The Printess and the Physician. For foreigness was rever sajourning in Rome during the Antonia of 15— esa fall to rune m-ber ine violent illness of the basatiful Princess C. which suddenly withdrew from the brilliant social circles of that city their fairest ornament. The means by which that illustrious indy that means by which that illustrious indy that mattered to health; when given positry all the faculty in Rome, is not however se grappilly known. She ower her life, and is ever primpt to acknowledge the obligation, to the ment distinguished physician of the age, Dr. Momas Hollowsy. That extraordinary man happened to arrive in the "Seven-hilled City" just at the crisis of her disorder, and was immediately summoned to her palace. He found the Princess in a sad condition. During an evening drive through the Campigna sho had been smitten, by the fearful malaria which sometimes arises in poisonous clouds from the adjacent marshes. The consequence was a violent bilious attack, terminating in jaundice. The lovely face which had dazzled all eyes, and eclipsed all rivalry at ball and banquet, was yellow as saffron, and the eyes which had kindled love and admiration in a thousand hearts were duller than lead. In a feeble voice she inquired of the doctor what could be done for her, at the same time protesting that if the bue that now tinged her skin were to remain after her recovery she would rather die than live. Smiling at the pardonable vanity of one whose queenly heauty was the theme of every traveller who visited Rome, he told her cheerfully that her life and her loveliness were both safe. His prediction proved true. Under the influence of his irresistible Pills, the yellow suffusion began to pass off; and day by day, like a star bursting through a cloud, her beauty was re-developed. Within six weeks it was announced that the Princess would soon gladden the eyes of her admirers at an evening festival to take place at her chatenu at Tivoli in honor of her recovery.

It may well be supposed that the Princess

It may well be supposed that Dr. Holloway treasures this delicate tribute to his skill, among his choicest souvenirs,-"Courier Taxes, Del Populo," Rome.

In selecting seed corn, ears should be preferred which ripen earliest, and grow upon the most profife stalks. It is but little trouble for the farmer to pass through his corn field just before "husking time" and select what he may need for next spring's planting .-By pursuing this course for several years, it will be found that the amount of the crop is considerably increased and the period of ripening accelerated.
