THE EATTDID. BY JOHN M'RIMSTRY.

When summer wanes, and autumn's chill Has hushed the voice of Whip-poor-will, Then, when at eve all else is still

We hear the lonely Katy-did. In mute repose all day it sleeps, Or on a twig its vigils keeps; But at dim twilight out it leaps,

With the salute of "Katy-did." Upon a leaf'tis sometimes seen, Grasshopper-like and very green, Looking quite too small and mean To sound the note of "Katy-did."

'Tis said the insect does not sing, But, with a membrane of its wing, A little harp, or guitar string, Vibrates the tune of "Katy-did." But why this music? dost thou call

Thy mates, to hold in festive hall A banquet or a carnival?
What dost thou mean by "Katy-did?" Perhaps there is some worthy Kate, Whose deed thou woulds't commemorate:

Then tell us what achievement great That heroine, Miss Katy-did? The mystery we shall ne'er explore, For still we hear the same thing o'er Just "Katy-did," and nothing more; No tell-tale is our Katy-did.

We will not urge thy answering, So keep thy secret, verdant thing, And make the ambient welkin ring With monotone of "Katy-did." Thy note is harsh and yet despite Its harshness, thrills us with delight,

And cheers the lonely hours of night; We like thee well, Miss Katy-did. It is a happy life you lead; Nature's hand supplies your need; You neither toil nor spin, vet feed On food prepared for Katy-did.

Life's fleeting day to us is lent; Would that its hours might all be spent As cheerful and as innocent As those of humble Katy-did!

At the time a strong-hold called Horseneck some miles above New York, was in possession of the British. Putnam, with a few sturdy patriots, was lurking in its vicinity, bent on driving them from the place. Tired of lying in ambush, the men became impatient, and importuned the General with questions as to when they were going to have a bout with the foe. One morning he made a speech something to the following effect, which convinced them that something was in the wind:

"Fellers—You have been idle too long and a load of corn. If I come back, I'll let you know all the particulars; if I should not, let om have it, by the hokey!" He shortly afterwards mounted the ox-cart, dressed as one of the commonest order of Yankee farmers, and was soon at Bush's tayern, which was in the possession of the British troops. No sooner did the officers cepy him than they began to question him respecting his whereabouts, and finding him, as they thought, a complete simpleton, they began to quis him, and threatened to seize his corn and fodder.

"How much do you ask for your whole consarn?" they inquired. "For marcy's sake, gentlemen," replied the mock clod hopper, with the most deplorable look of entreaty, "only let me off, and you shall have my hull team and load for nothing! And if that won't dew, I'll give you my word I'll return to-morrow, and pay you heartily for your kindness and condescension."
"Well," said they, "we'll take you at your us, and we won't require any bail for your

A foreign-born white man cannot vote until he has been seven years in the State; while a negro, imported though he may have been by the Echo, in her private venture of the last summer, enjoys the almost unrestricted right of suffrage. Ah, what irony in those word. Leave the team and provender with words of Webster if applied to Massachusette us, and we won't require any bail for your now—"There she is—behold her and judge for yourselves."-Logan Gazette.

Rev. Mr. Barnes, in his sermon on "Life at Three Score," illustrates the magnitude of eternal things as he approaches the end of life, compared with those which ordinarily occupy the attention of mankind, by the following beautiful figure :

"The earth, as it moves in its orbit from year to year, maintains its distance of ninetyfive millions of miles from the sun; and the sun, except when seen thre's hazy atmosphere, at its riving or its setting, seems at all times to be of the same magnitude—to human view, an object always small, compared with our own world. But suppose the earth should leave its orbit, and make its way in a direct line towards the sun. How soon would tor's favorite subject; he addressed our Irish friend, as follows:

"Perhaps you think that I would be upable on the page of t left the orbit of its annual movements, and was making a rapid and direct flight to the sun. The objects of eternity, towards which I am moving, rapidly enlarge themselves .-"Sure and I will, sir."

They have become overpoweringly bright and "How often do you use coffee and tea?" | grand. They fill the whole field of vision. and the earth, with all which is the common object of human ambition and pursuit, is van-

While traveling through the Indian country on their way out, one of he company, a young man of desperate character, from the vicinity of Grayville, named Haynes, declared his determination to shoot the first Indian he met; and, unhappily, during the day they overtook on the prairie a defenceless squaw, when he, in mere wicked wantonness, leveled his gun and shot her

His companions were horror-stricken at the blood-thirsty deed, but felt that they had no power to punish him. The tribe to which the squaw belonged was not far distant when the deed was perpetrated. They discovered her ifeless body, and saw at once the manner of her death. They pursued the party of Illinois Pike's Peakers, and in a few hours overtook them and demanded to knew who had committed the murder. The company of five or six Pike's Peakers found themselves surrounded by nearly two hundred enraged Indians, who threatened to immolate the whole party if they did not point out and give apthe murderer. To save their own lives they have marked the interest of their vangance. However, the same means, his hand became fast in the gave up Haynes to their vengeance. He was lung hair, when the animal took fright and taken by the Indians to a distance, while his ran, dragging the child after her over fences, companions tarried on their routs to see what would be his fate.

After swhile the Indians returned, with their rictim literally flayed alive. They had chimned him from head to toot. The wretched being was still alive when brought back to his companions. He lived in agony lung enough to tell how he had been tortured, but was soon released by death from unspeakable sufferings.—St. Louis Dem.

> Democratic Harmony. The evidences of returning barmony in the ranks of the Democratic party, which greet us from all sections of our good old Common-wealth, encourage us to look with increasing confidence for a Democratic victory in October next. The efforts of the Chairman of the bogus "States Rights" Committee, and the few desperate and unprincipled men who, with him, have arrayed themselves in open antagonism to the organization and regular candidates of the Democracy, are without serious influence in any quarter; and everywhere. we see manifested among Democrats, a determination to make a united and successful rally in support of the ticket, and thus save the State from the power and contamination of Know Nothing Republicanism. A Forney or a Hickman may rave against the National Administration, and attempt to use the dead Lecompton issue as a means of advancing their disorganizing purposes, but such men labor in vain; their characters and objects by, in a recent article in which it speaks out for a cordial union in support of the Democratic county and State Ticket, well says: "Reconciliation and union are now the watchwords that are reverberating over the country, carrying terror and dismay into the camp of the enemy. Old feuds are being forgotten -and animosities buried so deep that the sound of the archangel's trumpet will scarcely resuscitate them. The people have found that those divisions of opinions which formerly agitated the party, took their rise in issues that no longer exist—and may now be considered defunct—consequently every man who is entitled to the name of Democrat can now unite on the great and living issues of the day, without violating any principle of justice or right." prevalent throughout the party, and its influence will tell more and more powerfully for the State ticket, as the election approaches.
