Look at the returns! The "gigors" throughout "tell a tale" so disputed or mistaken. The vaunted strength of several of the opposition nominees dwindles into nothing. Those who inspired the most cheering hopes are slaughtered with their fellows.

Examining the returns. Are they not BEAUTIFUL? Adams County—Official. ELECTION—OCTOBER 13, 1857.

One of the most comfortable positions imaginable to be in, is to have the light and the Truth on one's side—and another is, to be sustained in their advocacy by the people. For weeks before the election, the Opposition leaders and their mouth-pieces spared not in denunciation and abuse of the editor of the Compiler. What it all meant, "the whole world and the rest of mankind" may not have been able to divine; but we consoled ourselves with the reflection that they felt the force of the Truth against their cause and their candidates, and hence they bore us no good will for taking a hand in spreading it.

All the New York banks have suspended specie payments.

Democratic Meeting at Irish-town. In the evening of the same day, the Democrats of Oxford and surrounding townships turned out in large numbers to a meeting at Irish-town. The enthusiasm manifested on the occasion was not to be mistaken, and sent a pleasing thrill through the heart of every Democrat present. The officers of the meeting were: President, GEORGE LAWRENCE. Vice Presidents, John Camp, Thomas Brady, David Fink, John Lawrence, E. Robison, Nicholas Heitzel, John Yako, Jacob E. Miller, David Lawrence, and Mathias Martin. Secretaries, Theodore Taghinbaugh, Joseph J. Smith, John Brady, and Pius Little. Jesse D. Newman and H. J. Stahle made speeches, and Charles Will also made a few remarks, all of which were well received. The meeting adjourned at about 10 o'clock, in high hopes.

A Democratic Meeting was held at Wattles's, in this place, on Monday evening, at which Hon. DAVID ZIEGLER presided, assisted by a number of Vice Presidents and Secretaries, whose names are not now remembered. Mr. Philip Redding made an excellent German speech, and H. J. Stahle and E. B. Baehler, Esq., addressed the meeting in English.

Only those who have suffered the miseries of Dyspepsia, in its various forms, can appreciate the value of a medicine that will cure this disease. To all who would find a remedy, we say, try the Organized Bitter.
