

Practical Economy.

Who who by the plough would thrive,
His own self must either hold or drive.
The potato rot is a disease which has greatly impaired the value of the crop, and prevented many farmers from cultivating to the same extent as was formerly done. So serious has been the evil to the agricultural interests, that both men of science and the practical farmers have given much attention to investigating the cause of the potato disease, and to the discovery of a remedy.

A day or two since, we received a letter from Irwin Sampson, Esq., a very intelligent farmer, who has tilled the soil all the days of his life in the rich country near New Wilmington, in Lawrence county, in which he gives us what he claims a simple and cheap preventive of the potato rot. He is satisfied, from experiments which he himself has made, that the following is a sure remedy for the evil: Take a double handful of well rotted oak wood, and scatter it upon the seed potatoes in the hill, and then cover with earth in the usual manner, and there will be no signs of rot. He made the discovery three years ago, in a clearing, just made and planted with potatoes. He observed that where the roots of the potatoes came in contact with the hill was entirely rotten, but that in adjoining hills, where the roots came in contact with the old rotten oak wood of the clearing, every potato was sound and dry. Hills where there was neither ashes nor decayed oak wood, the potatoes were about one half rotten. Taking the hint from these observations, Mr. Sampson has tested the discovery for three years past, and has found a diseased potato in the hills where the pulverized oak wood has been applied, and in patches where there were no decayed potatoes, the roots were found to grow larger, healthier, and of a better flavor where the oak wood was used, than where it was not.
Mr. S. is but a plain, practical farmer, and does not attempt to give a scientific reason for this result, but simply announces the fact, and the results of his experiments. It is well known that the oak possesses high antiseptic and other peculiar qualities, as tannin enters largely into its composition. It is for scientific men to ascertain what is the peculiar principle which produces this result. The farmer can avail himself of the knowledge of the fact that it does prevent the potato rot, for Mr. Samp-son's statements are fully reliable. Every one who cultivates the soil in this part of the country at least, can readily obtain rotten oak wood in sufficient quantities to make the experiment for himself with all the potatoes he may plant. The discovery is an important one, and we hope our readers in the country districts will try the experiment this season, and communicate to us in the fall the result for publication.

The Farmer's Creed.
One of our exchanges gives the following first-rate advice under the heading of "The Farmer's Creed." We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation. The soil loves to rest as well as to be worked, and therefore, to be nurtured. We believe in large crops, which leave the land better than they found it—making both the farm and farmer rich at once. We believe in going to the bottom of things, and therefore, in deep plowing, and enough of it—all the better, if with a subsoil plow. We believe that the best fertility of any soil is the spirit of industry, enterprise and intelligence; without this, lime and gypsum, bone and green manure, marl or plaster, will be of little use. We believe in a clean kitchen, a neat wife in it, a spinning piano, a clean cupboard, dairy and conscience. We firmly disbelieve in farmers that do not improve; in farms that grow poor every year; in starved cattle; in farmer's boys turned into clerks and merchants; in farmer's daughters unwilling to work, and in all farmers who are ashamed of their vocation.

Lime for Potatoes.
A correspondent of the Scientific American, Smith Groom, of Troy, N.
Y., says, that his experience in the culture of potatoes has convinced him that about a handful of dry slacked lime placed in each hill tends to prevent the potato rot. The lime, he states, brings potatoes earlier to maturity, and imparts to them a vigor which resists the attacks of the disease. An experiment with lime can be conducted by any of our farmers at a small expense, and if it does not prevent the potato rot, the lime will certainly enrich the soil for other crops.

A Remedy for Rats.
When a house is infested by rats which refuse to nibble at the usual baits, a few drops of the highly scented oil of rhodium, poured on the bottom of a cage trap, will almost invariably attract it full of the "mischievous variants." We have known this to be tried with extraordinary success.— Where a trap baited with all manner of edibles had failed to attract a single rat, the oil of rhodium caused it to be completely crowded night after night, until the house was cleared of them.—

How to Have Moist Bread.
"Susan," in the Ohio Cultivator, answers an inquiry as to the way of preparing bread moist, as follows:—I bake from four to five loaves every Friday. The loaf that I have in use I keep a wet cloth around, and wet it every time after meal; thus I always have moist bread.

Water in Meat and Vegetables.—The potatoes is three-fourths, the carrot five-sixths, the turnip nine-tenths water.
If a piece of fresh beef be dried in a boiler over boiling water, it will dry up and lose so much water that four pounds of fresh beef will have only one pound of dried beef.—Johnston.

The Milk Cows give Down their Milk.
The milk of a cow will give down if she has a taste of salt. Mr. Loun-gton, of North Coleridge, Mass., discovered this for fifteen years, and has never known it to fail. The animal will be kept a little longer for sale, so that the pleasure of getting some more attention from other things.

Elastic Cement Roofing.

THE subscriber is prepared to contract and put on at the shortest notice, W. E. Calk & Co.'s Best Fire and Water Proof Elastic Cement Roofing.
It is perfectly Fire and Water proof, and in point of durability is equal, if not superior, to any Metallic Roofing. It can be put on over tin, tar, iron, or single roofs, however flat or steep they may be.
In point of weight, the elements of fire and water, nothing has yet been discovered equal to the Elastic Cement.
Those who have used it, have testified that it is the very perfection of Roofing, and that there is no farther room for improvement.— No one will now think of putting on shingles, as this thing can be led for much less money and will outwear four shingle roofs.
