SECOND DESPARCH. A desperate battle was fought at Magenta, on the 4th of June, between the sitied army, under Emperor Napoleon, and the Austrian army, under General Hess, in which unlimitod furces were engaged on both sides.

Empress, at the Tuilleries, claims a decisive victory, saying that his army took 7000 pris-oners, disabled 12,000, and captured three campons and two standards. He estimates the loss of his own army at 3,000, but it was rumored in Paris that the French loss was between 9,000 and 12,000. It is reported that there were from 150,000 to 180,000 Austrians and 130,000 French engaged in the battle.

The Austrian accounts differ widely from those of the French. Their bulletins speak of asperal battles being fought, with varying nosess on both sides.

It was still undecided on the night of the 6th as to who gained the victory.

The friends of Judge Douglas here are in possession of the following letter, explaining ais position on the subject of the Presidency, Mu Dear Sir:- I have received your letter, inquiring whether my friends are at liberty to present my name to the Charleston Convention for the Presidential nomination. Before this question can be finally determined, it will be necessary to understand distinctly upon what issues the canvas is to be conducted. If, as I have full faith they will, the compromise principles embodied in the compromise measures of 1850, and ratified by the people in the Presidential election of . 1852, and re-affirmed in the Kansas Nebraska Act of 1854, and incorporated into the Cincinnati Platform in 1856; as expounded by Mr. Buchanan in his letter accepting the nomination, and approved by the people in his election; in that event, my friend be at liberty to present my name to the Convention, if they see proper to do so. If, on the contrary, it shall become the policy of the Democratic party, which I cannot anticipato, to repudiate these, their time honored princi-No. 7.
