The Use of Coal—A Curious Delusion.

The anthracite coal of Pennsylvania has been used for only thirty-one years, and yet the consumption amounts alrendy to the enormous figures of 3,500,000 tons. The Philadelphin correspondent of the New York Tribune, relates the following most extraordinary facts the following most extraordinary facts respecting the persecution which the first person suffered which because the following most extraordinary facts respecting the persecution which the first person suffered which because the first person suffered which because the first sample of one to Philadelphia.
