Weep not for your cherished daughter. Serrow not that she has gone. For the blessed Lamb, who bought her With his blood, has borne her home.

With the praise of Jesus' name; Home, where infant bands are singing Hallelujah to the Lamb. When this life is o'er you'll meet her

Home, where angels' harps are ringing

In a purer, happier home, Then with sengs of praise you'll greet her Safe in Heaven, no more to roam.

In that blessed country, never Can a care or sorrow come, There forever, oh, forever, Faithful soulistan rest at home.

Though without her bome is dreary, Though you miss her from the hearth. Though, so young, her soul grew weary Of the vanities of earth.

Little Mary rests in Heaven, Free from sin, and care, and pain, And when earthly ties are riven, You will meet your child again. Gettysburg, Nov. 1, 1858.
