COING UP AND COMING DOWN.

This is a simple song, tis true, My songs are never over nice;
And yet I'll try and scatter through
A little pinch of good advice.
Then listen, pompous friend, and learn
Never to boast of much renown; For Fortune's wheel is on the turn

And some go up and some come down. I know a vast amount of stocks, A vast amount of pride insures: But fate has picked so many looks, I wouldn't like to warrant yours. Remember, then, and never spurn

The one whose hand is hard and brown; For he is likely to go up,
And you are likely to come down

Another thing you will agree, (The truth may be as well confessed,) That "Codfish Aristocracy," Is but a scaly thing at best. And the fishes, large and strong,

May seek the little ones to drown, Yet fishes all, both great and small, Are going up and coming down. Our lives are full of chance and change,

And CHANCE, you know, is never sure; And 'twere a doctrine, new and strange, That places high are most secure. And though the fickle god may smile, And wield the sceptre and the crown;

'Tis only for a little while,
Then A goes up and B comes down. This world for you and me, my friend,

Hath something more than pounds and pence,
Then let me humbly recommend A little use of common sense. Thus lay all pride of place aside,

And have a care on whom you frown, For fear you'll see him going up, When you are only coming down.

'That's right,' said the gentleaway, she stopped and said to the 'boy,' whose eyes and ivory fleshed while she did so: 'William, be good boy in Charleston; don't let any of the bad fellows lead you into temptation there.' Those are her very words, and the tone in which they were uttered made them genuine. 'William' repeated his bow. and if an Ethiopian statue representing perfect felicity were wanted, he would have answered excellently well then to stand for a model."

Blooming in the Grave.—A motallic coffin containing the body of a young lady who had been buried more than four years was lately opened in Moinphis, Tenn. The body was in an excelient state of preservation, the hair, particularly, was very life-like, and what was more astonishing, a full bloom camelia japonica which some affectionato hand had twined in the treases of the girl was remarkably fresh looking, the leaves retaining their soft, greenish has

Stephen Whitney, who died in New York recently, leaving ten millious, was once met by Jacob Astor, when the following dialogue ensued: "Mr. Whitney, I hear you have retired from business." This was after his retirement in 1837. "Yes," roplied Mr. Whitney. "I have retired. "And how much are you worth?"

inquired Mr. Astor. "About five million dollars," replied Mr. Whitney. After standing and thinking in silunco for a moment, " Well," mid Mr. Astor,
