Homicide in Chester co.

On Saturday week, Wm. Lynch, Constable of West Chester, and C. M. Layman, his assistant, arrested a man named William Baugh, at his house in West Pikeland. Baugh, when arrested, inflicted a very bad wound with an axe on Layman's shoulder, severing the jugular vein, but was with great difficulty handcuffed and placed in a wagon. They then started for West Chester, Layman bleeding very much from his wound. After they had gone about a mile, Layman said to Lynch, "Bill, you must take care of yourself, I feel weak and faint, and can't hold out much longer." Baugh, who was a stout, resolute, reckless man, thereupon sprang upon Lynch, who is not physically robust, but of good pluck, and notwithstanding he was handcuffed, almost succeeded by advantages gained by the suddenness of his movement, in ejecting Lynch from the wagon and wresting a pistol from his hand—Layman being too weak, from loss of blood, to render effective aid. Lynch warned Baugh to desist or he would shoot him, but he dared him to shoot, and still pressed upon him. Lynch then pulled the trigger, and the ball entered Baugh's head near the eye, when he exclaimed, "you have killed me," and fell over. He died in about an hour.

Layman is likely to recover. Baugh was arrested for inflicting wounds upon a negro with a pitchfork.

Atrocities in Kansas.—Murderers Hung.

St. Louis, Aug. 5.—Accounts from Leavenworth announce an intense excitement in Kansas, growing out of the robbery and murder of Stevens on Friday, and the subsequent discovery of an organized band of murderers. Two men, named Barnes and Charles, have been hung.—Barnes made a confession implicating several respectable citizens as confederates of the band.

St. Louis, Aug. 6.—Advices from Leavenworth to Monday state that Woods and Knowlton, companions of those hung on Friday, were being tried by the judges. The vigilance committee and the people were excited and determined to lynch the prisoners.

For the Compiler

H. J. Stahle, Esq.—Dear Sir:—The Mathematics, being in a particular manner founded on argumentative deductions, have sometimes been considered as analogous to a practical course of logic, in which we cannot too much attend to arrangement and connection, in order to accustom the mind to that clearness and correctness of argument, so necessary to the proper elucidation of the subject, and the deductions flowing therefrom. From the most simple and obvious principles, we mount step by step, with certain and unerring deductions, the dream after theorem, to the highest demonstrations, to which the mathematics lead. Among the practical uses to which these subserve, none are more important at the present day than "Engineering." The art and science of "Engineering" reduces to practical operation, some of the most valuable demonstrations which the mathematics present to us. Therefore, among the most prominent uses to which, of late, "Engineering" has been applied, is that of the construction of Railroads. In this instance and application is invaluable:—and, as arrangement and connection, clearness and correctness of argument, are necessary to the proper elucidation of the subject, the "Engineer," who in his description of the construction of bridges, deep cuts and fillings of a Railroad, embraces the smooth, polished and correct language of an "Euclid's Geometrician:"—and, in explaining, as pleasing shapes and curves, delights us with its proper use of the rules of "Syntax," invariably acquires the meed of praise, and we are not backward in awarding to him the palm of excellence. If we are not permitted to admire the genius and rare qualities of a Col. Fremont in the Presidency, we are still permitted to read and admire his narratives in the polished and classic style in which he recounts his various reconnoissances, while employed in the capacity of an "Engineer."

Our metropolis of Adams county has also awakened to the importance of a Railroad.—Many of our citizens have embarked in its formation with a hearty good will, and, devoid of selfish feelings, in order to extend its benefits as much as possible, have, in its pleasing slopes and curves, also carried it in its course near the pleasant village of Oxford, to afford its citizens likewise the great gratification of beholding the work of "MAN ENGINEER." In recurring to, and reflecting on, past events, one of my most pleasing reminiscences is, that I, some forty years ago, was also a resident of this pleasant and delightful little village: and, in my past associations, I can recall none that exceed in pleasing recollections the few years I spent there. I therefore, in some measure, also lay claim to some "Ox"onian predilection and preferences:—yet, as since my departure and removal thence, it has acquired the euphonious prefix of "New," I do not claim my merit in association as a "New Ox"onian. My time however there, was at the period when "Turnpikes" were considered as among the "ne plus ultra" of internal improvement, and "Engineering" in this county was restricted to narrow limits, as the "trials" of our Turnpikes yet existing plainly demonstrate. About the time referred to, there was a very respectable Inn at Oxford, kept by a most respectable landlord. At this Inn, when shadows of men grew longer,—the days became shorter—and the evenings somewhat dull, the citizens of the town and neighborhood, of an evening, would assemble to hear the news of the day, and talk over matters and things in general. Among those assembled, there commonly was a certain gentleman who would, if chance allowed it, take the most prominent part in leading the conversation. This gentleman, Mr. S. R. S., whom some of the older residents of Oxford, no doubt, still remember, was an excellent mechanic, a cabinet maker, who had read some, and was consequently fond of displaying his "learning," which he did in rather a pompous and pedantic manner; and, as the Irishman says, was somewhat "wise in his own conceit." He was good at "dove tailing," if not at "engineering." This gentleman's performances gave a zest to these gatherings, and were no inconsiderable inducement to the neighbors thus to gather. It happened on one of these evenings that a gentleman, a traveller from the west, put up at this Inn for the night. On this occasion a goodly number of the citizens happened to meet, and our Mr. S. among the rest. Seeing a very respectable strange gentleman present, his oratorial powers were more than usually exercised, and his eloquence broke forth in a more than ordinarily pompous manner:—and to show the lofty conception he had of his own self, and indirectly to manifest the opinion he had of the ignorance of his auditors—he started up from his seat and with his fist doubled up, exclaimed: "I would knock any man down that would call me an Ignoramous." Here he made a full stop, looking at our traveller, who was leisurely walking up and down at one end of the room with his hands crossed on his back. This gentleman on hearing this explosion of the "big gun," stopped short, and turning towards our orator with a smile and looking at him an instant, with the most artless simplicity and mildness said—"Stranger, I hope you will not hurt a body for thinking!"

"Doth Terror shake again that pedant wight?
That he, by no means in gun-cotton dight,
Should fire sky-high?—that Mr. What's-his-name?
Who of Buck-eye Blacksmith thus did once make game!
Who deems poor "Conowago Farmer" insignificant?
We can't imagine!—for our life we can't!

Encampment.

We understand that the "Independent Blues," at a meeting on Saturday night, determined to have an encampment on "their own hook," somewhere on the banks of Marsh creek, on Friday the 21st inst., to continue until Saturday evening. The idea is a good one, and if managed rightly, will be the occasion of rare sport. Under the wholesome restraints of military discipline, the sports which will be connected with military duties, will be both pleasant and profitable. They will march out on Friday morning, taking with them tents and provisions, and every thing necessary for enjoyment. Sunrise and sunset salutes, morning and evening drills, gunning, fishing, target-firing, quoit-pitching, self-cooked meals, with plenty of "Roasting-Ears"—and then the cheerful camp fire at night, with the merry song and well-told tale—who will say that "soldiering" under such circumstances is not a pleasant thing.—Communicated.

T. KINGSFORD & SON'S

Pure Oswego Starch,

(FOR THE LAUNDRY.)

HAS established a greater celebrity than has ever been obtained by any other Starch.

This has been the result of its marked superiority in quality, and its invariable uniformity.

The public may be assured of the continuance of the high standard now established.

The production is over Twenty Tons daily, and the demand has extended throughout the whole of the United States, and to foreign countries.

Working thus on a very large scale, and under a rigid system, they are able to secure a perfect uniformity in the quality throughout the year. This is the great Desideratum in Starch-making, and is realized now for the first time.

The very best Starch that can be made, and no other, is always wanted by consumers and this will be supplied to them by the grocers, as soon as their customers have learned which is the best, and ask for it—otherwise they would be likely to get that article on which the largest profit can be made.

Mr. Kingsford has been engaged in the manufacture of Starch continuously for the last 27 years, and during the whole of that period the Starch made under his supervision has been, beyond any question, the best in the market. For the first 17 years, he had the charge of the works of Wm. Colgate & Co., at which period he invented the process of the manufacture of Corn Starch.

☞Ask for Kingsford's Starch, as the new Oswego Starch is now generally taken by auction dealers.

It is sold by all of the best grocers in nearly every part of the country.

T. KINGSFORD & SONS

Oswego Corn Starch,

(FOR PUDDINGS, &C.)

HAS obtained an equal celebrity with their Starch for the Laundry. This article is perfectly pure, and is, in every respect, equal to the best Bermuda Arrow-Root, besides having additional qualities which render it invaluable for the dessert.

Potato Starch has been extensively packed and sold as Corn Starch, and has given false impressions to many, as to the real merits of our Corn Starch.

From its great delicacy and purity, it is coming also into extensive use as a diet for infants and invalids.
