eagle was dead, covered with his blood; upon examination frappeared the weasel had caten into his throat and destroyed him. MORAL: Be careful how you take vermin to your bosom. FABLE II.-Vicarious Punishment.-A negro, on a plantation in the West Indies, having misbehaved, was sent by his master to the overseor with a note, in which the latter was directed to bestow upon the delinauent divers and sundry stripes. New Sambo had been sent upon such errands before and keen were his pangs at being again delegated upon such unpleasant duty. He surveyed the note with a rueful visage, and meditated how he should escape the seemingly unasoidable. penalty. At length a thought struck him: Meeting a brother Abyssinian, he shammed sudden and severe ilineas: "Brodder Jacko," he said, "me got 'mazin pain in 'tomac-prease han dis letter to massa, and take a sick brodder's bressing.", The sympathetic Jacko complied with the protended sufferer's request, and to his amazement was forthwith "posted," and received a tremendous whipping at the hands of the overseer - a poor requital he hought for doing a brother a favor. Sam. to way in ecstacies at the success of his stratagem. He soon got rid of his pains, and could never see his friend Jacko afterwards without an inward chuckle at the ingenuity of the trick he had played off upon him.

MORAL: Let every puppy do his own dirty business.

From the American Farmer.

"BEAT THIS WHO CAN." LARGE POTATOES-GREAT CROP. NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 15, 1832. MR. SMITH--I observed in No. 84 of the Farmer, a piece headed "beat this who can," followed by a certificate of several gentlemen of Washington, D. C. certifying that they had weighed twelve potatoes for Mr. 'Adam Lindsay, which weighed seventeen and a half pounds. At the time that paper my potatoes, and had but a few rows to raise. 1 requested Mr. James T. Robinson, Merchant of this place, to select twelves of the largest from the few rows I was then digging, and weigh them, and the return he made me was that the twelve weighed twonty-six pounds, nine ounces, which exceeds Mr. Lindsay's about fifty percent. In the lot he weighed there, was but one potatoe that we would call here, a very large potatoe, it weighed about four pounds. I believe that this section of country cannot be equalled for raising potatoes as to quality and quantity. At our last exhibition, satisfactory proof was submitted to the directors, by Benton Rust, that he raised two hundred and thirty-eight and a half bushels The Estate of Catharine Mimof potatoes on one quarter of an acre, which is at the rate of nine hundred and fifty-four bushels per acre. Ebenezer Byers, of this vicinity, had two hundred and thirty bushels on one quarter of an acre. I presume these quantities are not often raised in your section of country.

Mr. Falls, on a piece of hill side land, raised the past season one hundred and fortyeight and three-fourth bushels of shelled corn, on one acre. This is the greatest crop on one acre that we have ever raised here. since the establishment of our society. 100, 120 and $144\frac{1}{2}$ bushels per acre, have been raised by members of our agricultural society. Mr. Falls raised (the past season) seventy-two and three-fourth bushels of oats, on one acre of ground.

We have have a good country, our lands will produce macrops, if well farmed; but we have been far from market, but hope this difficulty will soon be obviated, as there is a canal now in progress from our village to the Ohio river, which will be completed in one year, when we can send our produce to market cheap. I wish some of your Baltimore capitalists, who wish to embark in the iron business, would establish themselves in Gettysburg, thefollowing real estate, viz: this section of country, as they would find it very profitable. We have here abundance of water power, good ore, plenty of provisions, and will soon have a cheap and easy mode of sending the iron to market.

Yours, respectfully, J. W. BOYD.

A PLEASANT REMEDY FOR

T has now been known for years, that the AL-BION CORN PLASTER, affords immediate relief, and effects a certain cure for Corns. By its application, according to accompanying direc. tions, the Corn is softened, attenuated, and drawn out by the roots, without the least pain, or any of the trouble and danger attending the hazardous and ineffectual practice of extracting the Corn by mere cutting. The following instances, from many others of a similar character, sufficiently attest to the supe-rior efficacy of the Albion Corn Plaster:

Mr. Farrar, of Boston, was a number of years distressed by a very painful Corn, had applied every thing recommended without effect, and was rendered a perfect cripple. On applying this Plaster he was perfectly cured of his Corn, and treed from his lameness.

A Gentleman of Greenfield was years afflicted with a very painful Corn, and was cured by one box, after every other plaster had been tried to no

Mr. Cutler, of Boston, was cured of a troublesome Corn by one box.

Certificate. To those afflicted with Corns on their leet, I do certify, that I have used the Albian Corn Plaster with complete success. Before 1 had used one box, it cured a Corn which had troubled me for many years. I make this public for the benefit of those afflicted with that painful complaint.

The original letter may be seen at the Counting

Room of the Proprietor. 0.7 The Proprietor of this Medicine recommonds it with the fullest confidence as one of the most valuable remedies yet discovered, for the cure of the painful and debilitaing complaint of the Piles. He deems it unnecessary to publish any other than the foregoing testimonial in its favor .-- This remedy has more perfectly answered the purpose for which it is intended, than any other now in common use, and affords immediate and permanent relief, both from the disorder itself, accompanying symptoms of pam in the loins, vertigo, headache, loss of appetite, indisgestion, and other marks of debility.

The remedy is quite innocent, and may 'be administered to all ages and both sexes. Plain and ample Directions, with aldoveription of the com plaint, accompany each package, which consists of two boxes, one containing an Ointment, and the other an Electnery. POTATOES .- It is said that in Ireland they keep their potatoes from deteriorating in kind, size and quality, by cutting from each potatoe for planting, a peculiar and obvious eye which is surrounded by smaller eyes. The practice is said to have been introduced at Worcester, and pursued for sometime with success.

Good potatoes have been lately dug in Maine-whence it is infered that they may keep very well in winter in their common
