A DILEMMA.

Which is the maiden I love best? Twenty now are buzzing round me:

Gently, yet I feel no rest! One has shower'd her black locks o'er me, Casting forth such beams of blue, That I'm pierc'd-oh! through and through Bacchus! gods! what can I do? Which must I love best?

Tell me-(ah, more gently take me, Sweet one, in thy warm white arms!) Tell me-which will ne'er forsake me Through all life's ills and harms? Is it she, whose blood's retreating

From that forehead crowned with pride? Is it she, whose pulse is beating Full against my unarm'd side?

What do all these things betide? Strong my doubts grow-strong-and stronger Quick! give answer to my call! If ye pause a moment longer, I shall love ye-ALL?

Genius. - Intellect can't bear fashionable refinement, and dies under it in one or two generations. If you would street a youth who is likely to make his mark in the world take one who is carting mud in a clam shell wagon, or building houses in the sand—and not the delicate boy who is fondling a china lap dog on the parior carpet. Daniel Webster's father made a cradle for little Dan out of a pine log with an axe and auger; and Lewis Cass was rocked by his staid New Hampshire mother in a, second hand sugar trough. The greatest architects for the manufacture of genius are Poverty and Democracy.
